THE DUDE'S DEVOTION.

Freddie Gebhardt Joins Mrs. Langtry in Paris.

He Slips Off from America Under an Assumed Name—English and American Residents of the French Capital Very Much Interested in the Movements of the Pair.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—"We know nothing of Mr. Gebhardt's movements," said the head-waiter at Delmonico's last night. "He has not been here for nearly three weeks." At the Union Club, of which Freddie is a member, the same reply was given to the questions of the reporter. In a few minutes chat with an habitue of Delmonico's. The reporter learned that on the quiet it was understood among his friends that Freddie had started three weeks ago on a Cunarder for Europe, under an assumed name. "It would hardly have done for him to go with Mrs. Langtry, so he waited a reasonable time," said the reporter's informant, "and then got away without any fuss, so he could see his 'dear friend' on the other side, where the newspapers do not trouble themselves so persistently with people's private business." Mr. Reginald Francklyn, who is said to have to Europe and arranged his departure, still refuses to say anything on the subject. All his answers are negatives or evasions.

"Is it true that Mr. Gebhardt has sailed for Europe?"

"Whose business is it?"

"Did he use an assumed name?"

"That is a fabrication."

Then he added that Mr. Gebhardt knew his own business and was able to take care of himself. At the office of the Cunard Line no confirmation of Freddie's departure could be obtained, as any one could take passage to Europe under another name. The only thing that is certain is that from his almost nightly haunts for three weeks and that gossip associates his departure with a visit to the Jersey Lily. It may be, however, that he has gone over about running his horse Eole for the great Cambridgeshire stakes, for which he is entered, although he has promised to send the horse to Washington.

Joined Again.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, September 15.—The American and English residents of the French capital take the same languid sort of interest in Mrs. Lily Langtry and her wealthy New York admirer as the newspaper readers on the opposite side of the ocean. Through the industry of the wide awake correspondents of the newspapers the doings of Mrs. Langtry, up to the time of her departure from the United States, were made known here, and at that time it was announced by cables that Mr. Gebhardt had not sailed on the same ship with the lady to whom his attention had been so marked, and moreover that the gentleman had announced his determination

TO REMAIN IN AMERICA

during the temporary absence of the Jersey Lily from that hospitable land. But there were many persons here and in London who fully expected that Mr. Gebhardt would turn up suddenly in the wake of the Lily, and some surprise was expressed that no tidings were heard of him during Mrs. Langtry's stay in England, or while she was making her professional tour of Scotland.

The other day Mrs. Langtry arrived at the French capital, along with her retinue, with the intention of perfecting herself in the dramatic art under the guidance of the veteran professor of acting, M. Regnier. Her retinue was smaller when she first came than it was during her American tour, but it has at length been increased to its normal size by the appearance of who has suddenly, but, as intimated above, not unexpectedly arrived in Paris. Whether he, too, intends to study for the stage under M. Regnier is not yet known, but the newspaper writers have already begun to evince great interest in the English beauty and the millionaire American, and it is likely that young Mr. Gebhardt will succeed in his evident attempt to acquire an European reputation.

ON THE WRONG HORSE.

Senator Allison of Iowa, Mounts the Prohibition Steed—His Aspirations.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, September 15.—When Congress adjourned last spring the Iowa Republicans went home believing that if Mr. Blaine was not himself a candidate for President he would throw his influence in favor of Senator Allison. Meanwhile Allison has considered himself in training. He had for sometime studied his course in the Senate by not committing himself on dangerous questions. The mistake of trotting him out a year or more in advance it was intended to avoid, but the cold wave which passed over Iowa last fall had a chilling effect, and threatened to so benumb Senator Allison before the race that he could not regain sufficient activity to enter the struggle at all; nor is the danger passed. Iowa as the Republican Gibraltar is not what she was. Allison's proportions are comparatively diminished.

THERE IS ANOTHER CAUSE

of doubt with the Republicans. Senator Allison has mounted the Prohibition hobby, which has sent confusion into the ranks, and cleared off whole masses of voters who had stood firm. Allison, as a candidate, would invite the issue everywhere.

"It may be a good thing to do in Iowa," say Republicans, extending their gaze over the field, "but it may give us trouble precisely where we would least wish to see it." The Republican, as such, is not the Prohibition party yet, they contend. When the time time comes for abandoning its old ground for that of prohibition in the struggle for President, Mr. Allison may be a good enough candidate." But for his mistake in mounting the prohibition hobby," they continue, "he might be a good enough candidate, but the prohibition business changes the question."

Mr. Blaine's late observation that the Republican candidate would be taken from the West has this significance: It is highly entertaining for Logan.

Missouri News.

JEFFERSON CITY, September 15.—H. R. Knotwell of Knotwell, Mo., who was sentenced to one day in jail and given a light fine for cutting Government timber, objects to the sentence, has had it set aside and a plea of not guilty entered. The Rough Notes, a Democratic weekly, has been merged into the Tribune, Mr. John Meagher, the editor, taking the place of local editor of the Tribune. Thos. J. Delaney has been appointed Prosecuting Attorney of Greene County. Ambrose Bentley was pardoned yesterday—six months' sentence.

WELLSVILLE, September 15.—A one-story brick and a two-story frame building were destroyed by fire last night. They were owned by Jacob Miller. A number of houses were damaged. Loss, $5,000.

SEDALIA, September 15.—A special from Clinton states that Hon. B. G. Boone was stricken fatally by paralysis yesterday.

OUT OF SING SING.

From the Prison to the Farm—A Remarkable Thief.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

CHEEK TOWAGO, N. Y., September 15.—In the summer of 1879 a stranger appeared at the farm of Solon Bruce, near this place, for work. His hair was cropped close and his face was forbidding. He gave his name to the farmer and told him plainly that he had been discharged from Sing Sing only a short time, where he had been serving a sentence of two years for burglary. He said that he was desirous of leading an honest life and referred the farmer to the prison authorities. Mr. Bruce was struck with the man's apparent true repentance and told him he might remain at the farm until the prison authorities were heard from, and that if their report was good, he would be given work. The report was good and the man was put to work on the farm. He remained in the service of Mr. Bruce until last fall, having been during all that time

A FAITHFUL AND INDUSTRIOUS EMPLOYE.

He went by the name of Wilson, and said that he had been brought up as a pickpocket and thief from childhood. Last fall he made up his mind to go South. Nothing was heard from him until a few days ago, when Mr. Bruce received a letter from him. He was in Texas. He said in his letter that, as he might never come this way again, if Mr. Bruce would make a search in his chimney, that he would find several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry, which the writer had taken from people in the street in years past, and which he could not restore, as the identity of the owners could not be known. He told Mr. Bruce to dispose of it as he thought best. The farmer searched in the chimney and found at least $1,000 worth of gold rings, pins, watches, and other valuable jewelry. Not wishing to have anything to do

WITH THE STOLEN PROPERTY

he shipped it to Wilson. What puzzles the farmer is to know where and when his late employe obtained the jewelry, as it is not likely that he could have come from the prison with it on his person. It looks as if the reformed thief had been plying his former trade during visits which he made occasionally to Buffalo, Lockport, and other neighboring towns and cities while he was working on the farm.

SENSIBLE TALK.

John Kelly's Speech Before a Tammany Hall Committee.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—Mr. John Kelly, in a speech before the Tammany Hall Committee on Organization, said that Irving Hall had accepted Tammany Hall's proposition for harmony in a friendly way. The Conference Committee had been appointed by Tammany Hall, with a sincere desire for the welfare of Democracy, not only of this city and State, but of the nation. Mr. Kelly here said that the State Committee had exceeded its authority at Saratoga. The Syracuse Convention recommended that there should be union primaries in New York to elect delegates to future conventions. The convention recommended and resolved that the State Committee should supervise the holding of the primaries. In fact, that they should be held under their supervision and auspices.

This meant that the committee should come to New York and have the primaries conducted under their auspices and supervision. The State Committee did not do this. The committee delegated its authority, if it had any, to the County Democracy. If its orders were obeyed, Tammany Hall and Irving Hall would virtually have to disband as organizations. They would have to surrender to the County Democracy, which would become the only Democratic organization. Mr. Kelly then said that divisions in the Democratic party in the past had led to defeat in the city, State and nation. The Democrats in the rural districts of the State were disheartened when there was not a union in New York. In 1881, there was a split of the party here. The Republicans won the big county offices. The County Democracy's candidate for surrogate and their ticket were third in the race. Tammany Hall polled a much larger vote than the County Democracy. The latter organization prided itself on its regularity. Regularity should mean the majority of votes in Democracy. The faction polling the largest vote should be recognized as regular by a Democratic convention. Mr. Kelly also gave it as his belief that the citizens' party was being reorganized for the purpose of joining hands with the County Democracy. It was decided that the call for the regular Tammany Hall primaries should be issued as heretofore by the district committees.

Aimee's Success—Improving a Theater—A Marriage—Stopped by a Sheriff.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—Aimee's success in Lecoq's "La Princesse Des Canaries" has been so great that it will be repeated at the Fifth Avenue every night next week.

"Francesca Da Rimini" has proved a great attraction at the Star, and Lawrence Barrett will produce it until further notice.

Mr. Charles Coghlan may be expected here from England. He is engaged to Mr. John Stetson at the Fifth Avenue for the season.

Mlle. Aimee says that our climate has somewhat affected her voice, but that it is now improving under careful treatment.

There is going to be a good deal done to the Academy of Music in the way of improvements.

"The Silver King Company," which will will include Miss Lillian Edgington, whose appear at the Grand Opera House next week, success as Miss Skinner, excels that of Agnes Elliott, who appeared in the part at Wallack's.

Miss Laura Pomeroy was married at Landhurst, Australia, August 4, to Mr. Arthur Elliot, a member of her company.

By the latest advice it is learned that Mr. Bandman is in Sidney, New South Wales, whacking away at "Romeo and Juliet," and plays of that ilk.

Mr. W. E. Sheridan and Miss Louise Davenport were to have left Australia by the last mail steamer, but were stopped by the sheriff, who was base enough to let the steamer go without them.

Will Get Her Off.

FREEPORT, L. I., September 15.—The ship Indipenti, which is 112 meters long, was moved about her length this morning at high water by the Coast Wrecking Company. There are good prospects of getting her off.

Suicide of a Congressman.

FORTRESS MONROE, VA., September 15.—Col. Robert M. Mayo of Westmoreland County, Va., Member of Congress, elect, shot himself this morning on board the steamer Virginia, from Baltimore for Norfolk.

ASSEMBLED PUGILISTS.

Mitchell and Madden Arrive in New York Yesterday.

A Meeting at Harry Hill's in Which Some Hot Words are Passed—The Fight Between Mitchell and Slade Had Been Mutually Agreed a Draw—A Dakota Dispatch.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The prize-fighting fraternity was disturbed to its very center yesterday by the announcement that Charles Mitchell and "Billy" Madden, his manager, had arrived in the city. Soon after their arrival Mitchell and Madden went to Harry Hill's resort and there met Jem Mace, H. A. Slade, "Hen" Rice, H. J. Montague, "Soap" McAlpine and sundry others. A discussion as to where the fight between Slade and Mitchell should take place was held, and after a wordy conflict between Madden and Rice of 10 minutes' duration, all the parties named adjourned to a room on the third floor of the building where a three hours' conclave was held. There, it is asserted that and exchanged conventionalities, and the wordy warfare between the managers was resumed. Madden alleged that the Slade party had used dishonest methods to induce Harry Hill to name New Orleans as the fighting ground, and the assertion was as indignantly denied by the representatives of the Maori. The secret conclave adjourned without a definite result. Late last night Mitchell and Madden met Harry Hill in a third-story parlor of his place, and there the discussion was renewed. The only parties present were Harry Hill, "Billy" Madden, Jere Dunn of Chicago, and a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH. At the request of Madden, article 23 of the new rules of the London prize ring was read. It says that "Should the fight be undecided on the day appointed, all bets shall be withdrawn, and should the adjournment be more than from Sunday to Sunday, the referee

SHALL APPOINT ANOTHER FIGHTING GROUND,

unless the fight should be mutually agreed a draw," Madden showed Hill that the fight had been mutually agreed a draw, and Harry Hill said he was satisfied that he had imposed on him when he made the vicinity of New Orleans, the fighting ground. Madden said that Mitchell would fight Slade anywhere but in the vicinity of New Orleans; anywhere on the blooming globe. Mr. Hill then showed the following telegram dated Pierre, Dak., September 14:

"Mitchell and Slade can fight within 5 miles of this place. Inducements to the parties can be offered if necessary. No molestation or official interference guaranteed. No change of cars between Chicago and here. Abundant hotel accommodation. Answer at our expense. [Signed] GLOVER & OWENS, P. H. JOHNSTON."

To this Hill replied: "Matter undecided. Probably be settled Saturday evening; your proposition will be laid before the parties. What are your inducements?"

Lord Coleridge Remarks.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSFIELD, September 15.—"I don't often refer to anything biblical," said Baron Coleridge as he stepped off from his car at the depot yesterday afternoon, "but it seems as if I had seen a hundred representations of the burning bush between here and Dalton."

The sky had been cloudy, but with an occasional sunburst that fitfully lighted the sides of Grey Lock and the Taconics.

"No," he said, "I am satisfied that England has nothing more pleasingly picturesque than Berkshire."

E. T. Shepard of Lenox, a son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt, entertained the party at his house, which is filled with guests. W. H. Vanderbilt arrives to-morrow at Mr. Shepard's, where his wife and youngest son have been for a week.

Fell Heir to Half a Million.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The police of this city have been notified to look for Abram S. Nesbitt, 16 years old, a son of the president of the Second National Bank of Easton, Pa., who ran away from home and is supposed to have come here. He is said to be heir to $500,000.

THE PROPHETS' TABLEAUX.

The Manner in Which Permits and Seats Can be Obtained.

Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the Veiled Prophets' tableaux to be given at the Olympic Theater, on the evening of Friday of Fair Week. The gentlemen who have the matter in charge state that no expense will be spared to make the evening's entertainment far surpass anything of the kind ever before attempted in the city. The managers of the tableaux want it to be distinctly understood that this will be a public entertainment, to which anybody can secure tickets who complies with the rules laid down. It is not to be an exclusive affair, nor to be confined to the members of the Veiled Prophets. Any person, of respectable character, who wishes to attend, should at once mail an application, stating the number of tickets required, and addressed to "Invitation Committee on Tableaux, P. O. Box 2,707, City." An answer will be returned by the next mail, inclosing a permit to purchase the number of seats required. The only object of this formality is to ensure the fact that tickets shall not fall into the hands of improper or disreputable characters. Gentlemen can secure the permit by making the application. The box sheet will be opened at the Olympic Theater on Monday morning next when the holders of permits can purchase the number of tickets specified at the price of $5 each. No tickets will be sold unless the permit is presented. There will be no discrimination, however. A clear box sheet will be laid before the purchasers, and those who come first will have the choice of any seats in the house. No numbers will be reserved or marked off for members of the order or for anybody else. All applicants will be treated precisely alike and served in the order in which they come. The managers are most emphatic in the declaration that no favors will be shown in the issue of permits or the purchase of tickets, and that no persons of respectable character will be refused, so long as there is room left to accommodate them. Even if every seat should be sold at the price mentioned there would still be no profit. The sole object is to add to the attractions of carnival week. Besides the tableaux, which are six in number, the committee has secured for the concert Remenyi, the renowned violinist, Mrs. Osgood, Madame Rive-King, Miss Minnie Curtis, the Boston Temple Quartette Club, and other attractions of equally high merit. If the Exposition Building and Music Hall are completed in time next year, as is expected, the Veiled Prophets will give their ball and tableaux in that place, and, in addition, a grand concert, at which Patti, Nilsson, Scalchi and all the other celebrities that can be secured will be presented. No expense will be spared to bring the best musical talent in the country to St. Louis for that occasion.

NO REMEDY for coughs and colds is so popular as Harless' Cough Caramels. Delicious to the taste, they soothe and allay irritation at once and afford refreshing sleep. Twenty-five and fifty-cent packages. Drug store Fifth and Market streets.

PUBLIC SCPOOL MATTERS.

Interview with a Mississippi Educator on Negro Education.

The election committee of the School Board will meet on next Tuesday to arrange and consolidate the election precincts, and to select voting places for the election of nine outgoing school directors which will take place on the fourth Tuesday of October.

The regular bills for additional text books, general repairs, and other expenditures which were ordered by the Board on last Tuesday are now ready for payment.

"Any indications of improvement in the schooling of the negro in your State?" asked a Post-Dispatch reporter of Professor Long, of the University of Mississippi, who in company with General Stewart had stepped into the Polytechnic.

"A very large percentage of the Southern negroes are unable to tell the difference between a pumpkin vine and a horse-radish stalk. Terribly illiterate, I assure you," remarked the Professor, who eyed the man of the quill sharply.

"Are you doing much for them in the way of public schools?"

"No. The people of Mississippi are not able to grapple the question alone. We must have the aid of the General Government."

"Have you any plan which you think would prove an efficient one if the Government will aid you?"

"Yes. The first step should be to establish normal schools for the training of colored teachers. Out of this would grow, as a necessary consequence, a system somewhat similar to yours in Missouri, which would belt the entire negro population, but normal schools should be established first of all."

"How about the negro's politics?"

"His politics? Well—augh!—whatever difficulties the question may present of a political nature our educational duties are very clear. But the first step in solving the problem of his future is the educational one."

"What is the general opinion in your section in regard to the Blair bill in aid of the common school system?"

"In my opinion the bill, inasmuch as it provides instruction to all without distinction of race, nativity or condition in life, will show to the rest of the world that America means enlightenment and intelligence. A man may be shipped here a savage, but if we get a chance at him we intend to convert him into at least a respectable item of society."

A COLORADO CASE.

The Title to Coal Lands in Las Animas County in Dispute.

Judge McCrary, of the United States Circuit Court, was occupied yesterday with hearing the arguments of counsel in the case of the United States against the Colorado Coal and Iron Company, the Southern Coal and Iron Company, and some fifty other defendants. The case involves the title to some six thousand acres of valuable coal lands in Las Animas County, Colorado. This land was pre-empted during the years 1873 and 1874 under the homestead laws of the United States and the territory of Colorado. The land was described as agricultural land, but it was several years afterwards that the character of the land was discovered. In 1879 the United States instituted proceedings to set aside the patents to the grantees, and the case has been pending in the courts ever since. On the part of the United States it is insisted that the preemptors were fictitious persons and that the patents were fraudulently issued by collusion of the federal land officers in Colorado. In the meantime the Colorado Coal and Iron Company and the Southern Colorado Coal and Iron Company were organized and became the possessors of the land in question, and these two corporations are, as a matter of fact, the sole defendants in the case. Mr. Westbrook S. Decker of Denver appears as solicitor for the United States and Messrs. L. K. Bass, Woolcott & Milburn and John M. Waldron are the attorneys for the defense. It is probable that the case will occupy the attention of the court for the balance of the week. The morning session to-day was occupied by counsel with the reading of the petition and answer and with various motions. It is expected that this afternoon will be consumed in taking the testimony of experts in handwriting to determine a question raised by the complainant as to the genuineness of the signatures to the applications for the original patents, the complainant insisting that all these signatures were forgeries. The experts who have been summoned for this purpose are Mr. W. D. Eaton, associate editor of the National Republican, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. David Kohr, of the General Land Office, in charge of the Department of Colorado.

SPORTING NEWS.

Baltimore Makes a Show of the Home Team—Notes.

The Baltimores destroyed most of the hopes of St. Louis for the championship in yesterday's game. Barnie's men played a great game, and they defeated the "Coming Champions" by a score of 3 to 0. Emslie, who proved such a picnic for St. Louis on Monday, pitched again, and the Browns could scarcely hit him at all. McGinniss was not batted much. Base hits: Baltimores 8, St. Louis 3. Errors: Baltimores 5, St. Louis 3. Runs earned: None.

The Athletics won the last game at Columbus yesterday by the one-sided score of 11 to 5. Base hits: Athletics 14, Columbus 11. Errors: Athletics 4, Columbus 8. Runs earned: Columbus 4, Athletics 2. Birchall secured a home run.

Cincinnati, at home, defeated the Allegheny Club by a score of 8 to 2. Base hits: Cincinnati 10, Allegheny 5. Errors: Cincinnati 4, Allegheny 7. Runs earned: Cincinnati 3. Home-run: Jones.

The Eclipse Club defeated the Metropolitans at Louisville yesterday by a score of 4 to 1. Base hits: Eclipse 10, Mets 4. Errors: Eclipse 0, Mets 2. Runs earned: Eclipse 2.

The following League games were played yesterday: At Boston—Boston 3, Chicago 1. At Philadelphia—Cleveland 1, Philadelphia 0. At Providence—Providence 9, Detroit 6.

RACING.

The results of the racing at Sheepshead Bay yesterday were as follows: First race—One mile for all ages, was won by Dan K., Lytton second, Edwin A. third. Time, 1:47. The Great Eastern handicap for 3-year olds, one mile and a half, was the event of the day. Day Carter cut up badly at the post, delaying the start. When the flag fell Bessie, lapped by Miss Woodford, was first away. Miss Woodford soon passed Bessie and set a fast pace, with which she won, in an easy gallop, by seven lengths. Referee was second, All Hands Round third. Time, 2:42. Mile and three-quarters—Apollo first, Hartford second, Irish King third. Time, 3:12¼. Three-quarters of a mile—Weasel first, Babcock second, Nimble Foot third. Time, 1:19½. Steeple-chase over the Ironside course—Disturbance first, Abraham second, Pasha third. Time, 5:06½.

It Topeka, Kas., yesterday the trot for the 2:38 class was won by Coupon; the 3:00 class by Baby Mine, and the 2-year-old trot by Alice Almont.

At Wheeling, W. Va., in the 2:25 pace, Belle's Hamill won. The second race was not finished.

THE DRIVING CLUB MATINEE.

The Driving Club will give its usual Saturday afternoon matinee, at the Fair Grounds, to-morrow. The card contains five interesting races. Among them a free-for-all trot for a gold-lined silver pitcher, slop-bowl and goblet, presented by the Bauman Jewelry Company. Mr. J. R. Trask has presented a handsome silver and gold flower-case to be given to the horse trotting nearest to three minutes. The first race will be called at 3 p. m. sharp.

NOTES.

The Metropolitans will arrive here to-morrow and will play here Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday. St. Louis will have to win all three games to have a chance for the championship, so that hard fighting may be looked for.

Cincinnati begins its last series with the Athletics to-morrow, while the Eclipse tackle the Baltimores and the Allegheny club the Columbus.

The Critic.

This week's CRITIC, issued to-morrow morning, will contain new and amusing local sketches, and an entirely original programme of the Veiled Prophets pageant. It will be liberally illustrated. For sale by newsboys and newsdealers.

FILL your house with boarders by advertising in the want columns of the POST-DISPATCH. Ten cents for twenty words.

Fire Engines and the Pageant.

The proposition to call out the Fire Department on Trades' Procession night to take part in the pageant has caused considerable discussion among the insurance men as to the advisability and propriety of so doing.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter called on Mr. Martin Collins, the insurance agent, and asked his opinion on the matter.

"I don't think it ought to be done," said Mr. Collins. "I do not approve of it at all. It would endanger the property of the citizens too much. Why, suppose an accident should happen, and we are always in fear of them on such occasions, what condition would the city be in with our Fire Department in the procession? There is entirely too much at stake to attempt anything of the kind, and then there is no reason in it. It will not add much to the pageant. Everybody knows that we have fire engines. If it was absolutely necessary to the success of the pageant I might say strain a point and let some of the engines come out; but it is not necessary. I don't believe if you should ask Clay Sexton himself that he would say it was right. Of course it might be said that if an alarm should be given the engines could turn off from the rear of the procession, but every one knows the condition of the streets on Veiled Prophets night, and the danger to life and limb that it would occasion would be fearful. I don't believe in risking it. I think the large merchants will agree with me and I know the insurance men do. I scarcely think any other city would permit it, because the city would be responsible for the damage. We cannot afford to do this.

ROOMS are easily obtained through the want columns of the POST-DISPATCH, twenty words for 10 cents.

Funeral of Mrs. Cole.

The funeral of Mrs. Maggie Cole, wife of Victor T. Cole, took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence on Prairie avenue. A large number of the friends and acquaintances of the deceased were present and followed the remains to their last resting place. The members of Nonpariel Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, of which Mrs. Cole was secretary, were present in full regalia. From the house the cortege proceeded to the Kossuth Avenue Presbyterian Church, where most impressive ceremonies were held. The interment took place at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

DIES WHILE DRUNK.

A Man Found Dead on the Streets this Morning.

At 5 o'clock this morning officers Collins and Scully received a report from Lizzie Lewis of 1715 N. Second street to the effect that she had discovered a dead man lying in the gutter in front of 1541 North Second street. The officers visited the scene and found the girl's story confirmed. Investigation disclosed the fact that the body was that of Barney Brumswighe, a German, and owner of a grocery store at the southeast corner of Second and Mullanphy streets. Last night Brumswighe attended a marriage in the rear of 1520 Broadway and became intoxicated to such a degree that it is thought he was unable to care for himself, and fell in the gutter on his face and lay there until he smothered. The deceased had a bruise on his right temple, supposed to be the result of striking a rock in the gutter when he fell. Gerard Krienbaum with whom Brumswighe has been boarding, reports that Brumswighe left his house at 2:30 o'clock this morning to go to the closet, and failed to return. Deceased was 26 years of age, and has no relatives in this city. The body was sent to the Morgue. Twenty-three dollars and seventy-two cents and a watch and a chain were found on the person of the deceased, and was turned over to Gerhard Krienbaum, the boarding-house keeper.

Another Disappearance.

Another case of mysterious disappearance has come to light in North St. Louis. Last Monday Alf. Sawyer, residing at No. 2516½ North Tenth street, left home at an early hour in the morning to go to his work as helper at the Relay Depot in East St. Louis. He failed to return home and has not been seen by any of his friends since Monday. His employer in East St. Louis reports that he worked as usual on Monday and in the evening received his pay. His wife is almost frantic with grief at his absence, and can in no way account for the mystery. She says that she and her husband and two children have always lived happily since their marriage. The mystery becomes even deeper when it is known that Sawyer is a temperance man and industrious. His wife suspects foul play. The missing man is nearly 24 years of age.

TRUSTEES' SALES.

WHEREAS Joseph Vincent, by his deed of trust, dated December 12, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 672, page 3, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-eight and thirty-nine in block one of the third subdivision of the St. Louis Common, made under ordinance 3126, approved February 3, 1854, said lots lying also in city block 1439, fronting fifty feet on the west line of Louisiana avenue by a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-five feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed of trust described; whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of sell the above described property at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.

THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,

FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Samuel Sachs and Mary E. Sachs his wife, by their deed of trust, dated June 17, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the County of Dent, in the Sate of Missouri, in book B, at pages 454 and 455, did convey to Joseph T. Donovan, trustee, the following described real estate, situated in Dent County, State of Missouri, to-wit: All of lots two (2) and three (3) in block twenty-nine (29) on the west side of the creek in the town of Salem. Also all of the west half of southeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section fifteen, in township thirty-four, range eight west, and the northwest quarter of southwest quarter and northwest quarter of northeast quarter of section thirty-five (35) in township thirty-five (35), range 6 west, and all of the south half of northeast quarter in section twelve (12) in township thirty-three (33), range six (6), the "first tract" containing one hundred and twenty (120) acres "second tract" containing two hundred and forty (240) acres, third tract containing eighty acres, and two houses and lots, which conveyance was made to secure the payment of a certain promissory note therein described; and whereas default has been made in the payment thereof, and the same is wholly due and unpaid; now, therefore, by virtue of the provisions of said deed of trust and in pursuance of the power vested in me by the same, and at the request of the legal holder of said note, I, the undersigned, will, on between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, proceed to sell the property hereinabove described at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, for cash, for the purposes of said trust.

JOSEPH T. DONOVAN, Trustee.

WHEREAS Harriet Baumgardner and Francis Baumgardner, her husband and trustee, by their deed of trust, dated the 21st day of June, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 658, at page 72, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate: Lot twenty, in block nine of Peter Lindell's first addition to said city, being in block 1952, fronting twenty-five feet on the north line of Laclede avenue by a depth northwardly of one hundred and twenty-eight feet to an alley, in trust, to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed described. Whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of

THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,

sell the above described real estate at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House, in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

THE DUDE'S DEVOTION.

Freddie Gebhardt Joins Mrs. Langtry in Paris.

He Slips Off from America Under an Assumed Name—English and American Residents of the French Capital Very Much Interested in the Movements of the Pair.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—"We know nothing of Mr. Gebhardt's movements," said the head-waiter at Delmonico's last night. "He has not been here for nearly three weeks." At the Union Club, of which Freddie is a member, the same reply was given to the questions of the reporter. In a few minutes chat with an habitue of Delmonico's. The reporter learned that on the quiet it was understood among his friends that Freddie had started three weeks ago on a Cunarder for Europe, under an assumed name.

"It would hardly have done for him to go with Mrs. Langtry, so he waited a reasonable time," said the reporter's informant, "and then got away without any fuss, so he could see his 'dear friend' on the other side, where the newspapers do not trouble themselves so persistently with people's private business." Mr. Reginald Francklyn, who is said to have to Europe and arranged his departure, still refuses to say anything on the subject. All his answers are negatives or evasions.

"Is it true that Mr. Gebhardt has sailed for Europe?"

"Whose business is it?"

"Did he use an assumed name?"

"That is a fabrication."

Then he added that Mr. Gebhardt knew his own business and was able to take care of himself. At the office of the Cunard Line no confirmation of Freddie's departure could be obtained, as any one could take passage to Europe under another name. The only thing that is certain is that from his almost nightly haunts for three weeks and that gossip associates his departure with a visit to the Jersey Lily. It may be, however, that he has gone over about running his horse Eole for the great Cambridgeshire stakes, for which he is entered, although he has promised to send the horse to Washington.

Joined Again.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, September 15.—The American and English residents of the French capital take the same languid sort of interest in Mrs. Lily Langtry and her wealthy New York admirer as the newspaper readers on the opposite side of the ocean. Through the industry of the wide awake correspondents of the newspapers the doings of Mrs. Langtry, up to the time of her departure from the United States, were made known here, and at that time it was announced by cables that Mr. Gebhardt had not sailed on the same ship with the lady to whom his attention had been so marked, and moreover that the gentleman had announced his determination during the temporary absence of the Jersey Lily from that hospitable land. But there were many persons here and in London who fully expected that Mr. Gebhardt would turn up suddenly in the wake of the Lily, and some surprise was expressed that no tidings were heard of him during Mrs. Langtry's stay in England, or while she was making her professional tour of Scotland.

TO REMAIN IN AMERICA

The other day Mrs. Langtry arrived at the French capital, along with her retinue, with the intention of perfecting herself in the dramatic art under the guidance of the veteran professor of acting, M. Regnier. Her retinue was smaller when she first came than it was during her American tour, but it has at length been increased to its normal size by the appearance of who has suddenly, but, as intimated above, not unexpectedly arrived in Paris. Whether he, too, intends to study for the stage under M. Regnier is not yet known, but the newspaper writers have already begun to evince great interest in the English beauty and the millionaire American, and it is likely that young Mr. Gebhardt will succeed in his evident attempt to acquire an European reputation.

Senator Allison of Iowa, Mounts the Prohibition Steed—His Aspirations.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, September 15.—When Congress adjourned last spring the Iowa Republicans went home believing that if Mr. Blaine was not himself a candidate for President he would throw his influence in favor of Senator Allison. Meanwhile Allison has considered himself in training. He had for sometime studied his course in the Senate by not committing himself on dangerous questions. The mistake of trotting him out a year or more in advance it was intended to avoid, but the cold wave which passed over Iowa last fall had a chilling effect, and threatened to so benumb Senator Allison before the race that he could not regain sufficient activity to enter the struggle at all; nor is the danger passed. Iowa as the Republican Gibraltar is not what she was. Allison's proportions are comparatively diminished.

THERE IS ANOTHER CAUSE

of doubt with the Republicans. Senator Allison has mounted the Prohibition hobby, which has sent confusion into the ranks, and cleared off whole masses of voters who had stood firm. Allison, as a candidate, would invite the issue everywhere.

"It may be a good thing to do in Iowa," say Republicans, extending their gaze over the field, "but it may give us trouble precisely where we would least wish to see it." The Republican, as such, is not the Prohibition party yet, they contend. When the time comes for abandoning its old ground for that of prohibition in the struggle for President, Mr. Allison may be a good enough candidate." But for his mistake in mounting the prohibition hobby," they continue, "he might be a good enough candidate, but the prohibition business changes the question."

Mr. Blaine's late observation that the Republican candidate would be taken from the West has this significance: It is highly entertaining for Logan.

Missouri News.

JEFFERSON CITY, September 15.—H. R. Knotwell of Knotwell, Mo., who was sentenced to one day in jail and given a light fine for cutting Government timber, objects to the sentence, has had it set aside and a plea of not guilty entered. The Rough Notes, a Democratic weekly, has been merged into the Tribune, Mr. John Meagher, the editor, taking the place of local editor of the Tribune. Thos. J. Delaney has been appointed Prosecuting Attorney of Greene County. Ambrose Bentley was pardoned yesterday—six months' sentence.

OUT OF SING SING.

From the Prison to the Farm—A Remarkable Thief.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

CHEEK TOWAGO, N. Y., September 15.—In the summer of 1879 a stranger appeared at the farm of Solon Bruce, near this place, for work. His hair was cropped close and his face was forbidding. He gave his name to the farmer and told him plainly that he had been discharged from Sing Sing only a short time, where he had been serving a sentence of two years for burglary. He said that he was desirous of leading an honest life and referred the farmer to the prison authorities. Mr. Bruce was struck with the man's apparent true repentance and told him he might remain at the farm until the prison authorities were heard from, and that if their report was good, he would be given work. The report was good and the man was put to work on the farm. He remained in the service of Mr. Bruce until last fall, having been during all that time

A FAITHFUL AND INDUSTRIOUS EMPLOYE.

He went by the name of Wilson, and said that he had been brought up as a pickpocket and thief from childhood. Last fall he made up his mind to go South. Nothing was heard from him until a few days ago, when Mr. Bruce received a letter from him. He was in Texas. He said in his letter that, as he might never come this way again, if Mr. Bruce would make a search in his chimney, that he would find several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry, which the writer had taken from people in the street in years past, and which he could not restore, as the identity of the owners could not be known. He told Mr. Bruce to dispose of it as he thought best. The farmer searched in the chimney and found at least $1,000 worth of gold rings, pins, watches, and other valuable jewelry. Not wishing to have anything to do he shipped it to Wilson. What puzzles the farmer is to know where and when his late employe obtained the jewelry, as it is not likely that he could have come from the prison with it on his person. It looks as if the reformed thief had been plying his former trade during visits which he made occasionally to Buffalo, Lockport, and other neighboring towns and cities while he was working on the farm.

WITH THE STOLEN PROPERTY

SENSIBLE TALK.

John Kelly's Speech Before a Tammany Hall Committee.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—Mr. John Kelly, in a speech before the Tammany Hall Committee on Organization, said that Irving Hall had accepted Tammany Hall's proposition for harmony in a friendly way. The Conference Committee had been appointed by Tammany Hall, with a sincere desire for the welfare of Democracy, not only of this city and State, but of the nation. Mr. Kelly here said that the State Committee had exceeded its authority at Saratoga. The Syracuse Convention recommended that there should be union primaries in New York to elect delegates to future conventions. The convention recommended and resolved that the State Committee should supervise the holding of the primaries. In fact, that they should be held under their supervision and auspices.

This meant that the committee should come to New York and have the primaries conducted under their auspices and supervision. The State Committee did not do this. The committee delegated its authority, if it had any, to the County Democracy. If its orders were obeyed, Tammany Hall and Irving Hall would virtually have to disband as organizations. They would have to surrender to the County Democracy, which would become the only Democratic organization. Mr. Kelly then said that divisions in the Democratic party in the past had led to defeat in the city, State and nation. The Democrats in the rural districts of the State were disheartened when there was not a union in New York. In 1881, there was a split of the party here. The Republicans won the big county offices. The County Democracy's candidate for surrogate and their ticket were third in the race. Tammany Hall polled a much larger vote than the County Democracy. The latter organization prided itself on its regularity. Regularity should mean the majority of votes in Democracy. The faction polling the largest vote should be recognized as regular by a Democratic convention. Mr. Kelly also gave it as his belief that the citizens' party was being reorganized for the purpose of joining hands with the County Democracy. It was decided that the call for the regular Tammany Hall primaries should be issued as heretofore by the district committees.

Aimee's Success—Improving a Theater—A Marriage—Stopped by a Sheriff.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—Aimee's success in Lecoq's "La Princesse Des Canaries" has been so great that it will be repeated at the Fifth Avenue every night next week.

"Francesca Da Rimini" has proved a great attraction at the Star, and Lawrence Barrett will produce it until further notice.

Mr. Charles Coghlan may be expected here from England. He is engaged to Mr. John Stetson at the Fifth Avenue for the season.

Mlle. Aimee says that our climate has somewhat affected her voice, but that it is now improving under careful treatment.

There is going to be a good deal done to the Academy of Music in the way of improvements.

"The Silver King Company," which will will include Miss Lillian Edgington, whose appear at the Grand Opera House next week, success as Miss Skinner, excels that of Agnes Elliott, who appeared in the part at Wallack's.

Miss Laura Pomeroy was married at Landhurst, Australia, August 4, to Mr. Arthur Elliot, a member of her company.

By the latest advice it is learned that Mr. Bandman is in Sidney, New South Wales, whacking away at "Romeo and Juliet," and plays of that ilk.

Mr. W. E. Sheridan and Miss Louise Davenport were to have left Australia by the last mail steamer, but were stopped by the sheriff, who was base enough to let the steamer go without them.

Mitchell and Madden Arrive in New York Yesterday.

A Meeting at Harry Hill's in Which Some Hot Words are Passed—The Fight Between Mitchell and Slade Had Been Mutually Agreed a Draw—A Dakota Dispatch.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The prize-fighting fraternity was disturbed to its very center yesterday by the announcement that Charles Mitchell and "Billy" Madden, his manager, had arrived in the city. Soon after their arrival Mitchell and Madden went to Harry Hill's resort and there met Jem Mace, H. A. Slade, "Hen" Rice, H. J. Montague, "Soap" McAlpine and sundry others. A discussion as to where the fight between Slade and Mitchell should take place was held, and after a wordy conflict between Madden and Rice of 10 minutes' duration, all the parties named adjourned to a room on the third floor of the building where a three hours' conclave was held. There, it is asserted that and exchanged conventionalities, and the wordy warfare between the managers was resumed. Madden alleged that the Slade party had used dishonest methods to induce Harry Hill to name New Orleans as the fighting ground, and the assertion was as indignantly denied by the representatives of the Maori. The secret conclave adjourned without a definite result. Late last night Mitchell and Madden met Harry Hill in a third-story parlor of his place, and there the discussion was renewed. The only parties present were Harry Hill, "Billy" Madden, Jere Dunn of Chicago, and a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH. At the request of Madden, article 23 of the new rules of the London prize ring was read. It says that "Should the fight be undecided on the day appointed, all bets shall be withdrawn, and should the adjournment be more than from Sunday to Sunday, the referee

SHALL APPOINT ANOTHER FIGHTING GROUND,

unless the fight should be mutually agreed a draw." Madden showed Hill that the fight had been mutually agreed a draw, and Harry Hill said he was satisfied that he had imposed on him when he made the vicinity of New Orleans, the fighting ground. Madden said that Mitchell would fight Slade anywhere but in the vicinity of New Orleans; anywhere on the blooming globe. Mr. Hill then showed the following telegram dated Pierre, Dak., September 14:

"Mitchell and Slade can fight within 5 miles of this place. Inducements to the parties can be offered if necessary. No molestation or official interference guaranteed. No change of cars between Chicago and here. Abundant hotel accommodation. Answer at our expense. [Signed] GLOVER & OWENS,
P. H. JOHNSTON."

To this Hill replied: "Matter undecided. Probably be settled Saturday evening; your proposition will be laid before the parties. What are your inducements?"

Lord Coleridge Remarks.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSFIELD, September 15.—"I don't often refer to anything biblical," said Baron Coleridge as he stepped off from his car at the depot yesterday afternoon, "but it seems as if I had seen a hundred representations of the burning bush between here and Dalton."

The sky had been cloudy, but with an occasional sunburst that fitfully lighted the sides of Grey Lock and the Taconics.

"No," he said, "I am satisfied that England has nothing more pleasingly picturesque than Berkshire."

THE POLICE BOARD.

Kerwin's Resignation Variously Discussed.

Some Rumors of Caucusing which are Emphatically Denied—Chats with the Police Commissioners.

The resignation of Daniel W. Kerwin continues to be the town talk, and speculation as to the causes that brought it about are as various in their forms as coral growths. A POST-DISPATCH reporter had a good long talk with Mr. Kerwin this morning, and he repeated his remarks of yesterday again and again, amplifying and illustrating, but not practically changing the subject matter. "When I went in there, the papers raised a howl, and said I would make a political force; that I would assess the houses of ill-fame and the saloons for a campaign fund. I did not do that, did I? I have not been approached formally by these men who claim to have the ear of the executive, but every time I went into the board I found their influence exerted. Some men make law, or medicine, or journalism a profession, and some take to a trade, and belonging to neither class there is a set that has sprung up in this country called lobbyists. That class has pestered the Police Board, and I have cut loose from a place where I could be worried by them. I hear the rumors that are in circulation, but I have resolved to pay no attention to them. I hear that some one held my resignation. I defy any one to produce it. Time will work out the whole thing and then the public will know I have retired to private life, and desire no trouble with any one. I will have nothing more say, let others do the talking."

Much more of this nature, all descriptive of a vague grievance, did Mr. Kerwin have to say. Dr. Lutz called in to see Mr. Kerwin while the reporter was there and the doctor requested the reporter several times not to forget to say that the relations between the members of the board were harmonious and pleasan in the extreme. A story was in circulation that shortly after, the trouble between Frank D. Turner and Chief Campbell, as to the money of J. H. G. Moore, an Iowa prisoner, which Campbell refused to deliver to Turner, on an order, that a caucus was held, attended by Kerwin, Caruth, Lutz, Joe McEntire, Ed Butler and Frank S. Turner, at which the latter three said that Campbell must go; that Caruth said that he was disappointed in Campbell; that Lutz coincided, and that Kerwin defended Campbell with much warmth, and that unpleasant relations followed, which culminated in Kerwin's resignation. Mr. Kerwin, when called upon, said that there was not a word of truth in any such statement. Dr. Lutz said it was an unmitigated lie. Ed. Butler said he never heard anything of the kind. Frank Turner said the money matter was all squared up within twenty-four hours.

COMMISSIONER CARUTH SAID:

"Let me say in the first place that I never attended any so-called 'caucus' at which members of the board, and Joe McEntire, Ed. Butler and Frank D. Turner were present. I never said at any time or place that Jack Campbell was not the man for the place or that I was disappointed in him. I know that he said to Dan Kerwin that he was sick and tired of the worry of the place, and wished himself back in his old place as captain of police in Carondelet. He also said the same thing to Dr. Lutz; at least the Doctor so says. I knew Campbell when he was a sergeant, and he used to call and see me frequently. When I got into the board he was a Captain, and when Kennett resigned, of all the candidates for the place he was the only one I knew, and I voted for him. He was down to see me yesterday, and I said to him: 'It is very strange, Jack, that you have never come and told me that you were dissatisfied and wished yourself back in a Captain's place. You have told it to Kerwin and Lutz and others, I now hear.' He said to me in answer: 'I did not think it necessary to come to you with my troubles. I knew you were my friend, and was not handling me like the others.' That is the only thing I know of bearing upon any proposition to restore him to a Captaincy, and that is nothing. As to his trouble with Frank Turner about any money. I know nothing whatever about it, and did not know anything of a suit until you mentioned the matter. No dependence can be placed in rumors, put in circulation by God knows who. I don't. Why, I have heard it stated that some one held my resignation with blank date over my head. No man who knows me would believe such a lie. I don't intend to resign, but shall go right along attending to my business."

THE SUIT

mentioned above is brought by Tom Harvey, for the law firm of Turner & Morris, and the petition simply sets out, in the usual verbiage, that said John W. Campbell illegally holds a package of paper, money, gold and silver, and valued at $2,400, assigned by J. H. G. Moore to plaintiffs. Judgment is admitted by defendant, and the case is set in Court-room No. 2, for trial during the ensuing term.

Dr. Leslie, whose name has figured as the probable successor of Kinkead, said, "I have no doubt in the world that John Campbell has been annoyed to death by these 'outside influences', mentioned by Dan Kerwin. I am an applicant for the Kinkead vacancy, and will state to you that my only reason for desiring a place on the board is to be in a position to protect Chief Campbell, who is an old and esteemed friend. I would sacrifice a great deal for him. I know him to be the soul of honesty, and he should be protected in his efforts to do right by the good people of St. Louis."

Another rumor that got into circulation was that Chief Campbell had forwarded charges against a commissioner to the Governor. The Chief gave this a most emphatic denial. He declined to talk about the situation, and said that he only had his own business to attend to. Kerwin said to him last night, "My resignation makes your position perfectly safe."

Faulkner of the Mounted Stables, when visited by a reporter, said, "It is not my business as a subordinate to discuss the action of my superiors."

Tom Hathaway, the Senator, was met at Ed. Butler's shop, and he declared Kinkead's statement that he was to be the ring candidate for Chief of Police the sheerest nonsense. It developes that when the new board formed that Caruth wanted Geo. Wright in Faulkner's place, and Kerwin wanted Thornton. A vote was had and each man got two votes. Faulkner was not mentioned. He simply held over. Kerwin fell in love with his management, but there has been no subsequent attempt to remove him.

Ed. Butler's opinion is that Kerwin simply got tired of the place, as it interfered too much with his business, and that that was the only reason for the resignation.

IT SURPRISED CRITTENDEN.

Dan Kerwin's Resignation—About his Successor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, September 15.—Governor Crittenden was called on this afternoon by your correspondent and interviewed regarding the resignation of Police Commissioner Dan Kerwin. When asked if he had read an interview published in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH that had passed between a reporter and Mr. Kerwin, in which the latter had intimated that his official life had been made a burden by outside parties seeking to manipulate his official powers, the Governor said he had read the article referred to, and the whole matter was incomprehensible to him, and he had no knowledge whatever concerning this subject. He said: "If the Police Board has been interfered with by outside parties or pressures I know nothing about it whatever. Of one thing I feel certain, and that is no dishonest results have been accomplished through that board." Regarding the resignation of Mr. Kerwin, the Governor said:

"It was a surprise to me, as I had no intimation of it whatever previous to receiving his letter of yesterday. Now," said the Governor, "this is all I know about that matter. The people in St. Louis know just as much as I do, and I have given you all the opinions I have on the subject. With reference to the appointment of a successor to Mr. Kerwin, I have not yet taken that matter under advisement."

BERTHA'S TREATMENT.

What Mr. Smith Has to Say About the Charges of Cruelty.

Mr. Smith, the father of the lost girl, was seen by a reporter to-day. He stated that he felt somewhat wronged at the statements which appeared in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH with reference to his treatment of his daughter. He said an erroneous impression was given by those allegations, as it would appear that he was cruel and brutal to her and treated her with undue severity at all times. He does not deny that he has always attempted to train his children in the way which he thought best for them, and, in pursuance of this plan, was compelled to punish them, but to say that he was too severe or treated them cruelly was not so. He never punished without good reason to do so. He had whipped Bertha, but not more than three times in the past year, and then always when she had disobeyed him after repeated warning. She was inclined to be disobedient and unruly. He had always given her permission to do what he thought was not harmful. He was teaching her music for her own good, and it was only right that she should be compelled to pay it proper attention. She had not asked him to let her stop it, but if she had he would have done so. Now, he knew that she had left home on account of the music and the treatment incidental to it, as stated in her letter. He had treated his other children in the same honest, firm way. As to her working, he said he was a poor man and all of the children were required to do some work about the house. Bertha had done some work in the rooms but had never been required to do washing of any kind.

AS TO GOING TO BED

she went when she pleased and had not been compelled to go at a certain hour. As far as his treatment was concerned he was away all of the day and nearly every night in the week attending to his duties, and he could not have been continually mistreating her as averred by the parties. He did not think that he ought to manage his family anyhow in accordance with the ideas of any one and every one, and so far as the parties boarding at the house were concerned he did not think they were in the house enough to know much about it. As far as they were concerned, also, he thought it queer that they had said nothing about this before, and the only reason he could think of that they had for making such statements was the fact that they had been requested to vacate their rooms for reasons best known to themselves. He claimed to be an honorable man and paid his just debts, which some other parties did not do. He was willing that his family or any of the business men in the city with whom he associated should testify to his conduct. Theodore, a son of Mr. Smith's, about 16 years of age, corroborated his father's statement with regard to Bertha's treatment. Mr. Smith said that the couple on Finney avenue had sympathized with Bertha in what she considered her ill treatment, just as many girls think who are not allowed to do just as they please, and that his wife was of the firm belief that this couple knew of the whereabouts of Bertha. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith wish it stated that they are perfectly willing to allow Bertha to stop her music if she will return home, or to remain where she is if she so desires, if with respectable Christian people and will make known her whereabouts.

A TEMPLE OF WONDERS.

The Opening of Gregory's New Museum at No. 13 South Fifth Street.

Gregory's Fifth Street Museum opened this afternoon at 1 o'clock with a number and variety of attractions that promise to draw the public. The house, which is at No. 13 South Fifth street, has been touched up outside and entirely redecorated in the interior. The three large halls are now excellently appointed, and Manager Gregory says he will keep them well stocked with human and mechanical curiosities. The opening attractions in the museum department include Miss Anna A. Nelson, the fairy midget of Kentucky; Gen. Totman, the king of midgets; Peter and Mary Bunyan, the giant twins of Illinois; the Fiji family, with several genuine cannibal children; Ella Harper, the young lady with four arms, and Prof. Bonbright's new and original Punch and Judy show. In the theatorium, where an effort will be made to keep the performances novel, refined and attractive, a splendid bill is announced for the opening. The Dove family, consisting of Harry, Laura, Tom and Lizzie, will appear in character sketches. The three Dashingtons will do their Lancashire and statue clogs, while Master Albert Dashington will appear in his champion silver sand jig. Charles Young, ventriloquist; the Price Brothers, Dutch specialty artists, and Anne Nelson, the midget, in songs and musical specialties, are also numbered among the stage attractions. Mr. Rodney S. Wise, who was manager of the same house last season, looks after its interests at present and Mr. J. H. Perkins, the well-known lecturer, will describe the curiosities at each exhibition. The place opens at 1 p. m. daily and closes at 10 p. m. A stage performance is given every hour, and the curiosities are in place from the opening to the closing of the museum.

The Dime Museum has of late become an important amusement feature of all large cities. First-class curiosities gathered from all parts of the world are shown week after week, and stage entertainments, into which the best class of performers are introduced, are given. The admission fee is within the means of all, and for the poorer classes of citizens against whom high-priced theaters are closed, the Dime Museum is a source of pleasure which they can and do fully appreciate. Gregory's Fifth Sreet Musium is one of the best in the country.

A Popular Demonstration To-night.

About 6 o'clock this evening a popular entertainment, in which Democrats and Republicans, parties of all creeds can meet on the level of good will and sociability, will begin at No. 3701 Kossuth avenue, on the north side of the Fair Grounds. The presiding genius and host of the occasion will be James Sweeny, one of the most popular citizens of North St. Louis, who for several weeks past has been preparing for this event. He has fitted up a saloon in most elegant style, and judging from the handsome fittings, the splendid lunch that has been prepared, the band that has been engaged, and all other arrangements, those who fail to attend to-night will have reason to regret it. The invitation is general.

How $2 Made $65,000 in Three Days.

Dink Davis Says it Was "Dead Luck" That Did It—Barbers Invariably Make Successful Gamblers—Shaving Faro Banks.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 16.—Mr. Dink Davis, looking as bright and natty as ever, was eating his breakfast at the lunch counter of the Brower House yesterday morning, when a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH asked him to what extent Dame Fortune has recently smiled on him at the gaming table:

"Oh; I'm busted; cleaned out; made away with," he replied, with a gay laugh. "Why, you've published my obituary. I believe all the papers in New York have, and I ought really to oblige them by having myself decently interred instead of walking around in broad daylight, as I might say, to their statement. Do you know that the accounts of any winnings I have made have singled me out as a target to go for by every wielder of the dice-box and shuffler of cards in the country? Now, my tip in the future is going to be that I'm dead broke. I'm going to put a marker in for this meal."

A PERAMBULATING REFUTATION,

"You've made a big strike recently, haven't you?" asked the reporter.

"No, but I can tell you about some others who have. There's Pat Sheedy. A couple of weeks ago he went to the Cleveland races with only a $2 bill in his pocket. He put it up against the bank which follows the races on their circuit. He made a haul of $900 the first play, and

IN TWO DAYS WON $35,000.

That's what I call dead luck. And it didn't desert him. He came on here and added $30,000 to his winnings last night. He showed me $42,000. Pat owns a share in the finest house in Chicago. His partners are Bush, Johnson and Hines."

"What sort of a man is he?"

"A tall, handsome-looking fellow, with a black mustache. He is about 31 years old, weighs 210 pounds and is married. His dress is of the nobbiest style and he changes it three times a day. You can add, which is a fact, that Pat used to keep a barber shop in Hartford, where he shaved many a customer. He now confines his attention to

SHAVING FARO BANKS.

"Is there any special reason why a barber should make a successful gambler?"

"None that I know of, and yet there's Henry Bahm of Syracuse, better known as 'Dutch Hank,' who also used to keep a second-class barber shop in Cheyenne, W. T. He is to-day worth $200,000. He has three faro banks, a large beer brewery and a sporting house in the city in which he resides. 'Hank' never passes his word without making it good to the minute and he is very liberal towards his friends. I'll let you in the secret of how he gains all his money. He wins it by making faces fast. I assure you when a fellow is betting heavily against the bank 'Hank' suddenly screws up his left eye and then the players lose sure pop."

Something Worth Seeing

A POST-DISPATCH reporter ran against Mr. Martindale, of Martindale & Panle, Eighth and Pine streets. He has just returned from Texas, and gives a glowing account of business prospects there. He secured numbers of orders for suits from tasteful Texans. The firm is crowded with orders and have made some of the most artistic and elegant suits ever turned out in St. Louis. They have just received an additional large assortment of suitings of the latest and most stylish patterns which it is worth any one's while, who cares anything for dress, to inspect. Some of their completed suits are exquisite in cut and workmanship.

The Reuss Failure—County Officials After the Gamblers—Notes.

The statement of the affairs of Reuss & Co. will be filed in the Recorder's office Monday. John Thomas and Tom Stern, the engineer of the mill, have each put into the hands of the Sheriff an execution for the sum of $2,000 each. Mr. Hucke, a prominent hardware merchant here, is on their paper to the amount of $33,000, and Fred. Sunkel, the manager of the mill here, is said to have indorsed to the extent of $50,000. The transactions on the day of the assignment looked fishy. They filed a mortgage to the German Savings Institution of St. Louis on Wednesday at 11:45 a. m., for $10,000, executed by Louis Sunkel & Co., on the Smithton Elevator; the filing of a similar instrument executed by Geo. H. Braun in favor of Wm. Meister, on the Marrisa property at noon, and the filing of an assignment of F. A. Reuss & Co. to George Lang, an employe, at 12:20 p. m, Sheriff Ropiequet has taken possession of 2,500 barrels of flour, besides shipstuff, cooperage, wagons and teams, over which there will be litigation between the Belleville and St. Louis claimants. The firm has been dealing to great a extent in options, and are considered hopelessly swamped. The farmers since they have heard of the failure have come into town and presented bills for wheat not paid for.

The county officials have taken the gambling in East St. Louis in hand, and sent a special detective from Belleville a few days since to look into the affair. The detective this morning stated that he was positive Messrs. Tarrance and Ames were running a brace game of faro in the Livingstone building on the island, and he had in his possession evidence sufficient to convict both Tarrance and Ames, and several East St. Louis officials. When pressed for further information on the subject, detective intimated that an indictment would be returned, but did not like to mention names till the Grand Jury made their report, early next week.

McKendree College, at Lebanon, will commence its fall term next Thursday.

The Turners of this vicinity will give a grand celebration at Mascoutah to-morrow.

Henry Lenz, a miner at Renecke mines, was severely injured last evening by three boxes of coal falling upon him.

The members of the Baptist Church will hold an important business meeting to-morrow, at which the annual report of the treasurer will be read.

James H. Gould vs. Thomas J. Henessey.

Leontine Smith, by next friend, vs. Mound City Railway Company; damages for personal injuries.

Ann Leonard vs. John O'Brien, trustee.

A CAUSE CELEBRE.

Mrs. Wackerle's Litigation With the Mutual Life to be Reopened.

An effort will be made at the next term of the United States Circuit Court here, which convenes on Monday, to reopen the Walburger-Wackerle case. The story of Mrs. Wackerle's legal warfare with the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York was made familiar to the readers of the newspapers during the term of the court here last fall. It terminated in a verdict for the plucky little woman, and on October 3, of last year she secured a judgment against the company for $6,206. It was thought this would end the matter, but to-day there was filed in the office of the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court, on behalf of the insurance company, a petition for a rehearing of the famous suit. The attorneys who have been retained by the company are Messrs. Glover and Shepley of this city, and Judge John F. Dillon, H. S. Greene and Gen. W. Swayne, of New York.

Death of Mrs. A. S. Merritt.

Mrs. A. S. Merritt died last evening at the residence of Mrs. Jennings, 3631 Cooke avenue, this city. Mrs. Merritt was about 60 years of age, and was widely known and respected, having come to St. Louis in 1850 with her husband. Mr. Merrit went into the hotel business and kept the City Hotel for several years, then for many years the old Everett House, and afterwards opened the St. James, where he died, leaving an estate valued at over $200,000 After his death Mrs. Merritt retained the management of the St. James for some years, and was known as one of the best hotel landladies in the country. She has a very large circle of acquaintances who deeply deplore her loss.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Jennings at 2 p. m. Monday next.

Wants $10,000 for Fees.

Presley N. Jones, who defended Charles F. Kring during the last years of his life, has sued Fred H. Kring, the father of his late client, for $10,000 for legal services. The petition alleges that the plaintiff was employed by the defendant to defend Charles Kring, and that his services in that behalf are reasonably worth the amount asked.

America's Immigrants.

WASHINGTON, September 15.—The report of the Commissioners of Immigration of the State of New York show that 363,374 immigrants landed at the port of New York from August 3, 1882, to June 30, 1883, inclusive. The largest number landed in any one month, 69,593, was in May, 1883, and the smallest 8,343 in January of the same year. The duty imposed on the Board of returning paupers and persons unable to take care of themselves to other ports has been carefully exercised, and a large number of undesirable persons have been sent back.

The Jerseyville club goes to Louisiana Mo. to play the Red Stockings next Sunday, the 16th.

HUGH HASTINGS' FUNERAL.

The Last Tribute to the Dead Journalist—The Pall-Bearers.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The funeral of Hugh J. Hastings, late editor and proprietor of the Commercial Advertiser, took place this morning from St. Leo's Church. It was largely attended by many of the most prominent citizens. The remains were placed at the head of the center aisle in front of the altar, which was draped in black. Floral offerings were abundant and rich in design, many of the pieces being sent by employes of the Commercial. The church was by far too small to accommodate one-half of those who came to pay the last tribute of respect to the dead journalist. The attaches of the Commercial were present in a body. A low requiem mass was celebrated by Fathers Ducey and Tole, and the former delivered a brief but impressive address eulogizing the memory of the deceased. The pall-bearers were President Arthur, Roscoe Conkling, Hugh J. Jewett, Jay Gould, Samuel Sloan, Gen. Eckert, Jenkins Van Schaick, Wm. G. Weed, of Albany; Isaac W. England, J. Nelson Tappan and John Hoey. The remains were taken to Albany for interment.

A Falling Elevator.

CHICAGO, September 15.—The freight elevator in the Boston store fell this morning from the third floor. The elevator boy jumped through the doorway in time to save himself. QUINCY, September 15.—The fair closed yesterday after a most successful week. Exhibitors presented the officers with testimonials.

FOR MALICIOUS DEFAMATION.

A Catholic Priest Brings Suit Against the New York Herald.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—Father John Maguire, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary at Hunter's Point, has begun an action against the New York Herald to recover $50,000 damages for alleged libel. The complaint sets up that on August 9, 1883, the defendant maliciously composed and published concerning the plaintiff the false and defamatory matter following:

"While boarding at the house of a member of his flock, Father Maguire made a tour of the parish, soliciting aid

FROM ALL THE CATHOLIC RESIDENTS.

He made arrangements to have weekly collections, many persons guaranteeing to give regular contributions until the church debt was paid. Out of this trouble has arisen. Father Maguire has recently denounced from the altar, in general terms, persons who have fallen behind in their subscriptions, and it has been a matter of common rumor in the congregation that he refused the last rites of the Church to a man who, in a fit of sickness, which it was expected would prove fatal, asked his ministrations. It is further alleged that for the amount of money he had promised, and was then granted the last sacraments. It is added that the sick man recovered."

The plaintiff charges that said defendant caused it to be believed that he, plaintiff, had been guilty of gross misconduct and violation of his duty as a priest of the Catholic church, of refusing to administer the sacrament to a member who was supposed to be in extremes, and did use his sacred office for the purpose of compelling such sick person to sign said paper before he would administer to him the sacred rites to which he was entitled. That by reason of the publication of such false and defamatory matter the plaintiff has been greatly injured in his reputation and good name as such priest, to his damage, $50,000.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, September 15.—For the South Atlantic States, light local rains, partly cloudy and slightly warmer weather, winds mostly from north to east, stationary or lower barometer. For the Gulf States, partly cloudy weather with light local rains, easterly to southerly winds; nearly stationary temperature, stationary or lower barometer. For the Tennessee and the Ohio valley, warmer and fair weather, winds generally from east to south, lower barometer. For the Lower Lake region, slightly warmer, fair weather, east to south winds, lower barometer. For the Upper Lake region, light local rain, partly cloudy weather, southeast to southwest winds, lower barometer, nearly stationary temperature. For the Upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, slight local rains, partly cloudy weather, southerly to northerly winds, nearly stationary temperature and in the Mississippi Valley lower barometer. The river will change slightly.

Poisoned by Eating Canned Beef.

PITTSBURG, PA. September 15.—Richard Brown and wife and four children while at supper ate heartily of canned corned beef, and about an hour later all were attacked with violent pains in the stomach, accompanied by vomiting. A physician was called in, who pronounced the symptoms those of poisoning. Wesley Brown, aged 12, grew rapidly worse and died at 3 o'clock this morning. The other members of the family are still in a serious condition, but it is thought they will recover. The coroner is holding an inquest.

Denies the Motion.

ST. ALBANS, VT., September 15.—Judge Wheeler, of the United States Court, rendered his decision in the case of Roland G. Hazard vs. the American Loan and Trust Company, in an application for an injunction restraining the latter from issuing bonds of the Consolidated Railroad Company of Vermont in exchange for stock of the Vermont and Canada Company. Wheeler denies the motion for injunction.

Railroad Accident.

WILLIMANTIC, CONN., September 15.—The fourth section of a freight bound west on the New York and New England, met the first section of No. 16 freight bound east, a mile from here at 12:15 this morning. Both engines and eleven cars of merchandise were wrecked. Frank Crowell, a brakeman, was hurt about the head. Disobedience of orders was the cause. The conductor of the westbound train has disappeared.

Our New Signal Code.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The new official danger, distress and storm signal code for the Signal Service of the sea coast stations and mariners has just been published by the Chief Signal Service officer at Washington, with full instructions for day and night signaling. It also contains a chart of the Life-Saving Service and day and night signal code, with instructions. This system has been long needed. The flag system, it is well known, has been in use a number of years, but it has never been arranged in such a form as to be useful for signaling between stations on shore and vessels at sea. The night signal system of this code, as adopted by the service, is the invention of Benjamin F. Coston, whose widow perfected the same for use in our navy during the war. His son, William F. Coston, has introduced it in a wider field, viz., in commercial as well as naval marines. The Coston night signals have been adapted to the signals of the international code. In using these lights letters of the international code are made by a burned signal, or combined light, corresponding to the letter. Intervals of twenty seconds will be made between the letters of any combination, and intervals of one minute between the combinations when more than one is required to signal any message.

FRANK JAMES.

A Pen Portrait of the Bandit as He Looked at the Trial.

From the Atchison Champion.

It was a remarkable figure throughout. Quite slender, emaciated in fact; with long arms and legs, and a slender waist, conveying, one would say, rather the idea of a professional man; but the face was one among ten thousand, and one never to be forgotten—long, thin, worn, not with disease, but watchfulness, long travel, suspicion and anxiety; with a restless, thin-lipped mouth, that was never still; a short, sharp chin, that rose and fell, and occasionally seemed to close up and disappear under the thin, sickly looking, yellowish moustache, so that moustache, lips and chin were blended in one. Grey eyes, with changing shades, that betrayed various feelings, but never kindness; and most remarkable of all, a long, large nose that dominated over his face; not a Jewish, nor a Roman, nor a Greek nose, but a nose by itself, not exactly human; a nose like a fox's or a wolf's. Straight back, sloping at an angle; almost as great as that of the nose, was a forehead, smooth, white, and broad, which, had it been upright, would have been a fine feature, but it lay down, so to speak, after the cruel fashion one sees in cats, leopards, tigers, wolves, and the baser and crueler sorts of carniverous animals. Across the forehead was a long, thread like scar, perceptible only on close inspection, and said to have been made in childhood. There was, to make the face more singular, deep depressions below the temples. The mass of rather small head was behind and above the ears; but not immediately behind them, so as to give the thick neck common in the lower order of animals; on the other hand, the neck was long, slender and sinewy, and quite fair, and displayed by a turning collar. The complexion was hard to describe; it was doubtless bleached from confinement, and might become bronze from exposure in the sun. The thin, fine brown hair, and the color of the moustache, indicated a blonde: there were dusky spots, as if the man had a black skin dimly showing through a white one.

The face was one to be studied and studied again, and then might tell very little. His occupation, for instance, could hardly be guessed. A half dozen suggested themselves to the writer, and were discarded. But whatever they were the idea of dishonor, treachery and wickedness was associated with each. A confidence man; a sneak gambler (to which the long slender fingers gave credence); a wandering dentist, using chloroform to debauch his female patrons; an intermittent schoolmaster of limited education and villainous tendencies; a shover of counterfeit money, but not a maker of it; a clerical deadbeat. There was nothing bold or brave, or manly or open, about the face; nothing of the hero, even of the cheapest sort, about it. And yet, when the singular combination of mouth, nose, moustache and chin, of which we have spoken, took place, a shadow of infernal cruelty stole over the whole countenance, to the roots of the hair and the edges of the ears.

ATTACKING AN EDITOR.

An Enraged Illinois Politician—No Blood Shed.

Special Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, September 15.—This morning a very exciting episode occurred in the office of the Daily Evening Leader, in which Hon. John H. Oberly, editor of the Bulletin, and a prominent Democratic politician of the State, appeared on the scene with a loaded six-shooter. Oberly, since his terrible defeat in the race for the office of Secretary of State, has a new-born ambition after office, and is beginning to loom up as a Democratic candidate for Governor. He has been for weeks waylaying the rural newspaper publishers for the purpose of an Oberly boom. The Leader last evening contained a short article, which spoke of Oberly as a defunct Democratic politician and a failure as a successful journalist. This, it seems, so stirred up the most intense wrath in the bosom of the honorable John, that he armed himself with a revolver, and about 9:30 o'clock this morning entered the office of the Leader and threatened to shoot Mr. C. M. Leek, a well-known journalist of Central Illinois. Leek exhibited considerable courage and seemed ready to defend himself, this succeeded in quieting Oberly and he left in a short time after without a single shot being fired. The affair created considerable excitement in the city owing to the prominence of the parties.

Grain Elevator Fire.

TOLEDO, OHIO, September 15.—A grain elevator at Elmore, Ohio, owned by Magee & Pofenbach, was destroyed this morning, together with its contents. Loss $10,000; insurance $7,500.

An Illegal Body.

YANKTON, D. T., September 15.—Judge Edgarton decides that the Capital Commission is an illegal body, and his order ousts them from their positions, with costs upon them.

Daily Fire Record.

At 10:56 last night a blaze burst out in the one and two-story brick and frame buildings No 2716 Manchester Road. The fire originated in the paint shop in the second story, and totally destroyed the upper part of the building. The loss on the stock was slight, and was insured for $500 in the Jefferson, Montreal. The fire spread to the two-story frame building owned by F. K. Wind and occupied by John Kerby, a blacksmith. The upper portion and the rear of the building were badly damaged. The building was insured for $800 in the Westchester of New York. The roof of the two-story brick building, 2720 Manchester Road, was also badly damaged. The building is owned by the Jos. Schneider Brewery Company, and occupied by Henry Jacobs as a saloon and dwelling. Insured for $500 in the Jefferson Mutual. There was a small loss on the furniture. The two-story brick building, 2714, owned by Mrs. Hugh Gramminger, was damaged in the rear. Insured for $2,000 in the Franklin Mutual.

At 6:53 last evening, Engine Company No. 15 extinguished a fire in the five-story brick building, No. 115 S. Main street, occupied by the St. Louis Wire Works. The cause of the fire was a heated boiler. Insurance not ascertained. Damage slight.

Some boys set fire to some hay in the two-story frame stable of No. 2826 Laclede avenue at 1:30 o'clock last night. The roof was badly damaged. The stables is owned by Mrs. Fairbridge, and used by Pat Newman. No insurance.

Public School Matters.

Prof. E. A. Haight, principal and proprietor of the Glendale Boys' School, located in St. Louis County, is in the city. He reports the number in attendance is nearly double that of last year. Pupils are constantly arriving from Texas and other States. The new school buildings are completed and ready for occupancy.

The St. Louis Female Seminary, located at Jennings, St. Louis County, has just opened with a goodly number in attendance. A new and commodious school building has just been finished. This is the tenth year of Prof. Biewett's management.

Prof. Robert Haight, superintendent of the public schools of Alton, Ill., is in the city, and reports growing interest in the educational work at Alton.

The subject of manual training, first introduced in this country at Washington University of this city, is receiving universal attention from all the largest cities throughout the country. Cleveland, Ohio, and Detroit, Mich., are corresponding and visiting the representative educationalists of the city, with a view of adopting the method used in St. Louis, with some slight modifications.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE ladies of St. Bridget's parish have announced a festival for October 24th and 25th.

"THE Critical Moment" is the subject which Dr. Rhodes of St. Mark's Lutheran Church has chosen for Sunday evening.

JOHN T. BRADY, a brother to Hugh Brady, was fined $100 in the Second District Police Court to-day for carrying brass knuckles.

A CALICO dress ball will be given by the Jackson Council, No. 105, on Monday, at the Masonic Hall, corner Seventh and Market streets.

THE Rev. Mr. Sears of East St. Louis will deliver his farewell sermon to-morrow morning at 10:30. His subject in the evening will be "The wants and prospects of East St. Louis."

THERE are no new developments in the Churchill case, and the search for her is at a standstill. The clews and theories have all been worked out and there is nothing to be done now except to wait until something turns up.

THERE will be services in the St. James Episcopal Church to-morrow morning and night. The Rev. Gardiner C. Tucker will preach at both services. His subject for the morning will be "The design of suffering."

DR. FRANKLIN has just performed an interesting and successful operation upon a gentleman from near Sedalia in this State. He had already been operated upon three time without benefit. The patient returns home on Tuesday next, cured.

MRS. A. S. MERRITT, wife of the first proprietor of the St. James Hotel, and after her husband's death manager of the hotel for several years, died yesterday at the residence of Mrs. Jennings, 3637 Cooke avenue. Mrs. Merritt was about 58 years of age.

MR. J. A. KIESELHORST has removed his piano establishment from 2706 Market street to 1111 Olive street. Mr. Kieselhorst has fitted up his new quarters in elegant style, and is prepared to furnish his customers with the best that he can obtain in his line.

HUGH GORMAN, who led the trouble with Officer Harry Walker at Fifth and Biddle streets, on July 2, and was shot in the right hand by the officer, was fined $10 in the Second District Police Court to-day—$5 for disturbing the peace and $5 for resisting Officer Walker.

MR. ARTHUR FLEISHER has arrived at Cedar Keys with the steamer Bertha Lee, belonging to the Kissimme-Okeechobee Company. This company has been formed by St. Louisans for the transportation of passengers and freight on the Kissimme River. Mr. Ed. Douglas is president, and Mr Arthur Fleisher secretary.

THE semi-annual election of the Enterprise Social Club resulted in the choice of the following officers: President, William Cahill; vice-president, William Vahle; Treasurer, John Ried; financial secretary, G. Oberhopman; recording secretary, H. Miller; seargeant-at-arms, F. Weidig. Directors: H. Meyer, H. Smith, G. Deniss.

Mr. Walter C. Douglass will preach to-morrow morning and evening at the Glasgow Avenue Presbyterian Church. This will close Mr. Douglass' temporary work with this church, as he goes Monday evening to the Colorado State Convention, and upon his return will concentrate his attention upon the Y. M. C. A. work for the fall and winter.

THE races at the St. Louis Swimming School for the benefit of Mr. Alois Kist take place to-morrow. The first race is six lengths of the basin, for boys under 16, for a silver medal. The second event is for scholars under 14, for a silver goblet. The third race is a free for all, for a fine gold medal. The best diver will also receive a gold medal. After these contests there will be an exhibition of fancy swimming and diving, for which the best talent in the city have volunteered.

THE St. Louis Choral Society, after a successful organization for three seasons, enters upon its fourth season with flattering prospects. The society proposes to give four concerts, and offers associate memberships at $10 each. These memberships entitle the holders to three tickets to each concert, making twelve in all. The Chorus now numbers 200, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Outten, and will be accompanied by a well-trained orchestra. Communications should be addressed to Miss Ella Fenby, secretary, 3116 Lucas avenue.

AT a meeting of the Pedagogical Society held in the rooms of the Public School Directors this morning, Prof. Leo A. Stager, principal, and editor of Deutches Organ der Sauver Schulen, gave a very learned lecture on "The Natural Method of Teaching German, French and Italian." About thirty professors were present. Some animated discussions followed the lecture, in which the views of the learned lecturer seemed to be handled with some criticism, a few of the professors urging the impracticability of learning a foreign language accurately without the constant environments of social life to aid in the definite construction of speech.

THE congregation of the Church of All Saints, formerly known as the Church of the Good Samaritan, will hold their first service in their new church, corner Twenty-third and Washington avenue, to-morrow. The church will be blessed at an early hour in the morning. At 11 o'clock there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion, with sermon. The Rt. Rev. C. F. Robertson, Bishop of the Diocese, will be the celebrant, assisted by the rector, Rev. Cassius M. C. Mason, Rev. Jos. T. Wright and Rev. —— Murphy. Evening prayer will be said at 8 o'clock. Rev. Geo. C. Betts of Trinity Church will preach the sermon.

That Parody.

From the Louisville Commercial.

A charming little book, "A Parody on the House that Jack Built," comes to us with flowing rhymes and brilliantly illuminated pages. It illustrates how "great oaks from little acorns grow," so to speak and is as instructive as it is entertaining. A copy can be procured by inclosing a 3-cent stamp to the Corticelli Silk Company, St. Louis, Mo.

WE advise all our readers to take Maguire's Quinine and Iron. A No. 1 tonic.

CITY PERSONALS.

Miss Mary A. Kelley is at Cincinnati visiting her brothers and attending the exposition.

H. A. De Prez will return from an eight months' visit to Europe to-night. He crossed in the Amerique.

J. C. Henderson and Wm. Masterson of Galveston, Texas, are in the city, stopping at the Southern.

Mrs. Col. Joseph Hill and her two daughters, Misses Mary and Josie, have returned from their summer jaunt to the watering places.

Mr. Dickinson Brugman leaves to-night for Little Rock, Ark., accompanied by his family, who will remain South until the beginning of Fair Week.

Mr. S. A. Felton of Texarkana, Texas, arrived in the city on Monday last, and has taken rooms at the southeast corner of Garrison and Easton avenues, as she expects to remain here until the middle of November.

Mrs. Fred G. Berger has just returned from a five months' tour on the Pacific coast, and is visiting her mother, Mrs. S. Morgan of North St. Louis. Miss Mamie Morgan is also in the city. Both will remain until after the marriage of their mother, which will occur early in October.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hanalan, the parents of A. H. Hanalan, jr., of the firm of M. M. Buck & Co., will arrive this evening from Cincinnati on a visit to the city for a few weeks. Capt. Hanalan, formerly known as Capt. Hour Hanalan, is one of the pioneer river men of the Western waters.

Forest Park Drives Sprinkled.

Forest Park is thoroughly sprinkled every day, and the boulevards are the pleasantest in the country, especially those sweeping up towards the Forest Park Restaurant, where a delightful drive is supplemented by an enjoyment of the delicacies of the season, and all manner of refreshments, as provided by the prince of caterers, Col. C. W. Herbert.

ILLUSTRATED books containing sixty pages, with full instructions "How to use Florence Knitting Silk," will be sent to any address on receipt of two three-cent stamps. Address Corticelli Silk Office, St. Louis.

THE twenty words for ten-cent columns of the POST-DISPATCH is the best and cheapest medium for making known your wants. Try it.

IMITATIONS of Florence Knitting Silk are worthless for hosiery. In washing they not only streak, but become wiry and harsh.

The Markets.

FORENCON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 P. M.

Compared with last week, the stock of wheat here this morning is 124,400 bu larger, stock of corn is 56,500 bu smaller, of oats 53,700 bu larger, and of rye 16,000 bu larger. The withdrawals from elevator for past week were as follows: Wheat 109,053 bu for city milling, 257,162 bu for rail, and 26,000 bu for river. Shipments: Corn—28,280 bu for city use, 116,283 bu for rail, and 196,644 bu for river. Shipments: Oats—37,368 bu for city use, 3,134 bu for rail, and 32,019 bu for rivershipment.——W. S. Bartley has been offering in this market 1,000 boxes longs and shorts for Dec. at 6, 1,000 boxes shoulders for Dec. at 4, 1,000 tcs lard at 7.87½, and three lots of 500 boxes each of D. S. hams at 7 for year, Dec. and Jan, but he can find no buyers. The same unsatisfactory conditions prevail in the provision trade on the other side of the water. Mr. Bartley's Antwerp correspondent writes him that the demand is very limited and he can effect no sales.——A telegram from Atchison, Kas., reports a fine rain last night and weather to-day warm and cloudy.——"That sawed off Joombo do be after tellin' me there was a good thing in cor-rn," remarked Mike Cooney; "an' sez I to him, sez I," with a grin and a wink, "sure an' there is Mister Joombo. 'Tis whisky."——The Atchison, Kan., Champion says: "A prominent railway official of this State, in a conversation the other day about Kansas, said to us that the railways of the State could not, with their present rolling stock, haul out the products of Kansas for the year 1883 in two full years. He stated that he had made calculations, based on official reports, which demonstrated this conclusion. Every railroad in the State has more business offered it than it can haul. It is even now utterly impossible to supply the demands for cars that come in daily, and yet the crops of 1883 have hardly commenced to move. None of the corn has been harvested, and vast quantities of wheat, oats, rye and barley are yet in stack."——This same paper says there is 7,000,000 bushels old corn in Butler County. Oh, suffering Kansas!——Theo. G. Bartholow & Co. say their traveling man writes them that the corn in Southern Missouri and Kansas is all cut and shocked. They also state that a party in Rogers, Ark., has asked them if it was safe to buy corn at 20c per bushel, with a freight rate to St. Louis of 20c per 100 lbs.——A couple of telegrams were received here early this morning from St. Louis parties now in Chicago, asking if there were any failures in the grain trade here; that rumors to that effect were circulating in Chicago. A prompt and emphatic denial was wired back in answer. This is the second time Chicago has tried to shake confidence in St. Louis merchants' financial condition. It is about time she stopped lying about a sister city, and attend to her own shaky financial state.——If Chicago merchants keep on bulling wheat and corn they won't have a chamber to transact their business in.——A prominent city miller and exporter of flour says that the markets of England and Scotland are full of flour and the holders do not know where to turn to dispose of it.——The receipts of wheat at the six principal markets of this country for the past week were 1,500,000 bu in excess of the shipments from these points. The next visible supply will probably be in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 bu.——Now that the sun has had a good fair chance at the chickens for several days, eggs have commenced to weaken off.

Another header was taken by wheat to-day, and though the sun above was shining, yet the market showed no signs of reappearance. There has been more panicky markets than that of to-day, but seldom has there been such uninterrupted depression and weakness as prevailed. It seemed impossible to rally the market. Prices would recover a small fraction for a few moments, and then down they would go again. The tenor of European advices was extremely depressing. All their markets were dull and heavy and wheat to arrive and off coast was 3@9d lower. There was no falling off perceptible in receipts at the principal points, the weather was clear and warm throughout the West, and all the leading speculative centers were very weak and lower. The bull element (and there is not much of it left here just now) made no attempt to sustain values, and as sellers outnumbered buyers it was a lagging market from the opening to the close, which was 1⅜@1⅛c below yesterday's close. Corn futures could not stand the fine weather, the glowing reports from the fields, dull and easier cables and bearish reports from all the markets; and when on top of all this came the break in wheat then corn weakened and declined. Only that operators were trading very cautiously, and there was a steady demand (mainly for year) from shorts, it is probable a more decided decline would have taken place than there did, but as it was there was a considerable loss in value, especially in the near months. After the last call not much was done and the close was dull, showing declines of 1¼ for September and May, 1⅜ for October, 1 for November and ¾ for year from yesterday's close. Oats were better sustained than anything else, but they too were weak and ⅛@¼ lower, except May, which showed no change. Cash wheat, of course, was largely lower, but sold readily. City millers bought quite freely of No. 2 red, Eastern shippers continuing to take the lower grades. Cash corn was lower, with a good demand for No. 2 mixed and all other grades scarce. Cash oats declined, but was in good demand.

Rye was dull and lower to sell, the decline in wheat and paucity of offerings causing buyers to hold off. The best bids were 52 for No. 2, and 46½ for rejected.

Flour—Market very quiet but with no special change. Demand light and but little disposition shown to trade by any class of buyers. Feeling generally weak and bearish. We quote: The inside price for strong grades and outside lots between grades): Extra fancy $5 30@5 45; fancy $4 95@5 10; choice $4 65@4 75; family $4 00@4 10; xxx $3 50@3 65; xx $3 15@3 25; x $2 75@2 90; superfine $2 50@2 70; fine $2 20@2 25; patent $5 65@6 40. These prices are for lots on arrivals at depot and levee; favorite brands 25c more and order lots higher.

Cornmeal—Unchanged at $2 20@2 25 on order delivery, pearl meal grits and hominy $3 35@3 40.

Rye Flour—In moderate demand at $3 60@3 75.

Millfeed—Firm, the demand continuing excellent. Sacked bran 64½@65 E. track, 65 at mill; bulk bran 51@53½ at country point, 52@53 E. track.

Hay—Was steady, though the supply on sale was large, but the local and shipping demand was good. Choice stock was mainly looked for; fancy prairie was very scarce. Quotations are: This side—Prairie: $8@8 25 for prime to strictly prime; $8 50@8 75 for choice to fancy; mixed $8@10 for common to choice; timothy $11@15, top rate for fancy. East side 50@$1 per ton lower than above rates.

Provisions were in the dumps to-day. Besides being dull the market was weak and lower, the decline in corn, a lower Chicago and a general stand off by buyers for concessions causing values to let down. Standard mess pork jobbed at $11 75@11 90. Sales of 225 tcs prime steam lard was made, but terms kept private; the best public bid was 7⅝. Dry salt meats were almost nominal, the only sale being of loose winter c'ribs at 6 up country, freight 20. Bacon was chiefly traded in, packed shoulders selling at 6⅜@6.40, longs at 6⅞@6.90, c'ribs at 7, shorts at 7¼@7⅜, and loose longs at 6.80. Hams 13½@15, mainly 14@14½; Tallow 7¼@⅜ for prime summer in oil barrels. No. 2 6¾@7 and irregular package 7⅛@7¼; grease tallow 6½. Breakfast bacon 10½@12½; on orders 11@13. Grease 4¾@5 for brown, 5¼@5¾ for yellow; 6@6¼ for white. Beef—Extra mess $15@16 per barrel according to brand; $8@8 50 per half barrel; dried fresh 13½@14 ℔ lb. Fresh smoked tongues $6@7 ℔ dozen. Salt—Domestic $1 25 this side, $1 20 E. side per barrel; ground alum $1 15 per sack for round lots, $1 20@1 25 in a small way.

Highwines—Strong and active, with sales of 187 brls. Cincinnati active and firm at $1 13; Chicago $1 16; Peoria firm at $1 15.

Lead steady and firm at $4 05 for both hard and refined, the last sale of former being at that rate, which was the best bid for refined.

Grass Seeds—Rather quiet with a moderate demand for both clover and timothy, which, however, remained unchanged in price. Sales to-day were 2 cars timothy at p. t., 24 sks clover at $4 75, 20 sks do $4 80, 30 sks red-top at 50.

Flaxseed—In demand with $1 27 bid. Sales 8 cars at this figure.

Hempseed—Quiet at $1 40@1 50.

Castor Beans—Lower; best bid $1 75 for spot, and $1 70 for October.

Cotton Seed—$15 per ton for spot and $14 for November.

Cotton.

The heavy advance in futures at New York noted at the close of yesterday's market, received, a set-back and the higher figures were not visible at the opening to-day, they having dropped back half as much as they had advanced. Some operators were inclined to attribute this to the failure at New York on the short side, but it hardly appears reasonable that a single failure of such small magnitude would cause so large a break, the decline amounting to 5 to 10 points; from this, however, prices again went up, and the close was 1 to 6 points higher than the opening, yet not up to last night's close by 2 to 4 points. New Orleans and Liverpool both opened better than they closed the night before, but fell off a little before the close, the decline at the former place amountingtto 3 to 5 points. Spots were improved at all poins, New York and New Orleans showing an advance of ⅛, while the local quotations were firm and revised and Liverpool hardening. The tone was largely bullish and the advance was sustained.

LOCAL SPOT QUOTATIONS.

Low ordinary, 7; ordinary, 8½; good ordinary 9; low middling, 9½; middling, 10; good middling 10⅜; middling fair, nominal. Stained—Good ordinary, 8; low middling, 8½; middling 8⅞. Tinges—Middling, 9¼; good do 9½.

LIVE STOCK.

Receipts and shipments for 24 hours, ending at 11 a. m. to-day, are as follows:

| | Receipts. 1883. | Receipts. 1882. | Shipments. 1883. | Shipments. 1882. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Cattle | 172 | 780 | 430 | 1,185 |
| Hogs | 770 | 285 | 1,230 | 131 |
| Sheep | ........ | 59 | ........ | ........ |

CATTLE—During the week closing to-day a most satisfactory trade has been had, and salesmen, as a rule, have had little cause for complaint. The small supply of the better description of cattle, in connection with the general good demand, developed a bullish tendency to values, and they have ruled strong, and in many cases higher, natives of 1,600 lbs and over bringing $6 25@6 35, and $4 00@4 12½ for grass Texans, and $4 20@4 30 for Indians. Other grades, such as cows, heifers and mixed lots, have also exhibited a gratifying appreciation and have sold well on butchers 'account. Very common and inferior cattle of all kinds were slow and at times it was found necessary to shade prices in order to dispose of them, it paying better in the end to do this rather than carry them over from day to day. The market as a whole has been very satisfactory in most all respects, the only drawback being the small arrivals at a time when buyers were really urgent, and the few of a really choice description offered during the week. We quote:

|---|---|
| Scalawags | $1 75@2 75 |
| Stags and bulls | 2 25@2 85 |
| Good to extra bulls | 3 00@3 25 |
| Good butcher steers and spayed heifers | 3 50@4 40 |
| Light shipping steers | 4 85@5 25 |
| Heavy shipping steers | 5 25@5 90 |
| Exporters | 6 00@6 35 |
| Good cows and heifers | 3 50@4 00 |
| Common cows and heifers | 2 80@3 45 |
| Good cows and calves | 25 00@3 00 |
| Common cows and calves | 15 00@5 00 |
| Grass Texans | 3 50@4 12¾ |
| Grass Indians | 3 75@4 35 |

HOGS—The market during the week has presented a much more active appearance and values have ruled stronger, with quite an upward tendency, which developed into an advance of 10 to 15c on all grades, but especially for lights, which have felt the effects of a poor demand and weak feeling for a week or two. On Friday an active demand was had for these and a large number changed hands at a higher range. To-day trade was light, owing to the small number on sale. Prices, however, were steady and the feeling generally firm. Quotations were about as follows: Light to really good Yorkers $5@5 15; rough mixed $4 50@4 75; good do $4 85@5 00; butchers to extra heavy $5 15@5 25 and skips and culls $4@4 25.

SHEEP—Generally quiet and weak in price. Sales made at lower rates and but little life manifested. We quote: Common to medium slow and weak at $2 50@3 25; fair to good $3 50@3 75; prime $4@4 25; stockers $1 75@2 50; fair to good Texans $2 75@3 50; lambs dull at $3 75@4 50.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis—ss.
In the Probate Court for the City of St. Louis.
September Term, 1883.
Thursday, September 13, A. D. 1883.
Estate of Bridget Hanlon.

Now at this day comes Frank X. McCabe, administrator, with the will annexed, of the estate of Bridget Hanlon, deceased, and presents to the court his petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of deceased as will pay and satisfy remaining debts due by said estate and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, inventory by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case, on examination; whereof

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application as aforesaid has been made, and that unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the said city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St. Louis aforesaid for four weeks before the next term of this court.

A true copy from the record.

Witness my hand and the seal of the Probate Court of the City of St. Louis hereto affixed, this 14th day of September, 1883.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

ANOTHER split in the Police Board. In the words of the poet, "It is the little rift within the Lutz."

VASTINE should beware of eloquence; many a promising statesman has been wrecked upon that gleaming rock.

PUBLIC scrutiny will do well to cast an occasional glance at the stables for the mounted police to see what is going to happen.

AND so Vice-President KERWIN of the Board of Police Commissioners has not learned to wear the collar with becoming docility.

IF the city has changed the number of your house you have, in the eye of the law, changed your domicile and cannot vote without a new registration.

THE Republicans of Iowa have raised ALLISON to the proud position of favorite son. Should he be nominated for the Presidency, it is fondly believed that he could carry his State.

OUR esteemed German contemporaries are commenting on our discovery of the bones of DESOTO in a way which suggests that, like the Scotchman, they "jock wi' deeficulty."

GOVERNOR CRITTENDEN is reported to be engaged on a poem. He calls it "Resignation, or, the Fate of a Police Commissioner." It will be a weird, sad thing; something like Bunthorne's in "Patience."

THE POST-DISPATCH to-day circulates a larger number of copies in St. Louis than all other English papers put together. Its country circulation is larger than the total circulation of any evening paper, except the POST-DISPATCH, that St. Louis has ever had.

WE should like to suggest as a remedy for rows in the Police Board that it might be a good plan to let the people of St. Louis have something to say about their Police Commissioners. But the vision of the Solid Seven sitting in silent and stubborn obstruction gives us pause.

HENRY LABOUCHERE says in Truth: "If CLARA MORRIS is anything like as good as MARY ANDERSON, I trust the English public may have the pleasure of seeing her before long." We wonder what the English public would do if they should get this opportunity of seeing a really great actress?

THIS is the last day for filing suits for the October term and a great many damaged citizens are crowding the Clerk's office. If they all win their suits it will add tremendously to the volume of circulating wealth of the country, but those who depend on damage suits for winter wear are generally found wearing their linen dusters at Christmas.

THE new appointment to be made in the Police Board raises anew the question whether the Governor will fall under the control of the gamblers' ring. There are those who think his Excellency smirched the gubernatorial ermine, so to speak, when he hastily pardoned the gamblers, and these citizens have ever since been apprehensive about the dangers surrounding the State Executive.

WHEN SAMUEL JOHNSON wrote:

> Let observation with extensive view
> Survey mankind from China to Peru,

he must have had in mind just such a paper as the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, which, yesterday, with its extensive view surveyed mankind from China to Clark avenue, and gave its readers the earliest news of the conflict between the Black Flags and French troops on the Asian Red River, and of the outbreak of hostilities in the St. Louis Police Board.

AMONG the new ideas broached in St. Louis during the past week was the idea of appointing a popular reporter on an unpopular newspaper to the position of Police Commissioner. As that office does not require that its incumbent shall relinquish his other occupations, there is a breezy freshness in the contemplation of a police commissioner officially reserving all the "scoops" and big items which come to him in his official capacity, and handing them over exclusively to the journal which pays him an extra-official compensation.

SOME fishermen in Scotland were severely beaten with sticks and stones by a mob of strict Sabbatarians for landing their nets on Sunday. For this violent breach of the peace and of the Sunday laws the strict Sabbatarians were sentenced to six months' imprisonment. The Rev. Mr. SPURGEON, in a letter demanding their release, expresses the hearty wish that "we had a people in England good enough to be capable of this Scotch crime—the crime of fearing God so much as to use violence for the preservation of the Day of Rest." In these few words Mr. SPURGEON commits himself to that theocratic idea of government which has so often filled the world with woe and bloodshed. Thank GOD, there is none of it in our Constitution.

THERE is a rumor that BISMARCK is sick, but he seems to be in a healthy condition to judge from the advice that he has given France and China. That is that they should drop the flummery of protecting Anam; that France should take one half of the territory, that China should take the other half, and that Anam should pay the costs of being divided up. This is the genuine Bismarckian idea.

WE can assure the St. Joseph Gazette that the POST-DISPATCH does not "attempt to speak for the Democratic party," as an organ in the JAMES boys question. But, as a candid observer and truthful witness, we must continue to warn outsiders that such organs as the Gazette and the Sedalia Democrat do not in this matter represent either the Democratic press or the Democratic masses of the State. One of the Gazette's own conductors withdrew from that paper because he regarded its course as an outrage upon the Democratic sentiment of Missouri. Besides the Gazette, we have seen but one Democratic paper that seconds the attempt of the Sedalia Democrat to identify the cause of FRANK JAMES with that of the Democratic party. The Huntsville Herald alone rises up, with a mask over its eyes and moss on its back a foot thick, and indorses our Sedalia contemporary's declaration that the verdict "was the justice of heaven," and that "FRANK JAMES is not a bandit, nor a train-robber, nor a murderer." Admitting that "there are some cowardly, hare-brained Democrats who are calling for the conviction of JAMES," the Herald says: "To the devil with all such Democrats, and let Yankeedoodlum howl itself hoarse!" Yet we are bound to testify that when all the Democrats who would rejoice at the triumph of justice in this case are sent "to the devil," there will not be enough left to elect a constable in any township of the State.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 15.—The World says: "It is again being demonstrated that Cincinnati is not large enough for more than one big newspaper. The editors of the two leading journals are rending each other with a vigor which betokens intense malice and the indifference to dirt which comes from protected wallowing. Unfortunately there is no disinterested journalistic 'swiveller' in the town to visit the belligerents 'wafted upon the pinions of concord' to undertake to remove, with the rake of friendship, the seeds of mutual violence and heartburning and to sow in their place the germs of social harmony."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "The hard knocks which the Republicans got last fall came largely from Republicans. These men may have Democratic leanings, but their votes are by no means sure for the Democrats. Their votes will be cast for the Republican nominee if, by his character and past services, he seems more likely than the Democratic nominee to purge the Government of corruption and to give the country honest and capable administration. It is the situation of 1876 over again. The chances are strongly in favor of the Democrats, and the number of votes which can be turned by a strong nomination is much greater. To convert a good chance into a certainty, the Democrats have only to present the name of a man whose familiarity with the public affairs, unswerving honesty, and opposition to all forms of jobbery and rascality have been tested for years, and are a guarantee that he will bring to the office of President exactly the ability, the integrity, the experience and the force of will needed to make the Government clean and competent once more."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The new postal note seems to be getting more scolding than it deserves. The fact that Chicago banks have refused to accept it does not necessarily end the matter. That is, to be sure, a portentous circumstance, seeing that it is Chicago. But the sky has not fallen yet. Several suggestions have been made since the appearance of the notes, which will, no doubt, guide the officials in making future issues. The paper should undoubtedly be one of the special papers which cannot be manipulated by counterfeiters and forgers. It seems also a useless tax upon the payer to require him to sign his name when the note is 'payable to bearer.' But these are details which can be adjusted in future issues. Querulous critics must not overlook the nature of these small money orders. They do not afford the same degree of security as the regular money-orders, and it was universally understood at the time they were authorized that they would not do so. They are designed solely to facilitate the transmission of small sums, and a large class in the community would find them useful even if all the banks should refuse to take them, which they do not do. Lastly, when the gains of the forger or counterfeiter are limited to something less than $4 99 on each order, it seems safe to predict that the amount of fraud under this head will not be great."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "Secretary Folger's liberal allowance of 'sick leave' in his department appears to have had a disastrous effect upon the health of Treasury employes. Thirty days absence during the year without loss of pay is in itself a pretty liberal allowance, and the rule of charging against it any occasional failures to appear for duty was a salutary one. It will probably have to be ratified, if only as a sanitary measure."

THE HERALD.

The Herald says: "The question of Lieut. Greeley's ability to make good his retreat by boat hinges mainly on the ice conditions of Kennedy Channel and Smith's Sound, between August 25 and the present time. It is quite possible that in this period, when the quantity of the summer's drift of ice is falling off, the passage of these straits is less obstructed than in July or the early part of August."

POLITICAL DRIFT.

IT is said that Mahone can not be punished for bribery, because he owns all the judges in Virginia.

GEN. GRANT is having a nice boom along the line of the Northern Pacific. In fact, the boom for Gen. Grant appears to be the heaviest where there are no electoral votes.

WHEN corrupt politicians die the Chicago Times predicts they will all go to the United States of Columbia, because there is not a dollar in the treasury.

EX-SECRETARY KIRKWOOD'S offer to take the stump for the Republican ticket in Iowa, in case he should be permitted to disavow the prohibition plank in the platform, has not been accepted.

"THE Democrats of New Jersey," says the Philadelphia Times (Ind. Dem.), "now seem to be completing arrangements to give the State to the Republicans. It is not likely the Republicans will refuse it."

SENATOR JONAS of Louisiana looked from toothpick to journalist and from journalist to toothpick as he said to an interviewer in New York: "Butler? Oh, no; anybody but Butler. He is not considered a serious candidate; he is not considered hardly."

IT cannot be denied that the New York Democrats have met with the greatest opportunity of their lives. Never before was there such a pretty chance to show their brethren in other States, and especially in Ohio, an example of perfect harmony.

EX-SERGEANT-AT-ARMS HOOKER of Vermont says that Dorsey is "a great big-hearted man with one side of him opaque." Colonel Hooker, by the way, is the author of the profound philosophical remark that "a man is a d——d fool who wouldn't be a Republican in Vermont and a Democrat in New York City."

MEN OF NOTE.

CAPTAIN WEBB is to have a monument at the spot on the Severn where he first saved a life.

AMBROISE THOMAS has been seriously ill in Brittany, where he has been spending the summer.

IN Pere Hyacinthe's church the deacons who pass the plate say "Thank you" to those who contribute.

THERE is quite a streak worn in the carpet in Jim Keene's office between the ticker and the looking-glass.

MR. JEFFERSON expects to make a great deal of money when he appears in New York as a Caleb Plumber.

MR. GLADSTONE has a great liking for his old clothes and wears a suit long after the trousers have become "baggy" at the knees.

COL. MICHAEL SHERIDAN was so bronzed on his return from the Yellowstone, that his bank failed for several hours to identify him.

COUNT BOZENTA, Polish patriot and husband of Mme. Modjeska, says that the Panslavic movement in the Russian army is much more an anti-German than an anti-Turkish feeling.

MR. L. N. FOWLER, one of the original phrenologists who could tell from the bunions on a boy's head whether he was to be hanged or to be a missionary, has arrived in this country and will lecture during the winter.

"UNCLE RUFE" HATCH denies the scandalous stories that have been told about the behavior of some of his English guests at Yellowstone park. He says that they all conducted themselves like ladies and gentlemen, worthy of his hospitality.

SITTING BULL says in a recent interview: "I have been offered much money to travel with Buffalo Bill and to be present at the Cincinnati Exposition, but I never traveled on the cars and fear that to do so would make me sick. I now have a lung disease, and fear that in a short while I shall go to my fathers: therefore, the little time that is spared me I want to spend with my children, whose sight delights me. I have ten children and many relatives, who want me to stay with them."

MINISTER SACKVILLE WEST and his family narrowly escaped death on the Northern Pacific Road on Friday night. They were in the private car "Delaware," attached to the Villard excursion train. At the time of the accident the train was on a mountain grade near Helena. The coupling between the "Delaware" and the car behind it broke. The train was slowed up and the rear car came thundering down the slope and crashed into the "Delaware," knocking one-half to splinters. The British Minister, his daughter and some others were in the front of the car and thus escaped.

WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

MISS LUCRETIA GRAY NOBLE, the author of "A Reverend Idol," is writing another book.

PRINCE HOHENLOHE says Germany is crowded because every woman insists on having ten children.

MISS MARGARET HOWITT, daughter of William Howitt, has joined the Roman Catholic Church.

A KENTUCKY girl refused an offer of marriage on the ground that her father couldn't support any larger family.

GEN. N. P. BANKS' daughter Maud will go on the platform this season as an elocutionist. She has been studying in Europe.

M. BRETEUIL says that strawberries are served on the tables of the Queen of England and of the King of the Belgians the year round.

MRS. SCOTT-SIDDONS has been staying in Berlin, and the newspapers speak of her intention to make a starring tour through Germany.

A ST. LOUIS girl ran away from home rather than learn music. She must have been listening to the playing of some of the other girls.

A SISTER of Captain Webb became insane when she heard of her brother's death at Niagara Falls, and was found drowned in the river at Lady Smith, Natal.

KATE CLAXTON will play this winter in the "Sea of Ice." The Burlington Hawkeye thinks it will go to see her because there is no danger of that catching fire.

MISS KATHARINA CHASE, as the European hotel registers give the name of the lady who a few months ago was known as Mrs. Catherine Chase Sprague, has been staying at Carlsbad, in Bohemia, with her three daughters.

MISS FORTESCUE, the future bride of Lord Garmoyle, has finally left the stage. When she made her last appearance she was fairly inundated with bouquets. After the performance she was entertained at supper by the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore and by her lord elect, who is known in theatrical circles by the somewhat irreverent title of "Lord Gumboil."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

FAMOUS—John Jacob Astor died March 29th, 1848.

TYPO—We exchange with the Leadville Democrat and the Leadville Chronicle.

SUBSCRIBER—The census of 1880 gives the population of Chicago as 503,185, and of St. Louis as 350,518.

A Queer Civilization.

From the Arkansas Traveler.

One of the lawyers for the defense remarked, during his convincing argument, that Mr. James was an outgrowth of their civilization. The civilization which Frank James represents would not be admitted into the politest society. If a man should go to an entertainment where such outgrowths predominate, he would go home bareheaded and find his pockets turned out. The crack pistol shot and the man who can stab an old friend or cut the ears from a new acquaintance, would be ornaments in such society, but the quiet everyday, matter-of-fact sort of individual would be left in that unhealthful and essentially unenjoyable condition known among classically educated people as the "lurch." The civilization which Mr. James represents does not partake of that refinement and speculative philosophy which gave to Boston its extreme air of cultivated transcendentalism, neither does it exhibit an air of gentleness which should flourish in a female seminary. The quiet repose of the grave-yard, rude mounds and pine boards that make brief announcements, is the result of the Frank James civilization.

Hedging.

From the Sedalia Democrat.

The POST-DISPATCH is strenuously endeavoring to connect the Frank James case with the Democratic party of Missouri, but thus far it has failed. The party is not responsible for Col. James, except in so far as it is responsible for the administration of justice in this State. That's all.

Cheek.

From the St. Joseph Gazette.

Only one thing surpasses the cheek of the POST-DISPATCH when it attempts to speak for the Democratic party, and that is the cheek of Jumbo, the elephant.

With One Foot in the Saddle.

From the Buffalo Courier, Dem.

If Mr. Arthur were not the incumbent of the Presidential office his aspirations to it would be ridiculous.

SATURDAY CHAT.

THE long and arduous peace which has been brooding over the Police Board has at last departed, and we are treated to a resignation with pepper-sauce. To all old St. Louisans this is as it should be. A Police Board without resignations and heart-burnings, and all uncharitableness, is a phenomenon. A Commissioner who does not cast the most dreadful aspersions upon all the other Commissioners is not really doing his duty by the town; he is not furnishing the excitement that people have a right to expect.

I AM told that Mr. Kerwin's resignation means that the fight on Chief Campbell is to succeed, and that gallant and handsome officer is to be replaced by somebody else more pleasing to the powers behind the throne. This brings to mind Capt. Huebler's remark when the Chieftaincy was offered him: "I have a life position as I am. I do not want to trade it for a situation that no man living can hold longer than a year."

THE Boston exhibition is a failure after all. It was opened before it was completed, and it was managed by men who did not understand their business—the result was to be expected. A lesson of this sort is one which St. Louis should profit by—our Exposition managers should examine the wreck with the same care that engineers bestow on an exploded boiler.

A NEW society wrinkle, down East, is to give valuable favors to young men who will consent to dance in the German. Forty-dollar scarf-pins were distributed at one ball, lately. This opens up a new career for far-sighted young men—all that they must do is to hold off, and socity well soon be offering valuable consideration for their services. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and a Trade Union of dancing men would soon wring a substantial recognition from society.

THE American mind seems to be getting into the same condition as the Oriental. They say that a Chinese Envoy, at a ball at the Tuileries, wondered why western society had not hit upon the device of employing people to dance instead of performing that labor itself.

THE death of Sir Henry Maxse Governor of Newfoundland, is announced, coupled with the statement that he was one of those who rode in the charge at Balaklava. It is one of the curiosities of our time that that rush of the light brigade upon the Russians should hold such prominence in men's hearts all the world over. There was nothing remarkable about it. In our civil war a hundred charges were made, as desperate and as brave. At Gravelotte and at Plevna men rode as boldly to death as in the Crimea. Whence then comes the halo that surrounds every man who was with the six hundred?

IT was simply the poem of Tennyson that made the charge historic—an exploit, rash, daring, heroic, was told in verse that fires the blood like the blare of trumpets. This is a work-a-day world, but a feeling of hero worship, a sympathy for the brave, a chivalrous love of martial exploits burns beneath the prosaic exterior. There are ideas and phrases that break through this shell and teach us that the humanity of the nineteenth century differs not at all from the humanity of the crusades or the tourney.

THE men of the light brigade certainly cannot complain that Fortune was unkind to them. We have crystallized about that charge the generous admiration that the world feels for bravery everywhere.

"HIER ruht 14 tapfere Krieger," reads one of the boards at Gravelotte, "Here rest fourteen valiant warriors." Anonymous, unknown, these and the undistinguished, unrecorded dead lying beneath stricken fields of battle the world over go to make up this sentiment that transfigures Balaklava.

> On Fame's eternal camping ground
> Their silent tents are spread,
> And Glory guards with solemn round
> The bivouac of the dead.

I SUPPOSE everybody has at some stage of his mental development read the New York Ledger. I suppose everybody must wonder how that unceasing river of continued stories is fed. Like Tennyson's brook, men may come and men may go, but the continued stories go on forever, ever. I was talking to a friend the other day who had lately returned from New York, and he told me that Mary Kyle Dallas, one of the story producers for Mr. Bonner, was paid a hundred dollars a week for her work—which work averaged through the year about two columns a week.

BONNER paid Beecher $10,000 for a forgotten story, and paid Edward Everett the same amount for his dull Mt. Vernon Essays, and other authors have been paid sums by the same paper which they could not get anywhere else for their work. Even for short stories the average price paid by the Ledger is $10 a column. Still, when one comes to think that a paper like the Ledger prints fifty-two issues a year, with about forty-five columns of stories in each issue, on the whole over a mile of solid fiction, and that to get this matter it must compete with a score of vigorous rivals, it is not strange that the work should be well paid.

IN his testimony before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, John Swinton of the Sun, unblushingly stated that in New York a reporter was paid from $1,000 a year to $5,000, an editor from $5,000 to $25,000, a statement which must have made the reporters and editors of New York smile a weary smile. In New York the average pay of journalism on a daily paper is lower than it is in the West, but there is not much difference.

A FAIR editorial writer for a newspaper earns about $50 a week, a good reporter can make $25, and if he is working on an afternoon paper he can, if he is energetic, gather in enough outside work to add $20 to $25 more to his earnings, but to do this he must work very hard, and yet as a rule the literary ability shown in the average metropolitan newspaper is far beyond anything to be found in the Ledger, the New York Weekly, the Chimney Corner, or any of that class of papers.

BOOK-WORK of a certain kind is paying better in the West than formerly. I know a gentleman who added $2,500 to his usual earnings this year in one "job" for a subscription book house. Mr. Buell of St. Louis, the author of a series of books, "The Border Outlaws," "The James Boys," etc. is said to be making $12,000 a year from his copyrights.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Where the Readers of the Post-Dispatch Get a Hearing.

ST. LOUIS, September 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A statement appeared in a late issue of your paper saying there was brought against me a suit for slander by a butcher, etc. Now, the facts are these: I am trying to suppress slaughtering-pens opposite my residence, which are an intolerable nuisance that has reduced my property nearly 50 per cent, making my home scarcely fit for human habitation. The accumulated filth on the floors of the pens during the hottest weather was six inches in depth. The groans of animals being knocked down and slaughtered are distinctly heard in my bed-rooms. A sick cow was recently kept there moaning all night. A calf was there for about two days that kept up day and night almost a continual bleating. I brought the case before the Board of Health, and in looking after witnesses I spoke to the person in charge of the slaughter-pens where these things occurred, and where early that morning, before his coming, I had seen the last named case referred to, but he (the party making the charge of slander) strongly denied that it was on their premises, declaring it had been on those adjoining. I then said to him: "You are lying, as I saw the calf here this morning, and if you swear it was not I shall charge you with perjury and have you sent to the penitentiary." This was all that passed between us. Here I may add that when I appeared before the Board of Health the Health Commissioner, Mr. Fitzwilliam, went to inspect the place, and while there he saw them slaughter a cow, take out the entrails and a dead calf and thrust them into the inlet to the public sewer.

Who J. W. Wilson Is.

ST. LOUIS, September 15, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your issue of yesterday the following appears:

Is the J. W. Wilson who is so aggrieved at the action of the Republican party the same J. W. W. who asked Circuit Clerk Vogel to put him on his pay roll as a dead head and willing to report every morning on parole? I agree with him that Republicans are ungrateful. I nominate him for gauger forthwith. O. B.

The writer had not the moral courage to sign his own name, but writes himself "O. B." I have thought over the list of my gentlemanly political acquaintances, and have failed to find the initials of "O. B.," and have concluded that the writer has given his true name, "Old Bummer." I have never asked Chas. Vogel for any position for myself, but did ask him to appoint a young colored man, a graduate of Lincoln Institute, of this State, which he refused to do. As to who I am, I will say that I am a negro recently emancipated from political slavery, editor of the National Tribune, and an independent candidate for School Director in the Tenth Ward. J. W. WILSON.

Our Fire Chief.

ST. LOUIS, September 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Being on a visit to your city and reading of the loss of the fireman that was thrown from the truck last week, I think it would be advisable for the Chief to have the drivers of the engines and trucks strapped on their seats to prevent any more such accidents.

Since I have been here I have witnessed several fires and must say that your Chief, Mr. Sexton, is well suited for the position. It is hard for a man in this world to please every one, and when you have a Chief like Mr. Sexton I cannot see that you can improve on him. If the charges are sustained that the Board of Underwriters charge him with—having old men and drunkards—then it is the city fathers who should investigate into it and remove them from his care. In our department in New Orleans our association regulates what ages shall constitute a fireman—from 21 to 45. After a man attends a couple of fires he becomes master of his duties and with his orders from his captain or chief, he is well suited as a fireman.

Crossing Watchmen Needed.

ST. LOUIS, September 13, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I would like to call your attention to the fraud in the "crossing watching" of the Missouri Pacific and Wabash Railways. At Theresa avenue, where there is no travel at night, they have a watchman. But at Grand and Chouteau avenues, where there is lots of travel and where the trains pass at a very high rate of speed, there are no watchmen at all at night. There are no "safety gates" at any of these crossings, which are very dangerous. As there is a city ordinance compelling the railway companies to provide these safe-guards at all important crossings, the conduct of the railway companies looks very strange to say the least. Perhaps Mr. A. W. Dickinson, S. T. F. or some of the Colonels around the City Hall can throw some light on the subject. You will be conferring a favor on many citizens by having this matter looked into.

Yours respectfully,
AN OLD CITIZEN.

Boulevard Dangers.

ST. LOUIS, September 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A word of warning should be given to the parents who permit their children to indulge in roller-skating on the new pavement on Pine street. In driving on that street daily, and especially in the past two days, I have observed some very narrow escapes. This afternoon one boy fell as he was performing some evolution on his skates, lying on his back as a team was stopped barely in time to save him; another boy catching on behind a grocery wagon slipped on his skates, one foot passing through the spokes of the wheel: the result might have been very serious. It must be admitted that it is unsafe to allow twenty or thirty thoughtless little children to flourish on unsteady skates in so narrow a thoroughfare where great numbers of vehicles are rapidly passing. Very truly, B.

Kansas City Praised.

ST. LOUIS, September 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please advise the readers of your live paper—first, why our patriotic City Council do not send a delegation to Kansas City to see with what rapidity fires are extinguished there and much valuable property saved. Surely it should not be said we have not a first-class Fire Department. Second, if so, how about Newcomb Brothers' fire and the one at 2212 Franklin avenue last night? Why, a Kansas City company would have had the fire out and the building saved before our engines had got to work. It is poor management. Give us a Chief who has only one thing to think of—the city's safety.

The Sale of Bitters.

ST. LOUIS, September 13, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Can a grocer who does not sell liquor or wine in less quantities than one gallon sell Hostetter Bitters by the single bottle, or must he sell as many bottles at one time as will equal one gallon? As I understand the law I can't sell at one time less than eight bottles of beer (pints) nor less than five bottles of wine. Am I correct? By answering the above you will greatly oblige one of your subscribers and a grocer. I. H. W.

A Water Conundrum.

ST. LOUIS, September 14, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please answer through your valuable columns the reason why there was not more than a foot or two feet of water in the Compton Hill reservoir last winter, when there is no street sprinkling, and no fawn sprinkling, and in general not so much water used as in summer. Was it probable that they had no coal to run the machinery?

THE NAVES.

The Lady Files Her Petition for Alimony,

In which She States Most of Her Grievances and the Causes which Led to Them—Mr. Nave's Property and Income.

The Nave family troubles, which have formed the subject of much discussion lately, are still before the public. The last move in the controversy is the petition for alimony pendente lite filed by Mrs. Nave in the courts at St. Joseph, Mo., where the suit for divorce is also in progress. In it Mrs. Nave tells her story and recites some of her grievances in a very pathetic manner. The petition is as follows:

In the Circuit Court in and for Buchanan County, Missouri.

Abram Nave, Plaintiff, vs. Mary B. Nave, Defendant.

Comes now the defendant herein and shows to the court that there is a suit for divorce in this court begun by plaintiff against this defendant on the 23d day of August, 1883, and returnable at the next January term, the particulars of all which, together with the charges of plaintiff against the defendant, fully appear by the petition on file herein, that all the charges in said petition contained and set forth as cause for divorce are untrue and entirely unfounded in fact. And defendant says that she was lawfully married to plaintiff as stated in said petition, and cohabited with him continually as his wife from the date of said marriage up to and including the day of the service of the summons in this suit, performing all her duties as such wife, and at all times treating him with kindness and affection. That during all that time plaintiff has been possessed of great wealth and financial and social standing. That on the 1st day of January, 1882, as defendant is informed and truly believes, the plaintiff was seized and possessed of real and personal property and money to the value of $1,800,000, and had then living four children, viz.: Wm. H. Nave, a son, now aged 42 years; James Nave, a son, now aged 40 years; Samuel Nave, a son, now aged 35 years, and Emma Ranney, a daughter, now aged 37 years, who was then and still is intermarried with E. N. Ranney, and that there are no other children or descendants of other children of plaintiff now living. That since said 1st of January, 1882, plaintiff has voluntarily, and without consideration, given, transferred and set over to his said sons and daughter productive stocks, bonds and other securities of the par value of $600,000, that is to say, to the said James Nave and Samuel Nave $150,000 each; to a trustee, to this defendant unknown, for the sole use and benefit of said William H. Nave, $150,000, and to a trustee to this defendant unknown, for the sole use and benefit of said Emma Ranney, $150,000. That the permanent net income of said stocks and securities so given, transferred and set over to each of said sons or daughters, or his or her trustee as aforesaid, is at least $15,000 per annum. That after making said donations the plaintiff retained and still retains, and is now seized and possessed of property and money of the value of $1,200,000. Defendant fur states that at about the time of the bringing of this suit, plaintiff by himself, his agents and attorneys, caused to be published in the public newspapers of the cities of St. Louis and St. Joseph the contained in his petition herein, together with other false and libelous charges against defendant in connection with the subject matter of this suit, by which the people of said cities have been greatly prejudiced against defendant.

That many persons, competent witnesses herein, who have a knowledge of matters favorable to defendant and pertinent to the issues in this cause, reside in each of said cities, and by reason of said prejudice so produced it has become difficult for defendant so to associate with such persons as to ascertain the truth of their knowledge of said matter, and thereby the difficulty of ascertaining and procuring testimony in her favor has been greatly increased.

That plaintiff, beside Woodson, Green & Burnes, the attorneys of record in this cause, has, as defendant is credibly informed and believes, employed Thoroughman & Valiant, attorneys at law of the city of St. Louis, all eminent and skillful attorneys and counselors at law, for the purpose of prosecuting defendant herein. That defendant has employed the firm of Brown & Young, attorneys at law, of the city of St. Louis, and Waller Young, Esq., and the firm of Ramey & Brown, attorneys of this city and county, as counsel to advise her with reference to the preparation of this petition and to present the same to the honorable court, and desires to retain the same counsel in the preparation of her answer and the trial of the issues of law and of fact, and defendant believes and avers that the employment of said counsel will be a necessary, reasonable and proper measure for her defense herein.

That since the bringing of this suit defendant has stated the whole truth of her knowledge of all the facts and circumstances in issue in this cause as set forth in plaintiff's petition, together with the names and residences of such persons as are known by her to have a knowledge of such facts, and her reasons for believing that such persons knew and would testify thereto, to her attorneys above named, and she was thereupon advised by her said attorneys that many persons so named by her who reside in the city of St. Louis, in this State, and in the State of Mississippi, and other persons so named who reside in the city and State of New York, in the city of Denver, in the State of Colorado, and in the State of Louisiana, are such and all important and necessary witnesses in her favor in this cause, without whose testimony she cannot that their testimony to facts within their knowledge will enable defendant to make a complete defense to this suit, and that it will be necessary to take the testimony of said witnesses at their several places of residence aforesaid, and at the taking of such depositions for defendant to attend with some one of her counsel aforesaid, and that it will be necessary and proper to bring other witnesses from the said city of St. Louis to testify in the trial hereof, all at great cost and expense to the defendant, and that in all probability other expenses will be necessarily incurred by her in preparation for trial.

That plaintiff's mansion house, the usual place of abode of plaintiff and defendant during all the period of coverture aforesaid, is in the city of St. Louis in this State, and that shortly before the bringing of this suit and in contemplation thereof, plaintiff caused defendant to remove from said mansion house to a certain hotel known as and called the Southern Hotel, in said city, and now refuses to permit her to enter or occupy said mansion house, and has notified the proprietors of said hotel that he will not pay her board at that place, by reason of which she has been compelled to remove therefrom, and plaintiff has, by publication in divers public newspapers of general circulation throughout this State, notified all persons not to give credit to the defendant on his account.

That the health of the defendant is now greatly impaired, and she is advised by reputable physicians that she needs medical treatment, rest and change of climate to restore the same, which she can only procure at great expense.

That before her marriage to plaintiff, defendant resided in the State of Mississippi, and since said marriage, and up to the —— day of ——, 1883, she resided with her said husband in the city of St. Louis, in this State, where she has many friends and acquaintances, and is well known and of good repute.

That at the date aforesaid she came to this county to reside with defendant, who left her on the 23d day of August last, since which time she has been entirely deprived of his society and protection.

That she is

or acquaintances in this State, except in the city of St. Louis aforesaid, and believes that she has been brought into contempt and disrepute among the people of this county by the false and libelous publications and charges of plaintiff aforesaid, and that she cannot, therefore, have the care, comfort and protection in this county rendered necessary by the delicate state of her health and the mental anxiety and annoyance naturally and necessarily attending this suit.

That defendant is now wholly without income or means of her own to enable her to pay the expenses of this suit or the proper and necessary expenses of her own support and maintenance, and prays the court to grant her such allowance for payment of necessary counsel fees and other expenses of this suit, and also such sums for her support and maintenance pending this suit as to the court shall seem proper and adequate, all the premises considered, and for all other proper orders and judgments relating thereto.

[Signed] MARY B. NAVE, Defendant.

MOB LAW SUPREME.

A Justice, Witnesses and Jury Beaten and Pounded by a Gang.

'Squire Campbell's little law shop out in Cheltenham was the scene of an exceedingly lively trial Thursday afternoon, which culminated in a crowd assaulting and badly beating the Justice, one of the lawyers and all the jury, besides wrecking the furniture and breaking the windows of the diminutive temple of justice. Ruth Donovan was arrested on a peace warrant sworn out by a neighbor named Mrs. Hobush, and during the trial Washington Hendricks, an aged attorney who was looking after the interests of Mrs. Hobush, made severe remarks towards Mrs. Donovan. Several of that lady's relatives were present, and when it became evident that the case was going against them they assembled in a little group and discussed the best means of retaliating. The jury had scarcely returned their verdict when Dan Donovan, a brother to defendant, walked up to Charles Stahl, foreman of the jury, and sent his right fist with terrific force against the juror's face, sending him backwards over a chair, in which position he remained while Donovan kicked him till almost unconscious. Dan Donovan's example was followed by all his friends, numbering about a dozen. Wm. Donovan, another brother of defendant, took off the wooden leg which he wears and used it as a club. Standing between the jury and the door, wielding the wooden leg above his head, the unfortunate jury, forced in his direction by his infuriated companions, were strewn bruised and bleeding about the floor. The jury disposed of, the attorney and witnesses for the prosecution received attention. Mr. Hendricks was forced in a corner by some one with a revolver in his hand while another member of the party rained blow after blow with a heavy club on his unprotected head and shoulders. 'Squire Campbell stopped some one's fist with his mouth and has a cut and swollen lips while the usefulness of several of his teeth is much impaired. Mr. Hobush, the husband of the prosecuting witness, was the recipient of several well directed blows from the wooden leg, and now possesses a fearfully battered countenance. The witnesses escaped by jumping through the windows, carrying the sashes with them in their hurry. Constable Frese, with the assistance of three mounted police, who arrived when the trouble was over, arrested a few of the gang after a desperate struggle. Messrs. Hendricks, Stahl and Hobush were found in different parts of the office, still unconscious and bleeding. A physician on the Manchester road was called and dressed the wounds of all the injured. Warrants have been issued for all parties concerned.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Retail Rates of Sundry Supplies that Cheer the Inner Man.

There are vast quantities of croppie and bass coming in on Union Market. Fish of all kinds are quite plentiful. White fish and trout are selling at 12½c a pound. Halibut is worth 20c. In the poultry line, a very neat little dressed spring chicken can be bought for 20c. Turkeys have put in an appearance and are selling at 20c a pound. A few old hens are offered at from 30c to 40c apiece, Chickens by the dozen are worth from $1 75 to $2 30. Elgin creamery butter is still selling at the standard price, 28c a pound, the best Missouri and Illinois dairy can be had at 20c to 22c; other and inferior grades are still selling at from 15c to 17c. Prime sugar-cured hams are going at 16c a pound in small pieces, and nice breakfast bacon can be had at 12c a pound. Ohio creamery cheese is selling at 15c a pound, some inferior grades of cheese are selling at 8c, and dairy cheese is worth from 10c to 12½c.

The meat market continues about the same. Mutton ranges from 9c to 12c a pound, and some grades a trifle higher. Sirloin steak is selling at from 12½ to 15 cents a pound, round steak 10c, and some choice pieces of veal are selling at 14c to 17c. Ham still continues at 10c; rack is worth from 10c to 12c a pound; fresh pork shoulders are worth 9c.

Vegetables are a trifle higher. Lima beans grade up from 20c a quart. Tomatoes continue about the same; sweet boll peppers for pickling are worth from 15c to 25c a dozen. There is still a large quantity of peaches on the market. The best can still be had for 50c a basket. Some inferior grades are lower. Apples are plentiful and a few choice cooking varieties sell from 15c to 30c a peck. Bartlett pears are a trifle lower, and grapes continue to pour in plentifully. Cantaloupes range from 5c to 20c, and watermelons are at the same figures.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

The City Court adjourned last evening till Monday morning.

Thomas Walker was jailed last evening for disturbing the peace, and will have a hearing before 'Squire Draggon this afternoon.

The pay cars on the Cairo Short Line, Illinois and St. Louis and Ohio and Mississippi arrived this morning, bringing joy to the railroad employes.

Louis Gross caught 352 large croppies in the slough near his saloon, with a net, this morning, the largest catch being made there in so short a time for several years.

Charles Walkers swore out a warrant before 'Squire Draggon this morning, charging John Welsh with assault and battery. The case will be tried Monday afternoon.

Henry Woerman, a brakeman on the Belt Road, had his right hand caught between the bumpers and severely crushed while coupling cars this morning. Dr. Winton is attending, and thinks amputation of two fingers will be necessary.

Mayor Winton this morning approved the ordinance passed at the last meeting of the Council, donating the present police station for a post-office. The merchants on Broadway are opposed to moving the post office from its present location, as its removal will almost ruin their business. Mayor Winton was inclined to veto the ordinance, as he does not consider its passage legal, but decided to approve it, fearing lest his personal interest should be regarded as his reasons for vetoing. The ordinance grants Mr. Sikking the privileges of the room for ten years. Supreme Court has decided no council can grant privileges only during their term of office. The ordinance takes effect January 1 of next year.

NORTH ST. LOUIS.

The St. Louis Glass Works will resume operations next Monday.

A well-known Broadway beer merchant will shortly be united in marriage to a society belle of North St. Louis.

The local Knights Templar will have a reunion to-night at the parlors of St. Aldemar, Broadway and Benton street, to-night.

Last night, some time after midnight, 5,000 shingles were stolen from the lumber landings. It is supposed the shingles were carried off in a skiff.

A three-year-old son of Mrs. Stratton, 1340 North Eighth street, was run over in front of his parents' residence by a horse and buggy. The driver escaped. The child was severely bruised.

Next Tuesday evening the St. Louis Presbytery opens its fall meeting at North St. Louis Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. H. Shields, the retiring moderator, will preach the sermon, and Rev. H. S. Williams, the pastor, will conduct the services.

A new lodge of the United Order of Honor, with 45 charter members, was instituted last night by Capt. Harry W. Smith, at the office of Dr. W. O. Young, northeast corner Ninth and North Market streets. A name for the new lodge has not yet been chosen.

The Bremen Fishing Club will leave on Monday for Wood River, and will spend three days in that vicinity. The club's tents, fishing-tackle, provisions, etc., go forward to-night, in charge of the steward and watchman of the club. This club will probably consolidate with the North St. Louis Club. The combined numerical strength of both clubs is fifty-six.

A Fatal Accident.

While John Byerly, George F. Kaiser, Edward Braun and Patrick Cowan were working on an ice house at Wainwright's brewery, Ninth and Cerre streets, this morning, they fell a distance of thirty feet, and two of them were probably fatally hurt. They were removing a rotten girder which broke, precipitating the men to the ground. Braun's spine was seriously hurt, resulting in paralysis of the lower part of the body. Patrick Cowan was internally injured. George Kaiser had his back seriously sprained. Byerly had his left arm broken, and received several severe scalp wounds. Braun, Cowan and Kaiser were removed to City Hospital, where they are all now lying in great danger.

Hung Himself to a Transom.

Last night Louis Ochs, a German, in a despondent mood after an extended spree, committed suicide by hanging himself to the transom beam of his room at No. 3117 South Broadway. When Lizzie Gilderhans, who was accustomed to clean up the place, went to the room at 8 o'clock this morning, she found Ochs' body suspended from the door. A verdict of suicide was rendered by the Coroner.

The Bridal Bulletin.

The following marriage licenses were issued to-day: John Munroe to Mrs. Mary Ellen Ellenhouse; John Hietz to Miss Louisa Becker; Eugene W. Crafts to Miss Ada E. Carnes; Francis W. Parker to Miss Alma Chapman; Barney Dobnery to Miss Mary Kenney.

The Williamson Inquest.

This afternoon the inquest and post mortem on the body of Kate Williamson was held. McCue, who is suspected of having fatally beaten the woman, was present in the custody of an officer.

SPORTING NEWS.

St. Louis Has a Very Slim Show for the Pennant.

Standing of all the Clubs in the League and the Association To-Day—Lewis Expelled—Racing News—Ross and Courtney—Notes and Gossip.

The Metropolitans arrived here yesterday and meet the Browns to-day, to-morrow and Tuesday afternoons at Grand Avenue Park. Much depends on this series, and it is necessary that St. Louis should win all the games to fly the pennant.

To-morrow's game will be called at 3 p. m., and the other games at 3:30 p. m. No Association games were played yesterday, as all the clubs were changing places. The new series will be resumed this afternoon, and four games will be worked off, weather permitting.

The following League games were played yesterday: At Providence—Providence 2, Detroit 1. At Philadelphia—Morning game, Cleveland 5, Philadelphia 3; afternoon game, Cleveland 5, Philadelphia 1. At New York—New York 4, Buffalo 1.

O'Leary's Indianapolis nine defeated the Baltimores yesterday by a score of 7 to 5. Henderson pitched for the Baltimores. Base hits: Indianapolis 10, Baltimores 7. Errors: Indianapolis 3, Baltimores 4.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

The race for the pennant is now much more in favor of the Athletics, and St. Louis has but a bare show to win. Much depends on how the series which begins with the Metropolitans to-day is terminated. The following is the standing of all the clubs up to noon today:

| CLUBS. | St. Louis | Cincinnati | Metropolitan | Louisville | Pittsburg | Columbus | Baltimore | Athletic | Won. |
| Athletic | 7 | 4 | 9 | 6 | 12 | 13 | 11 | | 62 |

THE LEAGUE.

Chicago has lost her lead through the four successive defeats sustained from Boston this week. The leaders are still very close, as will be seen from the following table showing the standing up to noon to-day:

| CLUBS. | Boston | Providence | Cleveland | Chicago | Buffalo | New York | Detroit | Philadelphia | Won. |
| Boston | | 8 | 7 | 7 | 4 | 7 | 7 | 14 | 54 |

RACING.

The Louisville Fall Meeting will open on the 24th, and promises to be the biggest ever held on the grounds.

At the Kansas State Fair at Topeka, yesterday, there were several interesting races, which were witnessed by over 30,000 people.

At Toledo, Ohio, Lady Brownell won in the 2:25 class, Iva G. second, Barnes third. Best time 2:32. In the 2:22 class Gray Bennie won, Golden Prince second. Best time 2:30¼.

At Naragansett Park, Providence, yesterday in the 2:24 class, Howard Jay won, taking fifth, sixth and seventh heats, Louise N., who wins second, took the first and second heats. Best time, 2:21¼. Zoe B. won in the 2:40 class in straight heats, Pearl second, Glanis third. Best time, 2:40. In the special 2:20 class Director won, taking three heats, after Forest and Patchen had won the first. Best time 2:19¼.

The result at Brighton Beach yesterday was as follows: One mile—Barnum first, Exeter second, Little Dale third. Time, 1:48. Seven-eighths of a mile—Ghost first, Granite second, Lugan third. Time, 1:34¾. Mutuals paid $104. One mile and an eighth—Ida B. first, Goy. Hampton second, Blush Rose third. Time, 2 02¾. One mile—Barney Aaron first, Rena B. second, Harriet third. Time, 1:46¾. Steeplechase, about a mile and three-quarters—Baily first, Tonawanda second, Periwinkle third. Time, 3:47. Three-quarters of a mile—Kingfan first, Fellow Play second, Princess third. Time, 1:18½.

NOTES.

Winner—If you mean the third game of the series played here last, the score was St. Louis 6, Baltimores 2.

Wallace Ross says that if he can get satisfactory terms he will arrange a match with Courtney, and will wager $1,000 to $1,200 on the result.

The Scotts and Olive Reds cross bats for the third time this season to-morrow afternoon. The teams are evenly matched and a close game is expected.

The Little Brown Jugs and the Walla Hallas meet behind the Fair Grounds to-morrow morning. Griffin and Saidermann will be the Brown Jugs' battery.

Madden and Mitchell have arrived in New York and had a conference with Slade. The latter wants to fight within 100 miles of New Orleans, according to Harry Hill's decision, but Mitchell is afraid of the law. Offers from Mexico to furnish a battle ground still come in and are still unnoticed.

From the Metropolitans, who came here to-day, St. Louis has won 9 games, lost 2, and has 3 to play. The score between the St. Louis and Athletics is: St. Louis, won 4; Athletics won 7, with 3 games to play. From the Alleghenies, who close the season, St. Louis has won 8 games, while the Alleghanies have won 3 and 3 games remain to be played.

At a meeting of the St. Louis Club last night, Fred. Lewis, the center fielder, was expelled for drunkenness and insubordination. He cannot now play with the League or the Association. The Metropolitans offered $500 for Lewis' release, but President Von der Ahe thought he ought to be punished and refused the offer. All players are given the option of playing here next year, Mr. Von der Ahe stating that he would not enforce the Reserve Rule.

The Metropolitans are not at all friendly to some of the St Louis club, as will be seen by the following annecdote. When the boys were in New York, last, Billy Gleason says that Crane, Roseman and O'Rourke had made a combination to spike, or otherwise injure him, and that they swore, as the plan failed in New York, that when they came here they would lay Billy up so that he could play no more this season. Gleason says that one time, when he was going to second base, he saw Crane fixed to hurt him, and he determined to be even. So he gave the Mets second baseman "the knee," which is a technical term, used in base-ball. Mr. Crane was thrown several feet, alighting on his face. Getting up, with the blood streaming from his mouth and nose, Gleason says he asked him if he was hurt, and that Mr. Crane replied, with much profanity, and stated that that was not the end of it. These are hardly fair feelings for ball-players to entertain, but Gleason says he was forced to do what he did to protect himself, and that he is able to do so against any number of ball-players. During the same series, Halbert, the Mets' catcher, while playing close up to the bat, had a cursing-match with a batter for St. Louis, and threatened to lick him after the game was over, in the hearing of the umpire.

The Athletics and Cincinnati began a series of games to-day, which has more interest for St. Louis than for Cincinnati, since the latter town cannot now win the pennant, while St. Louis might if Cincinnati does good work. The clubs have already played eleven games, out of which Cincinnati got seven and the Athletics four. Three games remain to be played. The scores of the games so far played are as follows: May 29, Athletics 2, Cincinnati 1; May 30, Athletics 9, Cincinnati 10; May 31, Athletics 8, Cincinnati 7; June 18, Athletics 0, Cincinnati 6; June 19, Athletics 0, Cincinnati 7; June 20, Athletics 1, Cincinnati 11; June 21, Athletics 14, Cincinnati 5; August 21, Athletics 11, Cincinnati 9; August 22, Athletics 6, Cincinnati 8; August 23, Athletics 1, Cincinnati 4; August 24, Athletics 5, Cincinnati 8. This is some consolation for St. Louis, as it shows that Cincinnati has always bested the Athletics, and as the champions are in good shape they might win three games now. After the Cincinnatis finish with the Athletics, the latter come to St. Louis and then go to Louisville, where they meet the Eclipse. So far these clubs have played ten games, out of which the Athletics have won six and lost four. Four more remain to be played. The following are the scores of the games already played: June 12—Athletics 8, Eclipse 2; June 13—Athletics 3, Eclipse 10; June 14—Athletics 5, Eclipse 6; July 4—Athletics 2, Eclipse 9; July 4—Athletics 14, Eclipse 9; July 7—Athletics 4, Eclipse 3; July 8—Athletics —, Eclipse —; August 28—Athletics 8, Eclipse 10; August 29—Athletics 11, Eclipse 3; August 30—Athletics 8, Eclipse 7; August 31—Athletics 6, Eclipse 3.

Walter H. Bonbright, the prince of eastern elocutionists, will, in all probability, be soon associated with E. L. McDowell of this city. Mr. Bonbright will assume charge of the rhetorical and elocutionary classwork. Mr. McDowell will devote his time to separate specialties and private dramatics. Mr. Boubright is highly connected in Philadelphia, and a young man of high attainments in his adopted elocutionary profession; but independent of his leinage and social prerogatives, our people will find in "Bonnie" an inexhaustible well-spring of entertainment, and a quick source of practical tuition.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Children who are learning to creep may be improved in appearance if over the white dress is put a little colored skirt, with straps for the arms to be slipped through; make these of the pretty or blue ginghams—not the checked goods, but plain.

A little curry powder in chopped pickle gives a delicious flavor to it. A tablespoonful of the powder to four quarts of pickle is about the right quantity to use, unless you like to use the curry in place of pepper; then at least twice this quantity should be put in.

Fricassed lamb is a very appetizing dish. Cut the meat in small pieces, and boil in as little water as is needed to cover the meat. When that is done add more hot water, and make a rich gravy with butter and browned flour. Biscuits or toast are good served with this.

Codfish croquettes are excellent for breakfast. Take boiled codfish, pick it in small bits, add an equal quantity of mashed potato and of breadcrumbs, pepper well, and if too fresh add a little salt; flour your hands, and roll in the shape of flat cakes; drop in very hot lard and let them brown.

Porcelain plaques show to good advantage if hung against a dark background, and are considered a little more in keeping with high art, if instead of being framed in plush, they are hung against squares of wood covered with plush; for instance, at the back of one of these plaques was a square of dark blue plush; it was hung with one corner up, or cornerwise, not squarely, and was very handsome.

A very tasteful table scarf is of dark olive felt, with a band of crimson plush across one end, with fringe below it, and spray of flowers embroidered on it on ; the other end at equal distances apart put squares of the plush, and between the squares put small clusters of flowers in Kensington stitch. Arrange it so that there will be three squares of plush and two clusters of flowers.

Salads are not only so fashionable, but are so appetizing that it is a very good plan to have a succession of lettuce growing in the garden, so that at any time you may have crisp and tender young leaves to use. A delicious ripe tomato salad requires the lettuce leaves to make it perfect. Take round smooth tomatoes, skin them, make a little hole in the top of each, remove the inner portion, mix a spoonful of mayonnaise dressing with it, put it in the tomato and cover the top with a lettuce leaf.

A delicious apple pudding to be served hot is made thus: Peal and quarter enough apples to cover the bottom of a deep tin plate; then make a batter of sour milk, soda and flour, with a tablespoonful of lard to enough flour to make a batter which will cover the apples. This should not be thicker than for pancakes. Pour it over the apples and bake till brown. Then, when done, turn it on a large plate with the crust down. Over the apples scatter sugar and cinnamon. If you like it rich spread a thin layer of butter over the apples before putting the sugar and cinnamon on.

MAGUIRE'S Quinine and Iron gives appetite.

A Personal Letter.

BLUE JACKET, I. T., August 8, 1883.—C. H. Sampson, Esq.: Dear Sir—Please send me your illustrated book of "How to Use Florence Knitting Silk." I always use the Florence in preference to any other silk for knitting. Have found it smoother, more durable and holding color better. I had one of your books, but lost it when moving here. Yours respectfully, MRS. T. J. MULLEN.

Prairie chicken—upon which the President has so heavily feasted of late—is best when roasted and eaten with jelly. To split it open and broil is to spoil it, so the epicures of the West say, and it should never be allowed to stand after being cooked.

THE boasted luster of imitations vanish with the first wetting, while washing improves that popular knitting silk, the "Peerless Florence."

Frogs fried in batter are all well and good enough, provided too much batter is not used, but the best cooks do not use it at all, and frogs prepared by them taste very delicious and delicate. Even such a thing as a frog can be ruined by bad cooking.

Grand Billiard Opening.

Last evening Mussey's Billiard Parlor was thrown open to the newspaper fraternity and a few invited guests, prior to its opening to the general public this morning. The parlor is elegantly fitted up, everything being in the highest style of artistic finish, both as to tables and decorations. Champagne and other liquids flowed in abundance, gratis, and every one was made to feel at home and at ease. Messrs. Sam G. Baldwin and Rudolph Teutenberg, both young men and born in St. Louis, have succeeded Mr. Charles E. Mussey as proprietors, and are determined to retain the reputation made by Mr. Mussey for his parlor, and will spare no pains nor expense to accomplish this purpose. There were a number of very fine games played by expert amateurs and professionals, the most noticeable ones being between Thomas J. Gallagher, ex-billiardist and present sporting editor of the Globe-Democrat, and Louis Reed, Gallagher playing 250 to Reed's 150, and another game, where Wm. H. Cotton, a professional, discounted Ed. Nelson, a very fine expert amateur, 100 points. In the first Reed won by a score of 150 to Gallagher's 137, and in the second Nelson was the winner by a score of 100 to 96. Henry Leist and Harry Baldwin played ball pool, a ten-dollar note being the prize. The terms were that the first one making 100 balls should be the winner. Leist won the game, Baldwin making but 64 balls.

THE COUNCIL.

Proceedings of the Session Last Night—Vastine's Resolution.

The meeting of the Council last night was a stormy one. The Mayor sent in two nominations, that of Theo. Gast, for Street Commissioner, and that of A. Sween as weigher of the South Levee scales. Both were referred to the Committee on Public Improvements. A petition from the ladies of the Women's Cooking School asking the Municipal Assembly to pass a meat-inspection ordinance, was referred to the Mayor with a request to authorize general sanitary legislation on the part of the assembly. Mr. Rowse, chairman of the Committee on Public Improvements, read a very long communication which he had received from Henry Flad, president of the Board of Public Improvements, on the subject of the extension of the Water Works. The letter was in reply to a resolution adopted by the Council on the 7th instant.

On motion of Mr. Stone the communication was laid on the table. A motion by Mr. Rowse to take from the table the nomination of Charles F. Cady as police justice was lost. An attempt was made to go into committee of the whole on the nomination of F. W. Mott for Park Commissioner and A. F. Setzer for Market Master of Soulard Market, but after some discussion the attempt was abandoned and the nominations were referred to appropriate committees.

Mr. Vastine offered a resolution setting forth that whereas all business submitted to the present session had been disposed of, and, whereas the charter required that the Mayor should on April 7, 1883, submit appointments to office not less than fifty-three in number, and whereas up to date only twenty-two of these appointments had been submitted, or an average of less than one per week; therefore, resolved that his Honor be requested to increase the average in number and extent and to open the doors to general legislation. After a lengthy discussion in which Mr. Rowse attacked the course of the Seven and Mr. Vastine defended it, the resolution was adopted and the Council adjourned for one week.

AMPLE accommodation for all going to Chicago next Saturday and Sunday nights via Vandalia and Illinois Central Line; $5 round trip.

COON, BECK & MARSHALL.

A Reporter's Visit to One of the Largest Carpet Houses in the West.

"And we are really to be one?" lisped a reporter to his sweetheart last night as he peered into the tinted depths of her unextinguishable optics.

"Yes," she simpered in an orange blossom undertone, that caused the reporter's temperature to increase just twenty-five degrees, "and don't you think we had better step into Coon, Beck & Marshall's, 509 North Fourth street, and look at some of the upholstery and carpets and oil cloths, and window shades and crad——." Mary's speech was cut short by the presence of a genteel stranger, who asked if the firm of Coon, Beck & Marshall of 509 North Fourth street had not been mentioned.

"Certainly!" wailed the man of the quill as he sprang sharply round and took the measure of the neatly dressed gentleman. The house was filled with purchasers when the reporter and Mary, accompanied by the elegant stranger, entered the building. The house was evidently doing the largest fall business known to its cash books.

"You will pardon my impertinence," continued the reporter, "but me and Mary have to-night—well—we have come to look over your bill of fare."

"I see! Oh, yes! Well, if it is anything in the line of Brussels carpets, black bear rugs, fine table spreads, jointless mattings, mohair plushes, plain and fancy turcomans, brass poles, window shades, cocoanut mattings, crumb cloths, antimacassars, palm-leaf tapestries, or dado shades, we shall be most happy to serve you."

"You have the envious reputation of treating the public well, I must say," answered the man of the quill.

"Yes, and it is bringing us an unusual share of public patronage. Our selections have been made this fall with unusual care from the best and most reliable sources, and it always affords us unspeakable pleasure to offer the same for the inspection of the public."

MAGUIRE'S Quinine and Iron prevents ague.

SEE the Hanlons. See the Hanlons. Every look and gesture of the Hanlons a joke.

Henry McNichols

Carries a stock of all kinds of furniture and housekeeping articles.

"I told you there was something that we forgot going home last night," remarked the reporter's sweetheart to him this morning on his way down to the office.

"What's that? A picture of George Washington?"

"O. hush!"

"A bran new canary from the Canary Islands?"

"No."

"An insurance policy?"

"No."

"Give it up."

"The license!"

"That all?"

"No."

"What else?"

"Why some things which you ought to have ordered of Henry McNichols, 1022 and 1024 Market street, opposite the City Hall, one of the most genial stove and furniture dealers in the city."

"Has a fine supply, eh?"

"I should shout!"

"Oil cloths?"

"Yes."

"Picture frames?"

"Yes."

"Looking glasses?"

"Yes."

"Tinware?"

"Yes."

"Cutlery?"

"Yes."

"How is he on payments?"

"You can get anything you want from him on cash or monthly payments."

"Makes it easy on a man who has an extravagant wife, eh?"

"Yes, I know of no better place in St. Louis where young folks can get fixed up to housekeeping than Henry McNichols'."

"What else does Henry McNichols keep?"

"Why, all sorts of durable furniture, chromos, and if you want a real first-class kitchen stove I know of no better place in St. Louis to buy it than at Henry's."

The man of the quill, after taking a personal survey of the genial man's stock, was forced to the conclusion that Mary had not exaggerated, but had rather underrated things.

Five Dollars to Chicago and Return.

The Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return September 22 and 23, at $5 for the round trip for visitors to the Chicago Industrial Exposition, Illinois State Fair and the races. Tickets good going Saturday, September 22 and 23, and good to return up to and including Wednesday, September 26. Two sleeping cars and free reclining chair car on night train. Also free reclining chair car on day train. Ample accommodations for all.

CITY NEWS.

The saloon-keepers appointed a committee on permanent organization at yesterday's meeting.

James Ryan had his ear patched up at the Dispensary. A private watchman split it with a club.

Thos. Drury was arrested yesterday for stealing a coat from Frank Sexton, of 912 Franklin avenue.

A child of Mrs. Stratton was run over and badly bruised yesterday in front of 1340 North Eighth street.

An Exposition Item.
From the St. Joe Gazette.

The first silk display ever made by a manufacturer in St. Joseph is highly appreciated. It is the exhibit of the Corticelli Silk Company, whose mills are the greatest silk thread works in the world. It is said that their extensive exhibit at Louisville—where they run machinery also—is the most attractive feature of the Exposition. Here they have several cases showing specimens of silk moths, eggs, cocoons, raw silk and manufactured goods, including the celebrated Corticelli spool silk and embroidery silk, the popular Florence knitting silk, silk underwear, hosiery, etc. A prettily illustrated parody on "The House that Jack Built," tells the story of the manufacture admirably.

There are the moths, with brilliant wings,
Laying the eggs, such dainty things,
That hatched the worms, busy as bees,
Eating the leaves from Mulberry trees.
They make the cocoons, that neatly unwind
The delicate fibre so closely entwined,
That forms the thread, the silken thread,
That every one said, was worthy the Mills Corticelli built.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Among the lodge advertisements will be found something of interest to this part of the city.

Rev. N. R. Pittman of Wadesboro, North Carolina, will preach to-morrow morning and evening at the Carondelet Baptist Church.

Several additional cases of diphtheria are reported, among others two children of Mrs. Burkhardt and another in the family of Mr. Dunman, who lost a child with the disease a few days ago.

The visit of C. J. Wannecker, D. D. G. Master Workman, with the Jefferson quartette and members of Jefferson Lodge, No. 14, A. O. U. W., to Carondelet Lodge, 283, was a very pleasant affair. The visitors received a cordial welcome, and left well pleased with their entertainment, a grand collation being provided, and with the workings of the new lodge.

As a street car was going north yesterday a boy attempted to get on, and while so doing a lightning rod wagon came along at a rapid rate, the driver paying no attention to the boy, who was knocked down, one of the wheels of the wagon passing over his right leg. The driver did not then even halt, but increased his speed. The boy did not at the time appear to be very seriously injured, and was assisted away by some companions. His name was not learned.

Montgomery Wants Money.

Late yesterday afternoon two suits were filed in the Circuit Clerk's office, the defendant in each case being the publishers of the POST-DISPATCH. Robert S. Montgomery and John R. Wallace, both of Shelbyville, Tenn., are the respective plaintiffs. Each of these gentlemen wants $50,000 from the POST-DISPATCH as reparation for injuries that are alleged to have been inflicted upon them by the publication in this paper on June 3, 1882, of an article purporting to give the details of certain transactions between Montgomery and Wallace, as President and Cashier, respectively, of the Shelbyville Savings Bank, and Mr. George H. Small of this city. Montgomery was arrested and brought to St. Louis by Detective Frank Watkins, and it was apropos of his arrest that the article referred to was written purely as a matter of news. Subsequently, the POST-DISPATCH published for Mr. Montgomery a card, signed by himself, giving his own version of the circumstances attending his arrest. Jamison, Collins & Jamison and Wm. Bates are the attorneys who have undertaken to make $50,000 apiece for Messrs. Montgomery and Wallace.

THE Bessehl Restaurant, in rear of and above the "Annex," No. 7 N. Fifth street, under the management of Mitchell and Deisner, is growing in popularity every day. The oyster restaurant, in rear of the saloon, is particular convenient to lawyers and business men for the mid-day lunches, while the ladies' parlors up-stairs are the most elegantly fitted in the city. For theater parties they are especially attractive. Clam chowder is a specialty of Mitchell and Deisner. Best viands of all descriptions are constantly served.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

BE it known that the limited partnership between Wightman Breedlove Smith and David R. Francis, heretofore entered into on the 2d day of August, 1882, is hereby renewed, as follows: That Wightman Breedlove Smith and David R. Francis, each residing in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, do hereby continue the limited partnership heretofore entered into, under the firm name and style of Breedlove Smith and Wightman. Breedlove Smith is the general partner, and David R. Francis is the special partner: and said David R. Francis has actually contributed and paid into such partnership the sum of fifteen thousand dollars in lawful money of the United States, and the general nature of the business to be transacted by said co-partnership shall be a grain exporting and general commission business, to be transacted in the city of St. Louis, State aforesaid; and said partnership as hereby renewed or continued, shall continue for the period of one year commencing on the first day of September, Anno Domini, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and David R. Francis may withdraw annually for his individual use, from the means of said partnership, an amount equal to one-half the net profits of said partnership, and the books of the present partnership hereby renewed or continued, have been balanced, the balance of profit ascertained; and after taking into account only the true amount of its assets esteemed good the amount to the credit of said David R. Francis on said books is fifteen thousand dollars.

CHERUB'S CHAT.

A Gossipy Review of the Theatrical Attractions of the Week.

Poor Players Who Aspire to Stellar Honors—Supporting Companies Made Up of Unknown Actors—The Coming Shows—Dime Museum Opening.

THE prophets are moving towards the back eats. They said the theatrical season would pen with a boom, and that its joyful music would be patronized to a sufficient extent to elight the hearts of managers and players like.

Unfortunately for the managers and players, this is not the case. Particularly is it ot the case around St. Louis.

The boom has not reached this vicinity et, and, providing the weather continues its armth and the attractions retain their unpleasantly poor quality, it is not likely to rike this shore for some time to come, if ideed, it ever does.

All the houses here were very sparingly atronized during the week. On any one night ere were scarcely enough people in four of e theaters to make a respectable audience r any one of them.

The Standard had a large attendance at each erformance, but people expert in measuring e pulse ascribed the rush to the novelty at always surrounds a theatrical opening, d that seldom fails to attract full houses.

The performances were not worthy of any traordinary attention. A class of lowade plays with third or fourth-rate actors, s presented that was not calculated to precipitate anything like a general turn-out.

St. Louisans are as a rule, intelligent in eir selection of entertainments. They ay patronize a poor performance once, ut never a second time.

They are beginning, too, to have some onfidence in the critics of the daily press, nd when a first-class paper like the POST-DISPATCH says that a drama or combination, or both, cannot be conscientiously commended, the people believe it.

"The Power of Money," at the Standard as played during the week to audience, at filled the house.

As I have said before, it amounts to very ttle as a melodrama, and there is nothing articularly meritorious in the efforts of the ompany engaged in its representation.

The scenery, to fit which the play was ritten, is a piece of job work, is very good. is the same originally used in the mounting of "The Living Age" which failed at e Union Square Theater.

The unusual length of the play makes the erformance rather tedious, and the excessive verbiage of the dialogue, weakening the ations which have any pretensions to ength, is sometimes quite painful.

Miss Bessie Sanson is the principal feature of the cast. She fails to entirely satisfy those who admired her in the Vokes' ches.

Her singing is not as effective as one ould expect to find it in a soubrette of her putation, and her acting is better fitted to e than the melodrama.

The other performers are cheap and their k does not rise beyond mediocrity.

Manager Robertson made a commendable t to give the patrons of the People's ater, a good show, and partially succeeded.

His business during the week was fair, to the ordinary run of theater-goers the formance may be said to have been acceptable—nothing more.

met a variety manager the other day who, n questioned about business, at once n to deeply deplore the impossibility of ng good people for his show.

"here are," he said, 153 specialty combinations either now on the road or about to out. They are headed by people who made reputations on the variety stage filled in by 'hams' of the worst stripe. equence small managers who do not combinations are powerless to secure class attractions, although I think after t three-fourths of these so-called stars a little pedestrian experience getting e the supply of good specialty artists more than equal to the demand."

ntleman explained the barrenness n the legitimate as well as variety n he spoke these words.

Jennie Yeamans' appearance at the Opera House this week, as a comedy suggested some of the foregoing strictures n the present condition of the stage. s Yeamans' talents cannot flourish outside the variety theater. has occasionally sung a song well or danced a few interesting bars in some mongrel play wherein music and mirth were the principal characteristics.

She has reeled off a negro melody satisfactory at times, and I believe can spit over her shoulder as cleverly as does little Alice Harrison.

But I never saw any acting Miss Yeamans had done to justify anybody in writing a play for or anybody else in putting the play on the boards with Miss Yeamans in the stellar part.

In "Meda," which E. A. Locke, a writer of dramas to order, constructed for her out of time-worn materials, she does no better and no worse than she did when she was not a star.

She goes through the part quite mechanically, and comes on to sing and dance with a nonchalance of look and gesture that betrays her own appreciation of the quality of her work.

Her every movement is a semi-braggart declaration of her ability to warble and do a double-shuffle. She seems to say: "This is what you've come here to see, and you bet your sweet life you're going to see it."

And indeed that is all her audiences do see that is at all worth looking at. Her singing and dancing, which are only fair in quality, embody all the merit there is in her impersonation of the gipsy girl, Meda.

I do not think much of her company or play, and have no confidence in the young lady's ability to long hold the high rank to which she is now aspiring in her profession.

Miss Lizzie Evans, who has held the boards at Pope's since last Sunday night, is another new star. She is following in Minnie Maddern's footsteps under the same management that carried Miss Maddern successfully through last season.

Miss Evans is young, and undoubtedly talented. She has not a strong voice, but her singing is sweet, and she acts with the naivete and grace of one born to position on the stage.

I am sorry to be compelled to say that she received little encouragement during the week, her audiences having been unfailingly small and the absence of enthusiasm painfully prominent.

"Fogg's Ferry," with which she opened, is a sad sort of a comedy, and failed to please, notwithstanding Miss Evans' spirited efforts, backed by those of a fairly good supporting company.

On Thursday night "Dewdrop," a new play by the author of "Fogg's Ferry," and somewhat better than its predecessor, was put on, but it also failed to draw.

Miss Evans found excellent opportunity in the new role for the display of her soubrette qualities, and I think her success will be made, if in anything, in "Dewdrop."

As has been stated before in these columns the little lady has been on the stage only a few years, is quite young and comes from the ranks of Barney McAuley's company, in which she played Clip in "A Messenger from Jarvis Section."

"Her Second Love," at the Olympic, did not draw and did not deserve to draw. It is a bad play by that poor dramatist, John A. Stevens, who enacted the role of the hero.

Maud Granger had the principal female role and played it for all it was worth. Her acting was about the only good thing in the performance.

The attractions for the coming week are announced as follows:

At the Grand Opera House, "The Tourists," with several new specialty people.

At the Olympic the Hanlons, with their 'Voyage en Suisse."

At the Standard the Majilton's European Comedy Company, which the Eastern press speaks of as an exceedingly good show.

At the People's the Chicago Ideal Opera Company, opening in "Iolanthe," and singing "Patience," the "Sorcerer" and "Pinafore" during the week. William L. Davis is the manager of the company, and Miss Jessie Bartlett-Davis and other excellent acting vocalists are among its members.

At Pope's "A Planter's Wife" will be played by Harry Lacey and a first-class dramatic company. This play had a great success last season. Ed. Zimmerman, formerly treasurer at Pope's Theater, is the manager.

Gregory's Fifth Street Museum opens at 1 o'clock to-day with a large collection of human and mechanical curiosities that have never been seen in St. Louis before.

The interior of the building has been thoroughly renovated, the walls elegantly papered and the ceilings artistically decorated. The third floor will be devoted to illusions, the second floor used as a curiosity hall and the ground floor as a theatorium.

Mr. Gregory has just returned from a trip to the East, and says that after comparing the other institutions of the eastern cities with those of the Future Great, he has no hesitancy in pronouncing the latter the handsomest and most conveniently arranged museums of the country.

The Fourth Street Museum is running with a full line of curiosities and theatorium attractions.

Clara Morris will begin her season in Baltimore, next month. She will be seen here at the Grand in November.

Charles Wyndham began an engagement in New York last week in the play entitled "A Celebrated Divorce," and scored a great metropolitan success. CHERUB.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Evolution.

In a short pamphlet of forty-one pages Mr. Robert C. Adams has succeeded in making a summary of the evidence for evolution (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons) which can only be described by the one word, masterly. The article is a lecture which was delivered in Montreal last March, and within its limits we have seen nothing so clearly put as Mr. Adams' work. He defines evolution to be "the theory that all the varied details of the universe are the result of a gradual development from simple conditions through the working of the laws of nature which now surround us. Worlds, minerals, plants, animals, man, language, morals, laws, literature, arts and sciences, as they exist to-day, are the outcome of the unceasing successions of cause and effect that have taken place through the preceding ages in accordance with natural law." And he then hastens to marshal the evidence. We will select here and there excerpts which show how he has attacked the problem.

The most marked distinction between animals is the possession or non-possession of a backbone. The theory of special creation was long supported by triumphant appeals to the gap between the backboned (vertebrate) and the non-backboned (invertebrate) animals. It was claimed such a change could only have been made by the special act of God in creating a new form. But in the lowest fish, known as the lancelet, or amphioxus, we find a soft rod in place of the backbone. That is called the notochord, and represents the commencement of the formation of the backbone in animals. This little fish is only one or two inches long, and inhabits sandy coasts. It has neither limbs, heart nor brain, and a narrow fin is the only distinct fish appendage that it possesses; but in many respects it resembles the molluscs, or soft-bodied invertebrates.

Later on he says:

We have seen that all animal and plant life is allied in form, and we find further that it is identical in substance. The microscope discovers that the vegetable cells and the animal cells are alike composed of what is called protoplasm, or first form, which closely resembles the white of egg, a clear semi-fluid substance. One of the lowest forms of animal life, the amœba, is just a speck of this substance, and in the nettle-hair the protoplasm is seen lining the woody matter that forms the wall of the cells that compose its structure. These cells of protoplasm increase by division, multiplying themselves and combining into varied structures. Microscopic examination shows that the human body in all its parts is built up of these little cells of protoplasm. The blood carries these little specks, resembling the amœba, to the place where they are to combine in the structure.

Not only is the body composed of protoplasm, but it originates in a single cell of this substance, and the germs which produce men, dogs, sheep, or any of the highest class of animals, cannot be discovered to differ by any test of microscope or chemistry.

Under the sub-section Embryology the following occurs:

"The great discovery of more recent times in this department is the fact that the germs of all animals appear to be alike in their earliest stage, and they develop through similar forms until they assume the special features of their own species. The embryo of each animal successively resembles the embryos of the race below it, until they part company to attain their final form.

"The lowest forms of life, the protozoans, reproduce themselves by division of their bodies, or the formation of buds, but all other animals produce eggs, which, when fertilized, divide and sub-divide till they form a mass of cells like the mulberry. The germ then gradually changes into a cup-form, called gastrula, having two different layers, called the primary-germ layers. The germs of all invertebrates pass through these changes, as do also those of the vertebrates, as far as observed. Other changes occur which are common to all animal germs, each one passing through the forms common to the races below it, and then diverging to its own peculiarities.

"The development of man, as far as traced, agrees with that of lower animals: the morula or mulberry stage is shown, as in the sponge, sea-squirt, and lancelet; and so on through forms resembling stages of the embryos of fish, reptile and quadruped. Not that man is ever a fish or beast, but his embryo and that of a fish at certain periods are almost identical, and each diverges—the fish toward its final form, and man toward a resemblance to the embryo of a higher class, at a period before it assumes its complete shape.

"Haeckel in 'The Evolution of Man,' gives a plate illustrating the development of the fish, salamander, tortoise, chick, hog, calf, rabbit, and man, which shows that at some period there is a correspondence of form between the embryos of each which demonstrates their relationship, and can only be explained by admitting the unity of the nature of all vertebrates.

"What is the meaning of these remarkable facts? Is it probable that the Creator, after making all things at once in a perfect form, decided that all future structures should pass through all the gradations of lower forms before assuming their designed conditions, or do the facts suggest that each individual declares to us the history of its race?" St. Louis: St. Louis Stationery and Book Company.

Our Civil War.

Messrs. Porter & Choates of Philadelphia, have published an authorized translation of the new volume of the Comte de Paris' history of our civil war. The two volumes in French—the fifth and sixth—are bound together in the translation, in one volume. It includes the most important and decisive period of the war, and the two great campaigns of Gettysburg and Vicksburg.

The great civil war has had no better, no abler historian than the French Prince who, emulating the example of Lafayette, took part in this new struggle for freedom, and who now writes of events, in many of which he participated, as an accomplished officer, and one who, by his independent position, his high character and eminent talents, was placed in circumstances and relations which gave him almost unequaled opportunities to gain correct information and form impartial judgments.

The new installment of a work which has already become a classic will be read with increased interest by Americans because of the importance of the period it covers, and the stirring events it describes.

A Newport Aquarelle.

Roberts Brothers of Boston publish a great many excellent books, and hence one can forgive an occasional piece of nicely bound stupidity like "A Newport Aquarelle." Miss Summer's novel has some very sweet conversation threaded upon an exceedingly slender plot. Glad ya Carleton, becomes engaged to an English impostor named Larkington. The young man whom she really loves, goes out to Colorado and enriches himself, and then returns in time to save his sweetheart. The scene is of course laid in Newport and the local color is well washed in. It is a novel, however, entirely without merit, so very thin, indeed, that one wonders how publishers can be found who are willing to assume the risk of printing it.

Notes.

The fifth edition of "Those Pretty St. George Girls," Philadelphia, T. B. Peterson & Co., has been issued. It is a rather breezy story, and deserves its run of good luck.

The story of "The Breadwinners," now running in the Century, has proven an unexpected success. A new edition of the September number had to be printed in order to meet the demand.

The Modern Age for November, will contain a translation from the Russian of Nicholas Gogol. Gogol is the standard humorist in Russian literature, although American readers know little or nothing of his works. The story in question is entitled "The Devil's Flirtation," and gives an amusing picture of social life in Little Russia.

Dr. Wm. Porter of St. Louis has published in the last New England Medical Monthly a paper on cremation in the nineteenth century, which forms an interesting addition to the literature of the dead. The doctor is a strong advocate of incineration, and quotes Pasteur, Lyon, Playfair and other leading medical lights.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The ministerial vacation has closed, and religious circles are again being stirred to their wonted activity. A few of the churches have been renovated and present a cheerful aspect. The pastors appear strengthened with their mountainous rambles, and the local church organist pulls out his sub-base organ stop with a determined enthusiasm.

METHODIST NOTES.

Other local Methodist Episcopal ministers are now attending the Missouri Conference at Chillicothe.

Rev. W. T. Neff of the M. E. Church, corner of Twenty-fourth and Morgan, will preach morning and night.

The Rev. G. W. Hughey of the Second and Union Streets M. E. Church will preach on Sunday morning and night.

The Rev. Dr. Tudor will preach at the Centenary, on Sixteenth and Pine streets, on Sabbath morning and night.

The Rev. Chas. Holtkamp of the Wash and Sixteenth M. E. Church will preach on next Sabbath at the usual hour.

The Rev. Dr. H. Schuetz of the Eighth and Soulard Street M. E. Church will occupy his pulpit as usual on next Lord's Day.

The Rev. J. W. Van Cleave is in the city on his way to the Belleville, Ill., conference, which convenes on the 19th of September.

The Rev. J. F. Corrington of the Fourteenth and Obear Avenue M. E. Church will fill his pulpit as usual on next Lord's Day.

The Rev. M. B. Wood, of the Goode Avenue and Parsons Street M. E. Church, will preach on Sabbath morning at 11, and at night.

The Rev. R. I. Hicks will preach at the First M. E. Church, corner of Dayton street and Glasgow avenue, at 10 a. m. and at night at 7:30.

The Rev. R. R. Pierce of the Trinity M. E. Church, Tenth and North Market streets, will officiate next Sabbath, both morning and night.

The Rev. C. P. Masden will preach at the Union M. E. Church, on the southwest corner of Garrison and Lucas avenues, on next Sabbath morning and night.

The Rev. Albert Jump, of the St. Luke's M. E. Church, corner of Potomac and Texas avenue, Carondelet, will preach on Lord's Day morning at 11, and at night at 7.

CHRISTIAN NOTES.

The Rev. Dr. Foy will preach at the Pickwick Theater on next Sunday morning, subject: "Common Sense Views of Prayer."

At the First Christian Church, corner of Seventeenth and Olive streets, on Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock, Messrs. Smith and Garth, missionaries on their way to Japan, will hold special services, the last before they reach their distant field. Sunday night Mr. Hall, the pastor, will preach a special sermon to the St. Louis printers. Subject: "Moral Type-Setting." The printers are warmly invited by the officials of the church to attend this service. The young men of the church have been organized for work, Mr. Frank Rumbold president and Mr. Charles Roberts, secretary. The young ladies also have been organized for social and devotional purposes, with Miss Sallie Patterson, president, and Miss Leila Wilkerson, secretary. These organizations will unite in a series of social and literary parlor entertainments this fall and winter, the first to be given next week. The months' work will close with a Sunday-school Mass Meeting on the last Sunday in the month.

BAPTIST NOTES.

Rev. Mr. Pittman, of South Carolina, is expected in the city to-day, and will preach morning and evening Sunday at the South St. Louis Baptist Church.

Rev. Wm. Harris, pastor of the Garrison Avenue Baptist Church, will preach to-morrow morning on "Stumbling Blocks," Roman xiv:13, and in the evening on "Obedience," 1 Samuel xv:23.

Rev. S. A. Kingsberry, of Upper Alton, Ill., will preach both morning and evening at the Park Avenue Baptist Church. Rev. D. I. Purser declined the call to the pastorate of this church on account of being in the Evangelistic work in Mississippi.

Rev. J. C. Armstrong, late pastor of the Garrison Avenue Baptist Church, now of Mexico, Mo., is in the city on a visit to his old friends, and also to represent the Missouri Baptist General Association at the St. Louis Association, now in session at Kirkwood.

Rev. Father Stimson, as he is familiarly called, now 81 years of age, and formerly of Burlingame, Kansas, now of New York, passed through here to-day en route to visit his old home once more. He will return next week and reside the remainder of his days in New York. He is the author of the work, "From the Stage-coach to the Pulpit," a rich, rare and racy work.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES.

The Rev. S. J. Niccolls, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, will preach at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.

The Rev. H. D. Ganse will preach as usual to-morrow morning and night at the First Presbyterian Church, northwest corner of Fourteenth and Lucas Place.

The Rev. R. G. Brank, D.D., pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, northeast corner of Lucas and Garrison avenues, will hold Sabbath services at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Y. M. C. A.

The Central Union Sunday-School, which meets at the Y. M. C. A. central building, has reorganized for the fall by the election of new officers.

The religious services at the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow will include a meeting for young men only at 4:15 p. m. and a union gospel meeting, to be led by Mr. C. R. Garrison, will be held at 8 p. m.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A song service for railroad men and their families will be held at Room No. 1, Union Depot on Tuesday evening.

The young ladies of the North Church are preparing to give a Broom Brigade entertainment one week from Thursday evening.

Rev. H. S. Williams, the pastor, will conduct divine service in the lecture room of the North Church both morning and evening to-morrow.

The St. Louis Presbytery will meet at the North Presbyterian Church next Tuesday evening, September 18. Rev. J. H. Shields, the Moderator, will preach the opening sermon.

Mr. Z. M. Williams, Assistant Secretary Y. M. C. A., will preach to-morrow morning at Ferguson, St. Louis County, and to-morrow evening at the Page Avenue M. E. Church South.

LOVE'S SWEET RED ROSE.

No wind that blows can ever harm
Love's sweet red rose.
The north wind will not it molest,
The south wind rocks it on its breast,
And east or west all things are best.
Love's sweet red rose
From every wind receives some charm,
Takes richer scent, or tint more warm,
And fairer grows.

No frost love's splendid flower can blight,
No cold can kill;
Its roots are far away from harm,
Deep in the heart all safe and warm—
The tender heart that has a charm
For every ill.
And so the flower is crimson bright,
And sweetest perfume day and night
The rose leaves fill,

No storm that blows can hurt the rose—
The rose love plants;
If skies be black and overcast,
It bravely stands through rain and blast,
And fairer shows when storms are past.
The rose love plants
Through every tempest stronger grows,
In coldest seasons sweetly blows,
And perfume grants.

Then plant the tiny crimson bloom
Of love's sweet rose.
If skies are blue, if tempests lower,
'Twill sweeter be from hour to hour,
Till life and love are but one flower
That grows, and grows,
Deep in the heart's most tender gloom,
Till all is beauty and perfume
With love's sweet rose.

CONRAD'S LOVE.

A great, strapping, muscular fellow was Conrad Midburger, and he was admitted to be the best dancer and swordsman in the village. His complexion was darker than that of most of his neighbors, for there was a tradition of Magyar blood in the family, and his face was by no means lacking in intelligence of a merry and peaceful sort.

The village itself had a look of having been finished long ago, but a "reader of men" might have looked at Conrad, if he saw him there, and said:

"But that fellow's only half done yet. He doesn't half understand himself. Pity there's nothing in this sleepy valley to wake him up."

If, however, the process of waking up was to imply any sort of shaking, there had been little enough of that in the life which Conrad had thus far led. The greatest events of the outside world had been only as storms on the ocean, sending hardly a ripple of their uproar into the little land-locked cove of the old, dull village.

Gottlieb Midburger, Conrad's father, with his old crony and partner, Franz Hoferdahl, had made and mended watches in the same dingy and time-worn shop where their fathers had filed and hammered before them; and one life was as like another and about as unvarying as the ticking of the fat-faced time-pieces behind the cobwebs in the shop window.

Just now, however, as if the course of nature were being disturbed, various ripples were beginning to come. Rumors there were, for instance, that the king, "God preserve him," was preparing to fight a war with somebody, and that all young heroes like Conrad Midburger would soon be needed for the army.

Stranger still, and utterly unaccountable, considering his time of life, old Franz Hoferdahl, had caught the emigration fever, and made up his steadfast mind to join the great German tide that sets perpetually toward the shores of America. Already he had sold whatever he had to sell, except his big pipe, his flute and his daughter Christine, for these he intended taking with him to the Western Eden.

"Perhaps," thought the villagers, "it's not so strange for old Franz as for some of us. He's been lonely since his wife died, and then he was a great traveler in his younger days."

That was true enough, for Franz Hoferdahl had been even to Berlin and America could not be so very much beyond.

The old man had sold his share in the shop to his friend Gottlieb, and had made as good bargains as he could for his house and moveables; but none of his anxious neighbors knew exactly how much of ready cash he took with him when he and his weeping Christine set out upon their long pilgrimage.

Christine wept indeed, as if she meant to ruin her pretty blue eyes entirely; for the little old village had been very dear to her, and her mother's grave was there. If there were other reasons for her sorrow, Christine kept them to herself, albeit she may have wondered why one person, at least, had not asked her a question or two concerning them.

As for Conrad Midburger, he had said good-bye, with all the rest, to his father's old friend, and to the tearful Christine; and he had rubbed his great, black eyes afterward in a way that looked as if the whole thing was a good deal of a dream to him. If it was there was no help for it since Christine and her father were far enough away before he woke up.

Nevertheless, when Conrad missed, day after day, the accustomed form of old Franz in the shop as well as the cheery voice of Christine Hoferdahl calling her father home to dinner, the expression of his face would change at times, and one would almost have said he was beginning to think.

Not quite so much as that, perhaps—at least not yet; but pretty soon Conrad's eyes took note of a growing difference in the ways and seeming of old Gottlieb Midburger himself. Just what it was would have been hard to say; but by degrees the old man came to neglect his pipe, and then his glass of beer, and then his work, and, finally, he took to his bed and died; and the neighbors said, almost with one accent, "Frank Hoferdahl had broken his old friend's heart by going away."

"Broken his heart!" said Conrad to himself. "But he did not break mine! And I have a heart, too—I can feel it beat. And I have loved old Franz and I loved my father, very much; and I feel as if I could cry all day if I were not so very big a man."

The strongest evidence that Conrad had at heart, however, was yet to come. As the days went by, after his father's death, the shop and everything in it and about it, became utterly distasteful to him. Day after day he sat down by the bench and tried to work, but the very ticking of the watches was insufferably oppressive, while again and again he started up and dropped his file and his hammer in renewed astonishment at the continued absence of these two old men.

"If only Christine would come," he said to himself, "and call old Franz home to dinner."

But she did not come and the silence and loneliness grew more and more irksome, and so when, by and by, a good customer opportunely made his appearance, Conrad Midburger almost gladly closed with his offer to purchase the shop and the house. He sold, too, everything else that his father had left him, except the old man's pipe and sword and the medal his father before him had won in the old wars with the French. Neither did Conrad, any more than Franz Hoferdahl, tell any of his neighbors how great or how small was the golden store he found himself possessed of, but the Midburgers had been a careful, saving and close-mouthed race for generations.

And when the sales were all completed and the transfers duly made, and Conrad stood in the moonlight one fine spring evening and gazed at the home that was no longer his, he said to himself:

"I think I could almost break my heart now, after all, for I did love that house, and I loved the shop, but I could not stay there with the empty places. There were too many voices there that did not speak. That was it. But what shall I do now?"

Conrad's question was answered for him by the great French Emperor and by the King; for Napoleon had determined that he must fight the Germans, and so a great many quiet people had to march away from their homes to be shot at, without the wisest man in the village being able to give them a good reason.

It was a sad thing to many, but Conrad Midburger felt as if he was almost glad to go. He was sure he loved his "vaderland" in every bone of his body, and if the king called for him he was ready. Still, as they marched away from the sleepy village, Conrad said to himself:

"There are the old house, and the shop, and the church steeple, and the trees, and the graves in the churchyard. I did not know my heart was so big, for I'm sure I love about everything I see."

He could not see anything very clearly just then, however, for his eyes were strangely dim. No doubt the sun was in them, and the glint and glitter of the bayonets, but if any one had looked in the young man's face he might have said:

"It is a very thoughtful face, and there are lines of strength beginning to show in it."

And then there followed swift marching, comfortless camping, all kinds of severe and trying soldier work and a good deal of very hard fighting. Whatever the newspapers and reports might say about it, Conrad Midburger and his comrades learned that the Frenchmen were brave fellows, and that the glory of beating them was never very cheaply won.

Being big and strong and brave, a good swordsman, and every day growing more and more intelligent, Conrad himself won glory—that is, three or four slight wounds, a medal, promotion from the ranks, the compliments of his commanding officer and the envy of his comrades.

Being a man of property, of respectable parentage and of fair education, Conrad might have looked forward to almost anything attainable in the German army by a man of less than noble blood, if the war had not been so very brief, and if the corps to which he belonged had not been among the first to be ordered home. Before a great while he found himself almost his own master again, though still within the scope and control of army regulations, for no German of Conrad's age is ever beyond them, and he said to himself: "Well, I love the army; almost loved fighting. I know I could love glory with all my heart. I know I am ten times as much a soldier as that little white-mustached ape of a baron that commanded my company. That is it. I think I could love a country where there were no barons. Let me see. I think my heart must have been growing a good deal during the war. There is more room in it than I knew of, and yet it is always full. I think there are some things in it that I never saw there in the old times. I will go and take a look at the village first, and the house, and the shop, and I will listen again to see if I can hear Christine call her father home to dinner. Then if I don't hear her, what then? Well, I think I will just ask my heart about it."

Now all this time old Franz Hoferdahl and his daughter had known very little of what had taken place in the village they left behind them. They had found their pilgrimage long and weary enough, and they had reached a resting place at last, and they had written home to their old neighbors, as all Germans do, but very little information had come back to them. They knew that Gottlieb Midburger was dead, and that Conrad had given up the home and the shop, and that he had gone to the great war with the French, and that was nearly all.

Franz Hoferdahl had not landed on the shores of the new world a pauper in anything but youth and strength, and he found friends readily enough to take the place of the old ones as far as might be, and, after he had got over his first daze and bewilderment, and became somewhat accustomed to the racking changes in all his habits and ways of life, he tried to settle down as a man of of property and substance and be happy.

"If only old Gottlieb Midburger were with me," he said to Christine, "I think I could do it. I would give a good deal just to see the old fellow lay down his pipe and look into a dirty watch."

Christine said very little, but her bright American home became dreary enough at times, when she shut her eyes and let her thoughts go back to the old sleepy German village. She read all the accounts of the great war, too, wondering if any of her old neighbors had been in this battle or that, and she listened very silently when her father said:

"If Conrad Midburger was in any of that fighting, I'll be bound he behaved himself well. There's good blood in the Midburgers, and Conrad is a fine boy."

"He must be a man by this time," said Christine.

And then she thought what a very tall, fine looking man he must be, and how well he would appear in his uniform.

But when, after a while, there was news of peace, and they heard that the army was going home to be disbanded, old Franz Hoferdahl grew strangely thoughtful, and Christine tried all in vain to arouse him, or amuse him, until one autumn morning, he said to her:

"All the other old soldiers are going home, I think it is pretty near time for me to go, too."

"To Germany, father?" exclaimed Christine, with a sudden light in her eyes. "O, father!"

"No, Christine," solemnly replied the old man; "Germany is not the only fatherland. I am a very old soldier, and I think this is my last campaign."

Christine understood him then, but all in a dreamy and unreal sort of a way, until a few weeks later she found herself sitting alone in the house, while the chilling wind that whistled by the windows was freighted with the first white harbingers of the winter. It seemed a cold, forlorn and empty sort of a world to Christine, and when she tried to think of the village where she was born, that too seemed empty and deserted, and she imagined the old shop shut up and the snowflakes beating against the spider-webbed windows.

The door bell rang, but Christine did not hear it, nor did she know the servant had admitted anybody until she was conscious of a heavy step almost beside her, and a deep, clear voice, full of manly strength, but that trembled in a very thrilling and musical way, said to her:

"Christine! Christine!"

She looked up then in the face—a scarred and war-bronzed face—of a tall, erect, noble-looking man, and whose large, dark, penetrating eyes were absolutely radiant as they looked into her own.

"Christine," he said, "do you understand me? I have come."

"He had come!" she thought for one brief, burning moment; and it seemed as if light and life, and happiness and strength and the old German home itself had come with him. She now had an odd, quick fancy that the door of the old shop opened and the sun began to shine and she could see the two old men at their work, but she arose and threw her arm around his neck and only said between her sobs: "Conrad, I am so glad that you have come!"

It was a sober day and a sober meeting, after all, but some hours later, as they sat by the grate in the parlor where the fire burned warm and cheerily, while the first merry snowflakes of the opening winter flitted by the windows, and they exchanged stories of all that had happened to them, Conrad said to her:

"Ah, Christine, I did not know myself when you went away. I did not know I had a heart, but I soon began to find it out. I found that it was a great big heart, too, with wonderful things in it. One love after another seemed to come up and speak to me, to tell me it was there, until at last the biggest love of all came to life, and it grew and grew till it crowded out all the others and filled up everything, and then I had to come across the ocean to find you. But who would have thought that you had kept anything for me, waiting all this time for me to come! I was terribly afraid about that."

"Oh, I don't know," said Christine. "I don't understand it all. All the while it has seemed as if I were only waiting, waiting, and that if I waited long enough you would surely come."

"And here I am," said Conrad, "only I think there's a great deal more of me, somehow, than in those dear old sleepy days at home."

PECK'S BAD BOY.

A Picturesque Description of the Prodigal Son as Played by Modern Youths.

From Peck's Sun.

"Hello, got back again, have you?" said the groceryman to the bad boy, as he came in the store looking tired, with his clothes soiled, and a general appearance of having been sleeping in freight cars with cattle. "Your pa told me he expected you had run away for good and that you might not come back. Where you been?"

"Chicago," said the boy, as he took out a toad stabber knife and proceeded to take the ulster off a smoked herring. "Been playing Prodigal Son in two acts. But times have changed since that young fellow in the Bible went off on a tear and came back and the old folks killed a young cow for him to eat, and fell on his shirt collar and cried down the back of his neck. They don't receive prodigal sons that way in our ward. They fill a prodigal son's coat tails full of boots, and he can't find cold veal enough in the house to make a sandwich."

"I thought your folks were pious, and would be inclined to overlook anything," said the groceryman, as he charged the herring and crackers to the bad boy's father. "You don't mean to tell me they went back on the teachings of the good book, and warmed your jacket?"

"You have guessed it the first time," said the boy. "This prodigal son business is all right in theory, but in practice it's a dead failure. You see at Sunday-school the lesson was about the prodigal son, and the minister told us all about how the boy took all the money he could scrape up and went away to a distant country and painted the towns red, and spent his money like a countryman at a circus, and how he took in all the sights, and got broke, and got hungry and took a job at the stock-yards feeding pigs, and he was so hungry he used to help the pigs eat their rations, and finally he thought of his home, where they had pie, and he went home expecting to be fired out, but his pa was tickled to see him, and set up a free lunch of calf on the half-shell, and hugged the boy, and made him feel bully. When we got home pa and ma talked about the lesson, and pa said it was one of the most touching things he ever heard, and told me to think of it, and it would do me good. Well, the more I thought of it the more I felt like trying the prodigal business on, and I told my chum about it, and he said he hadn't had any vacation and he would go off prodigaling with me if I would go, and we could see the country, and have a good time, and come back and be received with open arms. Well, we got all our money together, and a brakeman on a freight train, that goes to our church, 'cause his wife sings in the choir, he hid us in the caboose, and we went to Chicago. O, my but, we had a good time. I never saw money wither the way it did with us. We eat about twenty times a day, the first two days, and then our appetites left us, because we didn't have any more money. The first two nights we slept in a two-shilling lodging house, the third night we walked around, and the fourth night we slept in the police station. When our money was gone, half the fun was gone. If a fellow can walk around with money in his pocket, he feels good, even if he don't want to buy anything, but when the money is gone, he feels bad and wants to buy lots of things. We waited two days for our brakeman, and when we got on his train he put us in a cattle car, and it was vile. I traded my collar-button for a postal card, and wrote to pa that the prodigal would put in an appearance about 9 p. m., and for him to prepare to fall on my neck, and to send down to the meat market for a hind quarter of fatted calf, and have plenty of gravy. You wouldn't believe it, but there was no carriage at the depot, and we had to walk home. I could have overlooked that, if there had been anything to eat when I got to the house, but there wasn't enough for a canary bird. Pa was there, however, and I was just going to hold out my neck for pa to get on to weep, when he grabbed it with his hand and came near twisting it off, and then he turned me around and began to play the bass drum on my clothes with his feet. I never was so annoyed in all my life, honestly. It was not the treatment I had a right to expect, after they had told me about the prodigal son of ancient times. As quick as I could catch my breath I asked pa what he thought the prodigal son of the Bible times would have thought if his pa had mauled him when he came home, and what kind of a story it would have made, if it had told about the old man taking him by the neck and kicking him all over the room instead of falling on his neck and weeping, and giving him a veal pot pie. Pa said he wasn't running any old back number prodigal sons, and he thought his way was the best, and he sent me to bed without any supper. That settles the prodigal business with Hennery. No more fatted calf for Hank, if you please," and the boy got up and shook the herring peelings off his lap.

"Oh, he hasn't come out yet. He is in the lock-up," said the boy. "His ma put the police onto him, and when he showed up they run him into the police station for a tramp. I think we have both demonstrated that this climate does not agree with the prodigal business, and however much they may try to teach us the beauties of such stories, they do not expect us to try to imitate them. When I go to Chicago after this I shall go in a parlor car, with lunch enough to last me, and a return ticket. I don't understand it at all. Now I didn't do half the mean things in Chicago that the prodigal son of old did in the far off country, and yet he got taffy when he got home, and I got my spine broke. It may be all right, but they do things different in the old country, you know."

"If I understand the kind of a prodigal son you are," said the grocery man, as he sprinkled the floor from a wash basin, preparatory to the semi-annual sweeping out, "you have got even with your pa before this, for his outrageous treatment. That is, mind you, I don't suggest anything for you to play on him, but from what I know of you, the account is evened up before now. Am I right?"

"Well, I should remark. Any person who thinks I cannot resent such an insult, makes a mistake to the sort of a prodigal son I am. We had company at dinner to-day, and pa is always in his element when we have company. He prides himself on his carving. We had a roast of beef, and before it went on the table I took the steel that pa sharpens the carving-knife on, and made two holes right through the roast, and then I took a rawhide whip that pa basted me with once, cut it in two and run pieces of the rawhide in the holes of the beef. Pa began carving with a smile, and asked the minister if he would have his beef rare, or an outside piece. He was bearing gently on the carving knife, when the knife struck the rawhide and it wouldn't go any further. Pa smiled and said he guessed he had struck a barbed wire fence, and he turned the roast around and cut again, and he struck the rawhide. The minister drummed with his fork and spoke to ma and said 'we had a splendid meeting Wednesday night,' and ma said it was perfectly gorgeous, and pa began to perspire and turn red in the face, and he said some words that would sound better in a brewery, and he tried to gouge off some meat, but it wouldn't come, and the minister said, 'Brother, you seem to be having a monkey and a parrot time with that roast,' and that made pa mad and he said he could carve his own meat without any sky pilot's interference, and ma said, why, pa, piece of work ox, and he sent the beef out You should not be impudent," and pa said he could whip the butcher that sold him that to the kitchen and the company ate cold liver. The girl set the meat in the fee-chest, and pretty soon I went down cellar, 'cause I didn't like cold liver, and pulled out the rawhide, and I had all the fatted calf I wanted, and I gave the rest to that lame dog you see me have here a spell ago. O, a boy can get enough to eat if he has got any originality about him. I think if pa would show a Christian spirit, and wear slippers when he kicks me, I would do anything to make it pleasant for him, but when a man wears out hunting boots on his own dear little Prodigal, I think the prodigal is apt to get hard. Don't you?"

The groceryman admitted that perhaps the boy was right, and he raised such a dust sweeping out that the boy coughed, took a few peaches off the top of a casket, and went out whistling, "Home again, from a foreign shore."

A Very Pathetic Chapter About Love and Apple Pie.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"Do you like apple pie?"

The soft, sighing wind of a dreamy, one-light-undershirt-and-no-suspenders evening in June was kissing the fluffy mass of golden hair that surmounted Ethlyn McNulty's perfectly-shaped head, and as she looked trustingly up into the face of the one man in all the wide, wide world to whom had been given the priceless treasure of her girlish, summer-resort love, George W. Simpson felt the balm of her doughnut breath on his lips and knew that come weal or woe, be the day radiant with the golden sunshine of Fortune or darkened by the gaunt, haggard figure of Despair, there would always be one heart that beat for him alone, one soul to which he could make fast the storm-tossed bark of his hopes and go ashore on the wildest kind of a hurrah, secure in the consciousness that upon his return the old scow would be at the dock.

It is to the man of the world—one who has passed the bock-beer springtime of life; who has seen the bright and beautiful visions of youth fade silently away before the cold, biting thermometer-going-down-cellar-and-no-winter-pants-in-the-house blasts of adverse fate, and in whose nature cynicism has usurped the place of trustfulness—that the pure and holy love of a woman about whose cold feet he knows nothing comes with a force that has something almost terrible in its intensity. To George W. Simpson, who had so long looked upon love as an idyllic dream—the rose-colored figment of a disordered imagination—the fact of his deep affection for Ethlyn McNulty came as a revelation—a porter-house steak oasis in the boarding-house desert of his existence. And when he knew—when the ruby-red lips had whispered shyly into his large, sumptuous ear the words that told him his love was reciprocated so fully and completely that it looked as if the other side must certainly be bluffing—he had felt a calm, peaceful joy that lifted him above the cold, cruel world with all its bitter disappointments and despair, and seated him, silent and alone, on the shot-tower of gratified hope. The days since they had plighted their troth beneath the spreading branches of the linden trees that lined the pathway leading through the lawn to Distress-Warrant Castle had passed in a slow, St. Louis-merchant-in-a-hurry fashion that to George W. Simpson was simply agonizing, and now, on the evening before that day on which his hopes were to find glad fruition in wedded bliss, they had met again beneath the lindens to say once more the words that repetition only makes more sweet. Ere the last rays of another setting sun shall again gild the eternal hills and such stray cows as happen to be standing around, a cassocked priest shall make the twain one for life, and George will be $20 loser. This last thought steals over him as he stands there, Ethlyn's arms around his neck, and as it swushes mournfully around the precincts of his soul his thoughts drift back to the happy past when he was a merry, light-hearted boy with a sore toe.

But suddenly the touch of a damask cheek against his own brings the reverie to a close. A pair of bright, sparkling eyes—eyes that will soon be picking out bonnets at his expense—are looking at him, and he fancies that in their depths he sees a tinge of melancholy, a lambent gleam of no-caramels-for-three-days that goes to his very heart.

"You are sad, my darling," he says, pressing her closely to the midship rib of his larboard side. "Why do you look so sorrowful?"

"Because," she replies, "you have not answered my question. "I asked you if you liked apple pie."

"Yes," he says, "I do. I am deeply enamored of pie in every shape."

Hardly have the words left his lips when Ethlyn's head droops, and presently her lithe form is shaken by a storm of sobs. George is horror-stricken. He has not felt such a shock since the White Stockings won a game."

"Why do you weep, my precious one?" he asks, bending tenderly over her.

"Because," she answers him, her voice husky with grief, "I cannot make pie."

"Is this true? Are you certain there is no mistake?"

"None, none, Ethlyn moans, despairingly, I cannot cook at all."

"Then," he says, raining a shower of kisses on the upturned face, "you are more precious to me than ever."

QUAINT FASHIONS.

The Old Custom of Auction Sales "By Inch of Candle" in Bremen.

From the American Register (Paris).

Although the free Hanseatic city of Bremen has gradually done away with many of her traditional prerogatives, yet does she cling to some of them to this day. The Senators no longer wear Spanish cloaks or wigs, but the so-called Council messengers stil appear on solemn occasions in flaming red coats, knee-breeches, white stockings, and side-swords. The gates are no longer closed at night, nor are the bells rung on the outbreak of a fire; but the "Rathskeller" is punctually closed at 10:30 p. m., and nobody is allowed to enter the sacred precincts after that hour. With remarkable tenacity, however, the good Bremeners adhere to the ancient custom of the so-called "burning candle," by the light of which all peremptory sales of real estate take place to this day, as may be seen every Friday in a hall over the old Exchange. At one end of a long table is seated a judge and scribe, at the other stands the city crier, and by his side a Council messenger in flaming red dress, holding a stable lantern. In his hands he has a box filled with ends of small candles that can burn but a few minutes, and of which he has to light one after the other until no other bid is made before the candle goes out, in which case the last and of course highest bidder becomes the owner of the estate. As late as the beginning of this century every person who overbid another while the candle was still burning, thereby putting up the price, received a gratification of a so-called "fine third," equal to about 2 marks. Frequently some porters or errand men would come in and bid in order to turn an honest penny by going for the "fine third," although they ran the risk of some weeks' imprisonment, if by chance the candle went out, and they thus remained the last bidders without being able to pay for the property knocked down to them on that account. It is a comical sight to enter the hall just at the moment when one bidder has silenced a competitor. All eyes turn on the bit of candle in the lantern, which grows smaller and smaller; hardly a breath is drawn; the company looks as if they were petrified. Suddenly there comes another bid, another candle is lighted, and the comedy is repeated until finally the extinction of a candle has fastened the sale upon the last bidder. This custom of the "burning candle" may justly be termed one of the traditional peculiarities of Bremen, there being but few, if any, other German cities or towns in which this ancient custom still obtains.

A GLARING EYE.

Why the Colonel and Captain Did Not Partake of the Kid.

From the Arkansaw Traveler.

Col. Moler and Capt. Bigman, two prominent gentlemen of Little Rock, went duck hunting, some time ago, down among the numerous "Old River" lakes that make certain parts of the Arkansaw bottoms resemble an archipelago. Living near one of the lakes is a miserly old fellow named Crogle. This old fellow, it is stated upon good authority, is so stingy that he often goes to bed to keep from eating, and then gets up to keep from sleeping. The two hunters stopped at old Crogle's house and asked him to have dinner prepared for them about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. He heartily agreed, being very fond of company despite his miserly disposition.

"We want a good dinner," said Col. Moler, "and are willing to pay for it."

"All right, gentlemen, all right. Every Governor the State has had for twenty years has eaten at my house, and I don't believe that you can find one who is not willing to swear that I am the best feeder in the country. By the way, are you fond of kid?"

"Very," said the Colonel.

"I am particularly fond of kid," the Captain declared.

"Well, I'll kill a nice kid. Do you know that goat, young and tender, is the finest meat in the world? I have been complimented on the way I have kid served, and I believe that every Governor the State has ever had for twenty years has eaten at my house."

In the afternoon, when the tired hunters approached Crogle's house, they reveled in the anticipation of a good dinner. As they drew near, Col. Moler stopped, sniffed the air and said:

"Jimmy, what is that smells so. Whew!"

"I'll tell you," the captain replied, "That devlish old fellow, instead of killing a kid has killed a goat twenty-five years old."

Any one who has ever scented the affluvia of an aged Wilhelmj goat, knows that no scenery can be beautiful, and no atmosphere pure in the neighborhood of the old gentleman's presence. The closer the two men drew to the house the stronger the atmospheric assertion that one old goat had gone to eternal repose, and that his spirit though flown to the boundless distances of the unexplored hereafter, his presence among his late associates was still felt, and that the way-faring man, though a fool, need not make a mistake in the premises.

"Come in, gentlemen," said old Crogle, meeting the hunters at the yard-gate. "Wash here at the door. Fetch the wash-pan and a bucket of water, Dick. Towel's not dirty, gentlemen; jes looks a leetle dark. Come in, for dinner's ready now."

They entered the dining-room. There, on the table, stewed up in a large pan, was the embodiment of that musky scent which to contemplate without perturbation requires a nostril stronger than the arm of Hiawatha.

"Pass your plate, gentlemen, and have some of the kid. Ah, but he was a fat youngster, and when he was killed the mother did take on fearful."

"The grandmother you probably mean," the colonel suggested, still retaining his plate. "I have been told that in the goat family blood relationship inspires affection even to the fifth generation."

"A hungry man shouldn't joke," said Crogle. "Pass your plate and have some of the kid."

"I don't believe I want any."

"Thought you was fond of kid."

"Well, I tell you," the Colonel replied, not wishing, for political reasons, to insult the old man, "at one time I couldn't get enough kid, but when you spoke of this kid's untimely death and how, even now, it is mourned by loving relatives, I was reminded of a sad sight which at this moment vividly comes from the days of my youth. One day my father ordered a negro to kill a kid for dinner. I went out where the bloody work was to be performed, arriving there just as the negro caught his victim. He hung the terrified animal up by the heels and cut his throat. Just as the knife approached his neck he turned one eye on me and gave me a look so full of mute appeal that I cried aloud in sympathy. For years afterwards I could see that eye, and now, whenever I have an attack of chills that eye dances before me. I feel a chill coming on now, and I feel that I shall soon be delirious. I cannot control myself at such times—voo! Ice-water seems to be streaming down my back. Good heavens the eye!" and seizing the pan that contained the goat stew, the Colonel emptied it on the old man's head and rushed from the dining-room. The Captain hurried his friend away. He would have stopped long enough to pay for the dinner, but the Colonel raved so that the old man implored his speedy removal.

DRESS REFORM.

A Wild War Whoop Says the Mother Hubbard Must Go.

From Texas Siftings.

If there is a divinity which shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will, there should, also, be some kind of an artistic divinity to shape the abnormal dresses of the present era. While the male portion of poor, struggling humanity manages to get itself up regardless of cost, taste and everything else, we must sorrowfully confess that the beautiful forms of our wives, daughters, and other female relatives are wrapped in the drapery of extreme hideousness and fantastic design.

The Mother Hubbard must go. If Mother Hubbard does not step in and redeem her old clothes and places them on the retired list, there is going to be trouble at Hot Springs, Saratoga, Long Branch, Skowhegan and Kalamazoo. Turn the Mother Hubbard out! As a balloon it is all right enough, and en regle, but as a dress, it is a lock-stitched, gathered, puffed and ruffled failure, and a withering reproach to the boasted culture of the nineteenth century.

The Mother Hubbard dress is all skirt and no waist—a kind of a calico rag bag, gathered at the neck, drifting away off into nowhere, and floating along after the wearer like a spanker sail in a dead calm. If the Mother Hubbard dress is an old fashion rejuvenated, we can only say, in the posthumous language of a departed poet, "shoot it." From the ashes of the dead past rises the Mother Hubbard dress, like a Phœnix, and not so much like a Phœnix, either, as like a coffee sack, held in place at the swan-like throat by a silver arrow, and trimmed with point lace and other frills. There is nothing like it on the face of the globe, unless it be another dress of the same awful pattern.

Sometimes they are seen in pairs, triplets and quartets, bobbing along the street like Oriental mutton-legged sails dotting the Mediterranean Sea. Devoid of grace, shapeless and cumbersome, what is there about a Mother Hubbard dress to commend itself to the taste of our girls, and of other fellows' girls? We implore the dear creatures to discard the Mother Hubbard before it is everlastingly too late; before the awful Mother Hubbard habit gets too firm a hold on them. Then let them adopt something less voluminous, balloony and turgid, something neat, natty and petite. Willingly would we yield up a dollar and a half to witness such a decided movement for dress reform. Will our wives, sisters and daughters give heed to our timely warning, or will they still persist in clinging to the abnormal Mother Hubbard, and leave us hanging on the ragged edge of despair?

The Southern Negro Dialect.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

One of the best expressions of certain phases of Southern plantation life before the war is a little volume written by Mrs. Prynelle of Alabama, who renders the genuine plantation negro dialect, certainly with far more accuracy than any writer who has yet attempted it. Even "Old Si" runs into a very exaggerated form of negro lingo—something which is heard nowhere on earth. The talk of the "quarters" is one of the oddest things in the English language. Mrs. Stowe thought she had it, but she only occasionally got into the trail of it, and, as for other Northern writers, they have made the negroes talk like foreigners speaking broken English, and make themselves ridiculous in a field with which they are totally unacquainted. It is almost impossible to write a Southern story of ante-bellum times without bringing in the negro talk and negro traditions and superstitions, and no casual observe or listener can do this. The distinctive exception is the negro dialect, which, however, will eventually be so materially modified as to cease to be original and striking. The progress of education among the negroes and the more frequent contact with whites who speak the language with tolerable correctness is gradually making ante-bellum negro lingo a thing of tradition, and it is certainly desirable to preserve it in print and to preserve it as accurately as possible. The negro wit and humor is very keen and pathetic. The old plantation wit and wisdom was thoroughly original and thoroughly enjoyable. The great Southern novel, covering life among the educated classes before the war, has yet to be produced, although there is a steady progress toward it. Southern plantation features had a large and slow ripening, and the fruit can be plucked. The greatest American novels cover New England life and traditions, because there is a humanized soil of the past there which has brought forth fruit abundantly and the fruit has been utilized. But there is a rich flavor to the humanities of Southern ante-bellum times. The fertile past is there; the true gleaner may go forth to his work of gathering the grapes. And some of the Eschol clusters are found in the negro traditions, superstitions, dialect and philosophy—for there is a negro philosophy.

Lack of Courtesy.

From Texas Siftings.

"Did the man seem to exhibit a lack of courtesy?" inquired an Austin business man of a book agent who had failed to negotiate with a neighboring tradesman.

"O, I don't know but what he has got courtesy enough, and presume he keeps plenty of it in stock. He threw a chair at me the minute I entered his office; and just as I successfully dodged the chair, he caught me on the nose with a tin cuspidor, and that was followed by a paper-weight, two tack-hammers and a loose door-knob. He seemed to be shooting all the furniture out of a Gatling gun, though he may have been throwing them, and it is my impression he was loaded for book agents. But he didn't seem to lack anything, and presume if I hadn't withdrawn just as I did, the next thing would have been a shower of canned courtesy."

Where's Your Gimlet?

From Texas Siftings.

Little Johnny Yerger has caused a breach between Gus DeSmith, an Austin society gentleman, and the Yerger family. Gus called to make a friendly visit after supper, having previously informed Col. Yerger of the intended honor. The whole family and Gus were in the parlor, when Johnny riveted the attention of all present by asking Gus DeSmith:

"Have you brought your gimlet with you?"

"Hush, Johnny," said Mrs. Yerger.

"Go to bed, sir," remarked Col. Yerger.

"What do you mean, Johnny?" asked Gus.

"I don't mean nuffin', except I heard pa say you were coming this evening to bore us all."

THE Hanlons are as exhilarating as a sleigh ride, as vigorous as a mother-in-law, as piquant as a beauty of seventeen. Nothing like it ever seen in this city, is what is said of "Le Voyage en Suisse" by the press.

FASHION NOTES.

Gray is the prevailing color for dresses in Paris, and will be most used here for autumn garments.

Hamburg grapes, walnuts and prunes are the seasonable trimmings for basket bonnets worn at the seaside.

New chatelaine watches are of globe shape and are worn hanging like a seal, with the face downward.

Ecru net with large red or blue spots embroidered in crewels is used for trimming ecru linen dresses; and the pocket handkerchief is of ecru cambric with embroidery to match on the narrow hem.

French shoes are laced in front and must match the dress in color; this has brought Russia leather into favor for red shoes, and there are also many fawn-colored and blue kid shoes worn with black stockings.

Turban drapery of dark red or blue crape cloth is the fashionable trimming for the rough straw hats now worn. A stack of sharp wings or a small bird trims the new toques with visors.

Jockey caps, hunting horns, stirrups and riding whips are embroidered in colors on the corners of the new buff linen pocket handkerchiefs.

Embossed and gilded leather painted in oils and with designs in relief is used for hand-bags, portfolios, belts, fans, albums and fanciful boxes.

Half-sashes, or demi-belts, are fashionably worn; they are made of wide velvet ribbon, or of narrower satin ribbon of two shades, sewed in the seams on the side of the corsage and tied in a point in front.

The postilion hat is a new cap of straw with a visor and round crown shaped very much like that worn by professional jockeys. A narrow band of silver links or of velvet folds around the crown and a cockade on the left side are the ornaments.

The Danæ or golden bonnet is formed of gold braid half an inch wide, platted with silken cords. It is trimmed with velvet rosettes the color of the cord, and is decorated with pompons, an aigrette, or flowers of plush or satin.

Tapestry embroideries done in old-fashioned cross-stitch form borders for trimming the new wool dresses for fall and winter.

The Princess of Wales wears a white serge yachting dress with the skirt trimmed with close set rows of blue braid that make horizontal stripes very near together. The fish-wife tunic is turned up on one side and heavily braided there. The close bodice has a vest and collar of blue serge braided with white.

Velvet ribbons have not yet reached the height of favor and will be the principal trimming of next season's dresses. Braiding will also retain its hold as a popular decoration of cloth dresses, while velvet ribbon will be used on cashmere.

MISS ROSA TROTZ, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have found Brown's Iron Bitters to be a true tonic."

CURIOUS MARRIAGES.

Ninety-five and Fifteen—Much-Married Couples—A Courtship of Sixty Years.

From Chambers' Journal.

Mrs. Grundy has declared that May shall not wed December without incurring her severe displeasure. When such a marriage took place it was usually recorded in some such way as this: "22 August [1783]. At Bath, Captain Hamilton, aged 30, to Mrs. Monson, a lady of rank and fortune, aged 85." There could scarcely be a greater distance between the ages of a married couple than eighty years, so we may copy the record that in February, 1769, there was married "Robert Judge, Esq., of Cooksburgh, Ireland, aged 95, to Miss Anne Nugent, aged 15. He served in King William's wars, and received a ball in his nose. Particulars of height, as well also as of age, fortune, and length of courtship, were often given: "Dec. [1775]. At York, Mr. Thomas, a grenadier in the Yorkshire militia, six feet two inches high, to Miss Hannah Tennick, of Clearlam, three feet two inches high, with a fortune of £5,000.

"5 April [1785]. At Ripley Church, Mr. Robert Long to Miss H. Reynard." There is an equal disparity of age and size in this couple, the briedegroom being 37 years of age, and more than six feet high; the bride 20 years old, and little more than three feet high.

The paragraph recording the marriage, in 1779, of a couple aged respectively 80 and 85, concludes thus: "And what is still more remarkable, there has been a courtship carried on betwixt them for more than sixty years."

What Mrs. Grundy said and did upon particular occasions may be learned from the following: "22 Sept. [1783]. John Harrison, of Cowick, Yorkshire, aged 101, to Ann Hephons, aged 98; the bride's maid was 74 and the bridegroom's man 86. They were attended by the greatest concourse of people to and from the church that ever was known upon such an occasion. The lady he has now taken to be his bride is the fourth wife within the space of two years and a few few months." "5 Dec. [1784]. At St. Bees, Cumberland, Mr. Jeremiah Rule, aged 19, to Miss Hannah Hodgson, widow, aged 61, being the fourth time she has honored the marriage register-book with her name. In the evening several of the relations by her former husbands went to the apartments of the newly-married couple to pay their respects to their young grandfather; a great number of the neighbors also attended on the occasion to congratulate him on the prudent choice he had made, loudly applauding that philosophic disposition which would prefer the ripened charms of threescore—which cannot possibly suffer by change—to the blooming beauties of youth, which are known to be as fading as any flowers in the wild field of nature."

Sometimes a wedding has a more painful conclusion: "Langheim, January 28, [1776]. On Friday last were married in Billnoimbur, near this place, William Duncan and Elizabeth Graham. There were present upon the occasion a very considerable company. The afternoon was spent in decent mirth, with the usual ceremonies on such occasions. On the morning following the friends came to visit them, and found them in perfect health and good spirits. But, alas! how uncertain is every earthly enjoyment! The bride was seized with a colic about 11 o'clock, which carried her off about 10 o'clock this morning. I dare not attempt to describe the bridegroom's situation, but shall leave that to the readers' feelings."

Compared with the tone of the above, there is a callous look about the conduct of "an eminent fa mer" and Miss Mickleth waite who when at church getting married, "at the same time ordered the sexton to make a grave for the interment of the lady's father, then dead."

In our next example, it would appear that the extensive connubial experience of his neighbors is made the excuse for the reverend gentleman's "fourth venture," as the elder Mr. Weller would have said: "5 Aug. [1751]. The Rev. Mr. John Pugh of Carnganshire, married to his fourth wife. His next door neighbors on each side are married, the one to his fifth wife and the other to his third." A different version was given by one William Ivan, who in 1778 is said to have died at the age of 115. He was remarkably cheerful and frequently heard singing. He married four wives, the last when in his 105th year."

Here is about an old man who could not remember a deceased wife's name. To him it was probably like the name of Southey's Russian general.

A name which you may know by sight very well,
But which no one can speak and no one can tell.

"3 Nov. [1775]. At Dalkeith, David Wilson, journeyman gardener, to Catherine Craw, aged 40, his fifth wife. He is 72 years. His first wife was a Dutchwoman, whose name he has forgot; the others were Scotchwomen."

Gretna-Green marriages, or those with a tinge of romance about them, have always been of the greatest interest to the fair sex. Here are several accounts of such matches. "22 Oct. [1784]. Charles Alpin Fowey, Esq., of Grosvenor street, to Miss Englis of Worcestershire. The match was occasioned by a highwayman stopping a stage coach in which the gentleman and lady happened to be passengers, and the gallant behavior of the former won the heart of the latter."

"September [1781]. At Ostend, Capt. Roche, aged 40, to the eldest daughter of the late Sir George Womwell, Bt., aged 16, just from a boarding-school, with an independent fortune of £12,000 in possession, and as much more in reversion on the death of her mother." The next paragraph in the magazine records the marriage of a widow of 38 to a youth of 17, who was heir to a fortune of £100,000. The ceremony took place at Gretna Green.

"On Saturday, October 28 [1775]. Arrived at Newcastle from a matrimonial jaunt to Gretna Green, Edward Gould, Esq., of Woodham-Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, an officer in the Fourth Regiment of Foot, and Lady Barbara Yelverton, only daughter of the Earl of Sussex, aged 16, with a fortune of £40,000. The next morning the newly-married couple set forward for the south."

A novelist in want of a plot may get a few hints from the following condensed romance; "26 July [1775]. John Kender, a laboring and married man, was impressed as a soldier in the year 1723; he became a French prisoner, but made his escape, and settled in Germany, where he married and buried two wives. After thirty-three years' absence, he came to England and found his first wife by mere accident last week selling fruit in Oxford road. She had buried two husbands in the time; and being both disengaged, they willingly renewed their former connection."

The lady mentioned in our next quotation gave practical proof that she was perfectly free from sectarianism. "February, [1785]. At Newcastle, Mr. Silvertop, to Mrs. Pearson. This is the third time this lady has been before the altar in the character of a bride, and there has been something remarkable in each of her three connubial engagements. Her first husband was a Quaker; her second a Roman Catholic; and her third a Protestant of the Established Church. Every husband was twice her age; at 16 she married a gentleman of 32; at 30 she took she took one of 60; and now, at 42 she is she is united to a gentleman of 84.

SNAKE-HANDLING.

Strange Experiences in India with Pythons and Cobras.

From Chambers' Journal.

Apropos of Dr. Stradling's interesting snake stories in your Journal (Nos. 966 and 969), I send you a note illustrative of the danger of handling certain kinds of snakes. Out here, individuals of one sect of fakirs—religious mendicants—are frequently met with wearing young and tame pythons as necklaces. One such animal took the fancy of an officer and for a few rupees was transferred from the fakir's neck to his; and for some time both were on very good terms. One day our friend sat down to breakfast with the python round his neck, a thing he had never before done; the tail of the animal came across the arm of the chair and instinctively coiled round it. The leverage thus obtained seemed to revive its memories of victim-squeezing, and in a moment the officer was in the pangs of strangulation, bound fast to his chair and the awful coil of the python around his neck. But in that supreme moment of horror appalling he retained his nerve; with his left hand he seized the reptile's head and with the right grasped a table-knife and was just able to inflict a gash behind its head and then the suffocating coils fell slack. The officer was afterwards found prostrate on the floor in a dead faint, from which he only recovered to be seized with brain fever, the delirium of which was entirely occupied with encounters with monstrous serpents. In course of time he recovered, but no one could recognize in that pallid, gray-headed and careworn shadow of a man the once stalwart, hearty and enthusiastic sportsman.

Another note to illustrate the extreme danger of handling even dead snakes. Major Dennys, a police officer in the Central Provinces, was recently out shooting and killed a large cobra. His companion asked to see its poison fangs, and Major Dennys, seizing the head with one hand opened its jaws with the other to exhibit the fangs, which, in the approaching rigidity of death, closed on his finger. Aware of his awful risk he sucked his finger and hastened home. But all assistance was unavailing; he died in three hours.

I once kept and freely handled a snake declared to be innocuous; it escaped, and after much searching could not be found. Presently my boy ran up with tears in his eyes, declaring that his three pet rabbits were all dead; and, true enough, they were so, and quite rigid. Coiled up in the hutch was the missing snake which my boy and I had so frequently handled.

The handling of snakes is often unavoidably forced upon us by the extraordinary and sometimes incomprehensible positions in which snakes are frequently encountered. We are apt to fancy that snakes are essentially grovelling creatures, forgetting that their ventral scales give them admirable facilities for climbing. Unless you recognize this fact, it is difficult to understand how snakes get into the roots of up-country bungalows, which are supported by smooth and whitewashed walls and pillars; how you meet them on the upper shelves of your bookcases, or in other apparently inaccessible situations.

But when you meet snakes in the act of ascending trees, and apparently with nothing to hold on by, you are resigned to your fate, and are prepared for sanguine encounters anywhere and everywhere. If you are a lady you must not be surprised—as my wife was—at a deadly snake dropping out of the sleeve of your velvet jacket, which your ayah was helping you on with, that jacket having previously hung from a wall-peg, leaving it three or four feet from the ground. Nor, if you are going out calling, must you be astonished if a cobra looks in upon you from the double roof of your brougham. How did the snake ascend the smooth wall and get into the jacket? How did the other pass up the smooth and glass-like sides or wheels of the brougham and get into its double roof?

I might adduce illustrations by the score of these strange rencontres, and they show us how we must always be on our guard against snakes. Yet it is marvellous that, among Europeans, we very rarely hear of deaths from snake-bite, while the bare feet and legs of natives leave them frequently and fatally open to attack.

A MOUNTAIN CAYMAN.

A Huge Highland Alligator that Is More Than a Match for Three Dogs.

From the Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise.

William Blackheath, who has just returned from a six months' sojourn in Arizona, has brought to the Comstock the skin of what he, for want of a better name, calls a Gila monster, but which is evidently that of a saurian of a different species. The skin now measures seven feet from tip to tip, and it has evidently shrunk some inches in drying. Though about the color of an ordinary Gila monster, the reptile is evidently a kind of inland crocodile, or, more properly, cayman, as it had not the webbed feet of the crocodile

The strange saurian was found in a small valley in the Wheatstone Mountains. When alive it stood two feet high, and its body, just back of its fore legs, was over three feet in circumference. The creature was as savage as a bull-dog, and as full of fight as a viper. It was found by the dogs of Mr. Blackheath and partner. When the men arrived at the haunt of the reptile—to which they were attracted by the fierce and peculiar barking of their dogs, three in number—they found that one dog had already been killed and the others were badly cut up and covered with blood. The creature displayed such activity and was so diabolically vicious that the two prospectors feared to go near it, being armed with nothing better than a prospecting pick and a shovel with a short handle.

Finally the thing got one of the dogs by the fore leg, and finding that it held on like a terrier, with no sign of loosing its hold, Mr. Blackheath ran forward and struck his pick into its head. Even then the reptile held on, and it was not till it had been struck several blows with the poll of the pick that its jaws relaxed and it gave up the ghost. When the dog was released it was found that his fore leg had been broken at a point about two inches above the knee.

Mr. Blackheath says he has met with several of the creatures known as Gila monsters that were two feet and two and a half feet in length, but never before nor since saw or even suspected the existence of one so large as that whose skin he possesses.

Unfortunately, in flaying the saurian, Mr. Blackheath's only idea was to have the hide tanned and made into boots and gaiters, therefore he did not preserve the feet, otherwise the skin might be stuffed and mounted by a taxidermist. He says the teeth of the creature were over an inch in length, were sharp as needles, and in shape resembled the teeth of a shark.

GOWNS FOR SCHOOL GIRLS.

Healthful and Helpful Costumes More in Favor Now Than Ever Before.

New York Letter in the Hartford Times.

One of the most gratifying signs of progress is the general awakening in regard to school dress. It has heretofore been considered enough to discourage a lavish display of jewelry, but a girl could be thinly clad in cold weather; she could change from thick wool to thin silk; she could encase her arms in skin-tight sleeves and pull her dresses together within a quarter of an inch of her life—and no one thought of protesting against her folly. But gymnastics in schools have accomplished something; they have established the fact that with ordinary dress the girl can not raise or use her arms, and it has at last dawned upon teachers and intelligent mothers that she ought to be able to use them elsewhere than in the gymnasium. The principal of one of the most fashionable schools in New York will not permit her pupils to wear a dress of any material save wool or cotton—the former in winter, the latter in mild weather, if they choose. A girl wearing a velvet suit one day was sent home with a message that her dress must be mother of the girl returned with a reply that changed to one adapted for school wear. The it was a last year's suit which must be utilized or it would be out-grown. The teacher was inflexible. She said the school room was no place for cast-off finery; that the moral effect was bad and the final result worse than the present loss. The lesson was a salutary one.

A school in Massachusetts recommends to its 200 girl students a sensible school dress, of which the following are some of the features: First, it is to consist of single layers of clothing, so that warmth shall be equally distributed over the body. Secondly, it should be sufficiently loose not to impose restrictions upon the free and active use of the muscles. Third, the materials should be soft, unexciting in color and undistinguishable in pattern. Fourth, the design should suggest rather than outline the figure, unless the material is elastic, and should be divided into few parts in order to be free from distractions. Fifth it should avoid whatever is unnecessary or that takes time and strength that could be better put into work or play.

The combination undergarment of knitted wool or cotton, or both, the skirt of pleated wool attached to a lining waist cut with a spring over the hip, and a polonaise or woven "jersey" supplies all the requirements for such a dress. If the polonaise is employed, the lining waist may be extended so as to require only a deep-pleated flounce of the wool to bring it to the length of the walking skirt, thus rendering it lighter and cheaper.

The polonaise should be pleated at the back, a part of the fullness being taken out of the waist and cut with a whole sack front which could be belted in. The sleeves should be cut very high and somewhat full at the top, so as to surround the arm at the socket and allow free movement. All dress skirts made of wool should be attached to a lining waist, as this equalizes both warmth and weight.

BEFORE THE COMMITTEE.

How a Newspaper Reporter Would Testify if He Had a Chance.

From the Detroit Free Press.

It is understood that the Senate Committee on Labor are anxious to get hold of a reporter from some daily paper, and hear what he has to say. Any one of the party professionals in Detroit will promptly respond to a call. We can imagine him in the witness-box, his $80 suit fitting him to a wrinkle, his diamonds blinding all eyes, and his pocket bulging out with greenbacks.

"Where were you born, Mr. De Courcy?"

"In one of the highest priced rooms in the Grand Pacific Hotel, sir."

"Of poor parents?"

"No, sir. The old man had about $7,000,000 salted down when I made my debut."

"Were you reared in a log cabin on a farm which produced nothing but Canada thistles and bowlders?"

"No, sir. Our residence cost $650,000, and was situated in a high-toned neighborhood."

"I presume you had to walk seven miles through snowdrifts to attend school?"

"Not exactly, sir, I was sent to college and allowed $200 per week pin-money."

"How old were you when you made your start in life?"

"Well, I used to run the family when I was 3 years old."

"What pecuniary assistance have you ever had?"

"The old man left me about $5,000,000, sir."

"What was your first speculation?"

"Buying a United States Senator for $3,000."

"How came you to drift into the newspaper business?"

"As a pastime, sir. There's no hard work, no walking around, nothing to worry over. All you have to do is to sit in your luxurious office and smoke thirty-cent cigars and plan the policy of the paper for its owners."

"And the salary?"

"Oh, you go down to the safe and help yourself to all you want. There's nothing mean about the business department of a daily paper."

"How much are you worth now Mr. De Courcy?"

"Oh, from fifteen to twenty millions."

"Do you think the laboring man has a fair show?"

"Certainly. Any cooper, carpenter or painter who isn't living on the interest of his money has only himself to blame."

"That's all, Mr. De Courcy. Your testimony has done more to enlighten this committee as to the real status and needs of the workingman than all we have heard before or expect to hear in the future."

A Month Fatal to Kings.

From the St. James's Gazette.

The Comte de Chambord has died in a month that has proved fatal to many kings of France. Philip I. died on the 3d of August, 1060; Louis VI. on the 1st of August, 1108; Louis IX. on the 25th of August, 1226; Philip VI. on the 23d of August, 1328; Louis XI. on the 30th of August, 1461; Henry III. on the 2d of August, 1589. Louis Philippe also died in this country in exile on the 26th of August, 1850. The 24th of August, the date of the Comte de Chambord's death, is also that of the birth of the Count of Paris, in 1838, a fact which will perhaps afford food for speculation to the believers in omens. It is, moreover, the anniversary of the massacre of St. Bartholomew.

WHAT IS SLANG?

How It Starts and What Makes It Successful.

From the Boston Courier.

In its best sense slang is an attempt to get at truth by the shorter routes. It may not always do this decorously, but, none the less, it generally manages to get there. Slang is the sworn enemy of all circumlocution and periphrasis. It believes that in literature, as in geometry, a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. As it almost invariably originates among uneducated people this is quite natural. It is a stripping away the dry husks of things to get the quicklier at the kernel. It is an unconscious striving to attain to the actualities and essences of things—it is, in its lowly, common way, a blind reacher after what Mr. Carlyle toploftily calls the "eternal veracities."

Successful slang, that is to say slang that lives, is always intensely humorous, and for that reason becomes of necessity the keenest and readiest weapon against all cant and humbug. But let it be remembered there is slang and slang, and we are only referring to that kind which, being an involuntary outcropping of the time or situation, gets a grip upon the heart of humanity, and is, in nine cases out of ten, finally received into the brotherhood of accepted words. At the outset it is impossible to state with certainty what will turn out to be successful slang. The immediate universality of a phrase does not settle it. To have the staying qualities slang must be anonymous. Its paternity once accurately established, it begins to dwindle, peak and pine, and finally fades altogether. If a child has parents let them see to its welfare, but when a child has none the world itself is sometimes willing to adopt it. And this not from any pity of its helplessness, for such children are not seldom hardier and brighter than others, but from very admiration of their audacity and self-reliance. Of such slang words and phrases it may be said as of the bastard in "Lear," they are of that breed and blood who "in the lusty stealth of nature take more composition and fiercer quality" than is possible to their soberer and more respectable half-brothers. Once adopted into the family, however, legitimized and made equal with the rest, they take on new airs and graces that render them infinitely more agreeable to good society, without in anywise detracting from their native vigor and flavor. It is a wild fruit grafted upon a tame stock—if it strikes in and flourishes, both sides are benefited and improved; if it withers and dies, it is because the grafting was done untimely—because the sap of the cultivated tree still boils and ferments in full and sufficient force, and has not yet sunk to that dead level of placid insipidity which needs the stinging touch of the wild infusion. Slang is the recruiting ground of language where multitudes are always ready to enlist, and out of a profusion of tall, lawless fellows taken into the ranks, a limited number turn out in time to be good soldiers.

THE ALLISON MYSTERY.

The Ghastly Discovery of a Party of Prospectors on Snake River.

Nashua, N. H., Special to the Philadelphia Times.

The mystery surrounding the strange disappearance many years ago of Judge Allison, once well known through all Southern New Hampshire, has been cleared up at last in a most peculiar manner.

Judge Allison, who, when a young man, was one of the "Side Judges" under the old organization of the State courts, left his home in Suncook thirty years ago. His disappearance caused a nine days' talk, a few weeks' search, and then he faded out of the memory of his old friends and relatives.

Yesterday, however, a man living here received a letter from a brother at Leadville, giving a graphic account of the finding of a skeleton in the White River range.

James and Thomas Canavan and John Johnson were prospecting in that region when they lost their bearings and wandered up the Snake River to Eagle River Valley. There they stumbled against a tumble-down cabin, inside of which were scattered about in confusion a few decaying articles of furniture, an old and crude chest and an old-fashioned musket on the wall. From beneath a rude table there "grinned a death's head," with a mat of hair clinging to the skull. The skeleton was hid by his clothing, evidently thrown over it after death. In one of the pockets of the old coat was an envelope marked, "To be opened by my friends." Inside was a letter, reading as follows:

"I have chosen this life of hermitage in preference to living where misfortune blasted my reputation and business. My wife is dead. She had much to do with my troubles, much to do in the making of them, but, as I said, she is dead. My house, and it was a beautiful house, was near Suncook, New Hampshire. I was a judge once, and a happy man, too, but that time is long past. I feel death approaching now. The clammy hand is upon me, and somehow I feel that I shall die unnaturally. I have a nephew with me: he is bad at heart and in temper. He thinks that I have a large sum of money saved from my former estate, and when I told him I had only $200 his eyes flashed murder. I gave him plenty when I had it and now when I have no more I think I ought to send him back to the States, where he can enjoy his young life. I think this seclusion is destroying my senses. What if I should become insane and kill myself? I'll never do that. Walter will stay with me and who knows one of these days we may find gold here and again become rich. If I could have got any ground at Breckenridge I would have remained there and mined there. I like this better. I have no children; nobody but Walter, and after all I don't think he would harm an old man like me, because he foolishly believes I am keeping money from him.

"JOHN J. ALLISON."

No money could be found in the cabin. It is concluded that Allison must have been murdered.

A Very Effective Hint.

From the Texas Siftings.

Don't you think ear-rings would become you?" inquired Kosiusko Murphy of Birdie McGee. Kosiusko had been paying Birdie very assiduous attentions of late.

"O, I don't know" replied, Birdie demurely.

"I suppose the reason you don't wear them is because it will hurt so to have your ears bored."

"O, not in the least," said Birdie with animation. "I've had that done already quite often, almost every evening, in fact, for the last three weeks."

Then Kosiusko reached round to the piano, dragged his hat off the cover, and commenced to fade gradually from the room. He fairly melted away into obscurity, and now a wide chasm separates the gallant Kosiusko and the charming Birdie.

TOM TIDLER'S GROUND.

The History of this Bit of Mythical Real Estate.

Letter from Charles Mackay in The Pall Mall Gazette.

The interesting article on the "Songs and Games of American Children" which appeared on the 22d inst. in The Pall Mall Gazette under the title of "Child's Play," suggests to my mind the omission of all games played by American (and British) children, and to one of the most ancient of the rhymes still sung by them:

Here I am on Tom Tidler's Ground,
Picking up gold and silver.

The origin and meaning of the name "Tom Tidler" have given rise to much controversy. The Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, in his "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable," maintains it to be a corruption of "Tom th' Idler." "Tom," he says, "in the game stands on a heap or mound of stones, gravel, etc." Other boys rush on the heap, crying, "Here I am on Tom Tidler's ground," etc. "Tom bestirs himself to keep the invaders off." The Saxon derivation has hitherto passed muster, but the true derivation is from the Celtic or Gaelic, proving the game to have been known to British children before the Saxon irruption and conquest. "Tom" signifies "hill" or mound, a word that enters into the composition of the names of many places in the British Isles, and tiodlach, gift offering, treasurer; so that Tom-tiodloch—corrupted by the Saxons into Tom-tidler—signifies the hill of gifts or treasure, of which the players seek to hold or to regain possession. It was the custom for the boy who temporarily held the hill or "tom" to assert that the ground belonged to him of right and dare the invaders to dispossess him by the exclamation of "Duc'da me." This phrase has puzzled commentators quite as much as the name of "Tom Tidler" has done. The word, however, resolves itself into the Celtic or Gaelic Duthaich, the t silent before the aspirate, pronounced du-haic, and signifying a country, an estate, a territory, a piece of land; do signifying to, and mi me—i. e., this territory or ground is to me; it is my land or estate. This old British phrase continued to be used in England by children and illiterate people long after the British language had given way to the Saxon English, and was repeated by boys and girls in the game now called Tom Tidler's Ground. Tom, in the Irish Gaelic still spoken in the west of Ireland, signifies either a hill or a thicket, and tiod lac a gratuity, a largess, a boon; and du-aic or du-ai land, possession, estate, country. If these derivations be correct, as I believe they are, the game of "Tom Tidler" must date from the British or Celtic era.

JACKETS, BUT NOT JERSEYS.

Dainty Waistcoats and Other Garments to wear in Jack Frost's Time.

From the New York Evening Post.

Many of the dark woolen dresses prepared for the present season are enlivened by Louis XIV. waistcoats, either real or simulated, made of velvet, serge or silk. White silk waistcoats with dark-blue cloth costumes are seen, with turn-down collars and lapels like a gentleman's coat. They are buttoned down the front, and the great consideration is the buttons, which must be costly and in harmony with the color of the dress fabric. If of tweed, in heather mixtures, enamel buttons are used, inlaid with different colors—red predominating. Very stylish-looking promenade costumes made of olive green and dark myrtle green, crossed with hair-lines of old gold or cardinal, have waistcoats of dark green velvet or royal cardinal serge, fastened with small gold buttons and trimmed with gold braiding in arabesque designs.

A young lady of this city, lately arrived from a trip abroad, wore upon a recent occasion a walking dress made by Pingat. The material was of a soft gray ladies' cloth. The skirt was kilted and the deep cutaway jacket fitted like a sheath. The overdress had a long and full apron front, and was much draped in the back. Underneath the open jacket was worn a very close-fitting waistcoat of dark red cloth, with wide flaps covering the pockets at the side. The petite lady in her snug costume reminded one of a trim little robin red-breast.

For little girls' wear at the seaside or in the country are sold pretty little Babet jackets, jackets of dark red velvet or cloth, braided with gold, to slip on over light dresses when the days are cool. There are also tiny shoulder capes of cardinal serge or cashmere, embroidered in narrow vine patterns in a deeper shade of silk, and lined to match. Wide satin ribbon strings fasten the cape, and en suite are coquettish little Moorish caps of cardinal.

The matinale is a tight-fitting, semi-long paletot of cheviot cloth in a check pattern of indistinct colors, with all the outlines bound with very dark red braid. There are a double turn-down collar and double cuffs. The buttons are of dark pearl trimmed with red, a pretty and useful garment for morning walks and excursions in the country.

THE BOSS SNAKE STORY.

Terrible Adventure of a Missouri Farmer and His Cow.

From the Springfield, Mo., News.

Last Monday Mr. Joel Haden of the south part of the county wandered down on the bluffs of James River searching for a lost cow. He finally discovered her standing in a bare, open place where she had passed through a narrow crevice between the rocks, there being no outlet. She had been gone several days and seemed to be in a nearly starved condition, seeming not to be able to find her way out. Seeing her condition Mr. Haden boldly started through the opening to drive her out. He had proceeded but a few feet when he felt a soft, cold substance strike him and before he had collected his thoughts a large black snake was coiling its slimy folds around him. Almost paralyzed, he tried to flee, but it held him fast in the crevice, its tail being coiled around a shrub several feet up the side of the bluff. It began then to tighten its folds around him. Great drops of sweat stood on his brow and his hands became useless. Before his face the snake raised its head, flashed out its forked tongue at him, and he closed his eyes, expecting the end. Then his scattered thoughts collected. In his pocket he had a great, strong knife, and without opening his eyes he pushed his hand down through its folds, quickly opened it and gave a slash, but the snake only drew the closer around him till breathing became difficult. He opened his eyes again and there was that awful head almost against his face. As quick as lightning he seized the snake with one hand close at its head and with the other he made a dexterous slash and cut the head off about ten inches from the body when the folds dropped from around him and he was again free. He sat down and took a rest. Then he stretched the snake out and found that it measured thirteen feet and eleven inches. In the ledge above he found its nest, with thirty-seven eggs in it. It was thus explained why the cow was afraid to come out.

June Term, 1883.
Monday, June 18, 1883.

The State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of Nathaniel C. Hudson, Collector of the City of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, vs.
Caswell F. Darby et al.
No. 3,425.

Now at this day comes the plaintiff, by its attorney, and it appearing to the court from the return of the Sheriff on the writ in this cause that Caswell F. Darby, one of the defendants herein, cannot be found in the city of St. Louis, and the court being satisfied that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him.

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him and codefendant, the object and general nature of which is to enforce the lien of the State of Missouri for the delinquent taxes of the years 1877, 1878 and 1881, amounting to the sum of thirty-nine dollars and forty-two cents together with interest and costs, against the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis, to-wit:

First. One lot of ground in city block No. 2,856, fronting 50 feet and 5 inches on Fourth street, by 147 feet and 11 inches in depth, said lot being in block 91 of Eller's addition to the city of St. Louis, and bounded north by Adams street, east by land of Farnsworth, south by land of Grimsley, and west by Fourth street.

Second. One lot of ground in city block No. 2,836, fronting 50 feet on Third street, by 147 feet and 11 inches in depth, said lot being in block 91 of Eller's addition to the city of St. Louis, and bounded north by land of Farnsworth, east by Third street, south by land of Farnsworth, and west by land of Farnsworth.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of October next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis. Cause continued.

A true copy from the record.
Witness my hand and seal of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, this 28th day of July, 1883.

ORDERS OF PUBLICATION.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

In the Circuit Court City of St. Louis,
June Term, 1883.
Tuesday, July 10, 1883.

Peter L. Nevius and William M. Gawtry,
vs.
Sylvanus F. Jenkins, Archibald Maclay and George W. Bull.
No. 205 October Term.

It appearing from the affidavit this day filed in this cause that the defendants, are non-residents of the State of Missouri; therefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorney.

It is ordered that said defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree in partition of a certain parcel of land and premises situate in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, and described in the petition herein as follows, to wit:

A lot of ground or tract of land in city block 808 of St. Louis, and described as follows, Commencing at the intersection of the western line of Decatur street with the southern line of Lami street and extending southwardly with the western line of Decatur street 260 feet 6 inches to the southern line of the Cabanne and Walker tract, thence westwardly along said last mentioned line on the northern line of a strip of land conveyed by John Lady to William M. Gawtry 22 feet 11½ inches to the eastern line of the St. Louis city commons, thence northwardly along the said eastern line 265 feet 1½ inches to Lami street, thence eastwardly along the southern line of Lami street 33 feet ¾ inch to the place of beginning, and if said property be not susceptible of partition, then for an order of sale and such further order as may be meet.

And unless they appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of October next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.
Witness my hand and seal of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, this 13th day of July, 1883.

TRUSTEES' SALES.

WHEREAS Joseph Vincent, by his deed of trust, dated December 12, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 672, page 3, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-eight and thirty-nine in block one of the third subdivision of the St. Louis Common, made under ordinance 3126, approved February 3, 1854, said lots lying also in city block 1459, fronting fifty feet on the west line of Louisiana avenue by a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-five feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed of trust described; whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of

THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described property at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Samuel Sachs and Mary E. Sachs his wife, by their deed of trust, dated June 17, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the County of Dent, in the Sate of Missouri, in book B, at pages 454 and 455, did convey to Joseph T. Donovan, trustee, the following described real estate, situated in Dent County, State of Missouri, to-wit: All of lots two (2) and three (3) in block twenty-nine (29) on the west side of the creek in the town of Salem. Also all of the west half of southeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section fifteen, in township thirty-four, range eight west, and the northwest quarter of southwest quarter and northwest quarter of northeast quarter of section thirty-five (35) in township thirty-five (35), range 6 west, and all of the south half of northeast quarter in section twelve (12) in township thirty-three (33), range six (6), the "first tract" containing one hundred and twenty (120) acres "second tract" containing two hundred and forty (240) acres, third tract containing eighty acres, and two houses and lots, which conveyance was made to secure the payment of a certain promissory note therein described; and whereas default has been made in the payment thereof, and the same is wholly due and unpaid; now, therefore, by virtue of the provisions of said deed of trust and in pursuance of the power vested in me by the same, and at the request of the legal holder of said note, I, the undersigned, will, on

MONDAY, THE 17TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, proceed to sell the property hereabove described at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, for cash, for the purposes of said trust.
JOSEPH T. DONOVAN, Trustee

WHEREAS Harriet Baumgardner and Francis Baumgardner, her husband and trustee, by their deed of trust, dated the 21st day of June, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 658, at page 72, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate: Lot twenty, in block nine of Peter Lindell's first addition to said city, being in block 1952, fronting twenty-five feet on the north line of Laclede avenue by a depth northwardly of one hundred and twenty-eight feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed described. Whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of

THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described real estate at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House, in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

This property was sold by me and the purchaser assumed the deed of trust. F. A. BAUMGARDNER.

WHEREAS, Edwin E. Anderson and Rebecca C. Anderson, by their deed of trust dated the 1st day of July, 1882, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 679, at page 463, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-five and thirty-six of block six, of Taylor's subdivision of survey thirty-three hundred, in the Grand Prairie common fields, fronting fifty feet on the north line of Kennerly avenue, by a depth of one hundred and forty-five feet to a public alley twenty feet wide, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond, in said deed of trust described; whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this, among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of

THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described real estate at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said City of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Thomas Williams and Mary Williams his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 2d day of March, A. D. 1883, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the City of Saint Louis and State of Missouri, in book 694, page 493, conveyed to Edward H. Ponath, trustee, to secure the payment of certain notes in said deed of trust described, the following described real estate, lying and being in the city of Saint Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lot number ten in block C, subdivision of the estate of Henry Morris, deceased, and in city block 1276 in the City of Saint Louis, Missouri, having a front of twenty-eight feet two and one-quarter inches on the north line of Park avenue by a depth along the east line of a street thirty feet wide to an alley upon which it fronts a street twenty-eight feet one and one-quarter inches; and whereas default has been made in the payment of one of said notes, and the taxes remain due and unpaid on said property; now, therefore, notice is given that the undersigned, trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, will, on between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 p. m. of that day, proceed to sell the property above described at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of Saint Louis, State of Missouri, to satisfy said debt and the expense of executing this trust.

EDWARD H. PONATH, Trustee.
St. Louis, September 6, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas Henry Zeis and Matilda J. Zeis, his wife, of the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, by their certain deed of trust dated the fourth day of December, A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the city of St. Louis, in book 694, page 139, conveyed to the undersigned, as trustee, an undivided one-sixth interest in, of and to the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in said city of St. Louis, viz.: Lot number ten (10) and the northern fourteen (14) feet off of lot number nine (9) in block number forty (40) of Julia C. Soulard's addition to the city of St. Louis, said block being also known as block No. 709 of said city, having an aggregate front of forty-four (44) feet on the east line of Jackson street by a depth eastwardly of one hundred and forty (140) feet to a twenty (20) foot alley; which conveyance was made to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed of trust fully described; and whereas default has been made in the payment of one of said notes; and whereas the said Henry Zeis departed this life on the 9th day of December, 1882, and more than nine months have elapsed since his death; now, therefore, public notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the powers in me vested by said deed of trust, and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, I will, on between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, proceed to sell said undivided one-sixth interest in the property above described, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, to satisfy said trust, and the cost and expense of executing the same.

FRIDAY, THE 5TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883,
JOHN H. FISSE, Trustee.
St. Louis, September 11, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas, Frederick Etzel, by his deed of trust dated August 15, 1876, on record in the Recorder's Office of the county, now city, of St. Louis, in book 552, page 398, did convey to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, lying and being in the county, now city of St. Louis, and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lots numbered six, seven, eight, nine and ten (6, 7, 8, 9 and 10) of block No. fourteen hundred and seventy-four (1474) of the city of St. Louis, said lots containing an aggregate front of one hundred and thirty-five (135) feet in the north line of Wyoming street by a depth east of one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet to an alley 15 feet wide. Also, lot number twenty (20) of block number two (2) of the northeast quarter of block 46 of the St. Louis commons, or city block No. 1472, said lot containing a front of twenty-five (25) feet in the west line of Oregon avenue by a depth of one hundred and twenty five (125) feet to an alley, which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain notes therein described; and, whereas, the principal note described in said deed of trust has long since become due and remained unpaid. Now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note, and in accordance with the condition in said deed of trust contained, I will, on THURSDAY, THE 11TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of that day, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, Mo., proceed to sell the above described property, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purpose of carrying out said trust.

DANIEL G. HAMMACHER, Trustee.

WHEREAS—Armand Sertier and Harriet, his wife, by their deed of trust dated May 3, 1880, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the County of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 13, page 879, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, being a certain piece of ground lying and being in St. Louis County, State of Missouri, to-wit: Commencing at the southwest corner of the school-house lot in the west half of the northwest quarter of section seventeen, township forty-five north, range six east; thence west two hundred and seventy-eight feet four inches; thence north seven hundred and eighty-three feet four inches to the south line of the Clayton road; thence east with the south line of Clayton road four hundred and eighty-nine feet; thence south six hundred and eleven feet to the northeast corner of said school-house lot; thence west with the north line of said school-house lot two hundred and ten feet to the northwest corner of said school-house lot; thence south with the west line of said school-house lot two hundred and nine feet to the place of beginning, containing eight acres, and being the same property acquired by said Armand Sertier of John Lee and wife by deed dated January 26, 1875, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of the City, late County of St. Louis, in book 517, page 42; which conveyance was made in trust to secure certain promissory and negotiable notes in said deed of trust, fully described. Now, therefore, under the provisions of said deed of trust, and upon the request of the legal holder of said notes, part whereof are due and yet unpaid, I shall, on
